PASSENGER SAYS SOME WAITERS DRUNK

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Chief Radio Officer George W. Rogers of the Morro Castle testified today before the federal board of inquiry that Capt. Robert R. Willmott, who died a few hours before the disaster wanted him to discharge first assistant Radio Operator George I. Algna because he feared him as an "agitator."

"I think he's crazy, he's always causing trouble," Rogers quoted Captain Willmott as saying.

Rogers also told a graphic story of a delay of about half an hour in sending out the S O S call after the fire was discovered. This, he said, was due to his inability to get orders from the bridge, where Acting Captain William Warms was in command of the ship.

The resolution was presented by Rep. John M. O'Rourke and was drafted by a committee comprised of Reps. Morton Witkin and Clinton A. Sowers of Philadelphia, named by M. Harvey Taylor, Republican state chairman.

Leaders of the "marchers" made a wide variety of demands for relief upon the governor but he advised them to seek conferences with legislative leaders.

Corner's Jury Finds No Criminal Negligence In Venditto Death

PATROLMAN SAYS CROSSING IS BAD

After hearing the evidence from the drivers of the two machines involved in the collision which resulted in the death of Mrs. Angiola Venditto, on September 4, in the New Castle hospital, a coroner's jury recommended that stop signs be placed at Stump's Corners, just off the Parkstown-Edenburg road, where two Pinchot roads intersect. The jury could find no evidence of criminal negligence on the part of either driver, they stated. The inquest was held before Coroner Orville Potter in Alderman Brice's office.

Dr. John R. Palazzo told of treating Mrs. Venditto at the New Castle hospital on August 30, the day of the accident, when she was found to have a severe laceration of the arm, broken ribs, and severe shock. Several days later, she developed evidence of a cerebral hemorrhage and died in the hospital on September 4.

Martial Law In Saylesville Mill Strike District

Two Thousand National Guardsmen Keep Order In Riot Area

QUIET RESTORED AFTER OUTBREAKS

(International News Service)

SAYLESVILLE, R. I., Sept. 12.—With 1400 national guardsmen already here, and 600 more enroute, the mill area of Saylesville and Central Falls, one and a half miles long and a mile wide, was declared under absolute martial law today, as the aftermath to the worst strike riot in the history of the state.

At the Sayles finishing plant last night and early today five persons were shot and slightly injured, 21 others, including several militiamen, sent to hospitals, and more than 120 others were bruised by stones.

Guardsmen were posted in a virtual circle around the entire area, and not a single person who could not show a reason for entering the district was allowed to set foot across the "deadline."

Area Is Quiet

During a concerted early morning drive, the militia routed every alleged striker and sympathizer from the mill section with tear gas bombs and bayonets, and for the first time in more than 36 hours, the area was quiet. More than 200 workers at the Sayles finishing plant entered the battered gates today and went to work unmolested.

Brigadier General Herbert R. Dean, commandant of the national guardsmen, declared that every national guardsmen in the state would be quartered here by this afternoon, and that military headquarters would be established here. He said he was attempting to work out a system whereby residents who live within the "bottled up" area, would be relieved of the restrictions which accompany military rule.

Districts Must Submit Work Relief Projects To Secure Allocations

Political sub-divisions that do not submit projects for RWD work in this county can expect no allocations of labor for their districts according to George Mudehart, director of the RWD. This means that work will be done in each district by the unemployed of that district.

To clarify the matter still further it means that a project that is being done in any township will be done by men of that township unless the authorities agree to men from other districts being brought in. Township supervisors that do not provide projects must therefore expect to have no men of their district put to work.

"The political sub-divisions are expected to submit the projects," said Mr. Mudehart. "We want enough projects in Harrisburg by October 1 that will guarantee the employment of 2000 men and women in Lawrence county."

Huge Engine, On Way West, Goes Thru Here Today

First Of 10 Great Northern Freight Locomotives Passes Over Pennsy

Most of New Castle knew nothing about it but nevertheless one of the largest railroad locomotives ever to make an appearance here—a giant, eight-driver bound for service on the mountainous line of the Great Northern railroad—passed through the city today over the Pennsylvania lines.

The huge freight engine was steaming its way from the Baldwin Locomotive works, near Philadelphia, to the Great Northern road which covers the western and northwestern part of the country.

Railroad attaches handling the train reported that the locomotive was the first of a new order of 10 which the Great Northern has placed with the Baldwin plant. They represent a large expenditure.

Brought here from Erie, the locomotive, operated by Great Northern men and factory representatives, proceeded to Homewood Junction and onto the Pennsy's Ft. Wayne branch and on towards Chicago. Its route was carefully mapped out in advance to assure the maximum of safety in its operation over the winding roads of the east.

Governor Offers Stop-Gap Plan To Finance Relief

Pinchot's Message To Special Session Suggests Method Of Getting $20,000,000

WOULD BORROW FROM OTHER FUNDS

Only Other Method Is New Taxation, He Says—Asks Short Session

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12.—A stop-gap plan to finance relief until the end of January by borrowing from seven state funds to supplement inadequate liquor profits was proposed to the special session of the legislature today, by Governor Gifford Pinchot.

In a message delivered to the joint session of the House and Senate shortly after the Assembly convened at noon, the executive urged the legislators to appropriate themselves salaries of $10 a day instead of the $500 prescribed by statute for a special session, and requested them to provide funds for the payment of old age pensions. He made a final plea to the Senate to confirm his appointments to the public service commission, calling attention to the upper chamber's repeated refusals to take such action.

Suggests Sources for Funds

The governor suggested the $20,000,000 needed to finance relief as the commonwealth's share until the legislature meets regularly in January be accumulated from the following funds:

Liquor profits	$ 5,600,000
State insurance fund	548,000
Manufacturing fund	200,000
Motor fund	4,317,562
Liquid fuels tax fund	3,765,263
Liquor license fund	2,136,183
Fire insurance tax fund	1,823,567
State school fund	1,609,425
Total	$20,000,000

Administration bills embracing the governor's plan to utilize the liquor profits, make outright transfers of the insurance and manufacturing funds and borrow from the others, were introduced in the House later and sent to committee at once by Speaker Grover Talbot. It was possible they may be reported to the floor before the day is over to gear the session at top speed.

Other Alternative Is New Taxation

Declaring the only other alternative to this plan was new taxation, the governor placed the question squarely upon the shoulders of the Assembly.

"Under the circumstances there are, so far as I have been able to learn, but two roads open to the General Assembly by which the $20,000,000 can be provided," the governor said.

"One is imposition of new taxes, upon the difficulties, dangers and delays of which I do not need to dwell. Nevertheless, this is a method which the General Assembly can adopt if it chooses to do so, after such consideration as it may decide to give.

"The other is by the temporary

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 12.—United States Senator Huey P. Long stepped into the national political spotlight today as the unquestioned dictator of the sovereign state of Louisiana.

Huge Engine, On Way West, Goes Thru Here Today

First Of 10 Great Northern Freight Locomotives Passes Over Pennsy

Most of New Castle knew nothing about it but nevertheless one of the largest railroad locomotives ever to make an appearance here—a giant, eight-driver bound for service on the mountainous line of the Great Northern railroad—passed through the city today over the Pennsylvania lines.

The huge freight engine was steaming its way from the Baldwin Locomotive works, near Philadelphia, to the Great Northern road which covers the western and northwestern part of the country.

Railroad attaches handling the train reported that the locomotive was the first of a new order of 10 which the Great Northern has placed with the Baldwin plant. They represent a large expenditure.

Brought here from Erie, the locomotive, operated by Great Northern men and factory representatives, proceeded to Homewood Junction and onto the Pennsy's Ft. Wayne branch and on towards Chicago. Its route was carefully mapped out in advance to assure the maximum of safety in its operation over the winding roads of the east.

Governor Offers Stop-Gap Plan To Finance Relief

WOULD BORROW FROM OTHER FUNDS

Only Other Method Is New Taxation, He Says—Asks Short Session

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12.—A stop-gap plan to finance relief until the end of January by borrowing from seven state funds to supplement inadequate liquor profits was proposed to the special session of the legislature today, by Governor Gifford Pinchot.

In a message delivered to the joint session of the House and Senate shortly after the Assembly convened at noon, the executive urged the legislators to appropriate themselves salaries of $10 a day instead of the $500 prescribed by statute for a special session, and requested them to provide funds for the payment of old age pensions. He made a final plea to the Senate to confirm his appointments to the public service commission, calling attention to the upper chamber's repeated refusals to take such action.

Suggests Sources for Funds

The governor suggested the $20,000,000 needed to finance relief as the commonwealth's share until the legislature meets regularly in January be accumulated from the following funds:

Liquor profits	$ 5,600,000
State insurance fund	548,000
Manufacturing fund	200,000
Motor fund	4,317,562
Liquid fuels tax fund	3,765,263
Liquor license fund	2,136,183
Fire insurance tax fund	1,823,567
State school fund	1,609,425
Total	$20,000,000

Administration bills embracing the governor's plan to utilize the liquor profits, make outright transfers of the insurance and manufacturing funds and borrow from the others, were introduced in the House later and sent to committee at once by Speaker Grover Talbot. It was possible they may be reported to the floor before the day is over to gear the session at top speed.

Other Alternative Is New Taxation

Declaring the only other alternative to this plan was new taxation, the governor placed the question squarely upon the shoulders of the Assembly.

"Under the circumstances there are, so far as I have been able to learn, but two roads open to the General Assembly by which the $20,000,000 can be provided," the governor said.

"One is imposition of new taxes, upon the difficulties, dangers and delays of which I do not need to dwell. Nevertheless, this is a method which the General Assembly can adopt if it chooses to do so, after such consideration as it may decide to give.

"The other is by the temporary

International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Chief Radio Officer George W. Rogers of the Morro Castle testified today before the federal board of inquiry that Capt. Robert R. Willmott, who died a few hours before the disaster wanted him to discharge first assistant Radio Operator George I. Algna because he feared him as an "agitator."

"I think he's crazy, he's always causing trouble," Rogers quoted Captain Willmott as saying.

Rogers also told a graphic story of a delay of about half an hour in sending out the S O S call after the fire was discovered. This, he said, was due to his inability to get orders from the bridge, where Acting Captain William Warms was in command of the ship.

Prepare Rate For RWD Wages Here

Tentative List Of Rates Is Submitted To Harrisburg For Approval

While the rates have not yet been approved by Harrisburg, a tentative list of rates of wages for RWD labor has been prepared by the Rate Board here, consisting of Attorney C. W. Fenton, A. W. Bauman and Lowell Monroe. The list will be sent to Harrisburg and in all likelihood will be approved.

From the rates shown on the tentative list there is little difference from the rates paid on the old RWD and CWA projects. Common labor is listed at fifty cents per hour, semi-skilled labor at 75 cents per hour, apprentice skilled labor at 75 cents per hour, skilled labor for the most part is one dollar per hour. This includes such crafts as carpenters, bricklayers, painters, electricians and the like. There are some rates higher, as for example, steam and stationary engineers who are listed at $1.40 per hour.

Foreman are graded from $20 to $35 per week. White collar work is listed from $18 to $40 per week. The board took the prevailing rates on work of similar character in the county and district in arriving at their findings.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12.—Members of the unemployed councils of eastern and western Pennsylvania who converged on Harrisburg to stage a demonstration as the special session of the legislature convened today were promised shelter but no food by Gov. Gifford Pinchot of whom they made the demands.

Leaders of the "marchers" made a wide variety of demands for relief upon the governor but he advised them to seek conferences with legislative leaders.

Corner's Jury Finds No Criminal Negligence In Venditto Death

PATROLMAN SAYS CROSSING IS BAD,

After hearing the evidence from the drivers of the two machines involved in the collision which resulted in the death of Mrs. Angiola Venditto, on September 4, in the New Castle hospital, a coroner's jury recommended that stop signs be placed at Stump's Corners, just off the Parkstown-Edenburg road, where two Pinchot roads intersect. The jury could find no evidence of criminal negligence on the part of either driver, they stated. The inquest was held before Coroner Orville Potter in Alderman Brice's office.

Dr. John R. Palazzo told of treating Mrs. Venditto at the New Castle hospital on August 30, the day of the accident, when she was found to have a severe laceration of the arm, broken ribs, and severe shock. Several days later, she developed evidence of a cerebral hemorrhage and died in the hospital on September 4.

Saw Cars Collide

W. W. Stump, who resides at the road intersection, told of seeing the collision and helping to take Mrs. Venditto from the car. He gave a description of the danger crossing, which is at the intersection of the Pinchot road leading from Edenburg through the Harbor and thence on to Walmo, and the road leading off

Martial Law In Saylesville Mill Strike District

Two Thousand National Guardsmen Keep Order In Riot Area

QUIET RESTORED AFTER OUTBREAKS

(International News Service)

SAYLESVILLE, R. I., Sept. 12. —With 1400 national guardsmen already here, and 600 more enroute, the mill area of Saylesville and Central Falls, one and a half miles long and a mile wide, was declared under absolute martial law today, as the aftermath to the worst strike riot in the history of the state.

At the Sayles finishing plant last night and early today five persons were shot and slightly injured, 21 others, including several militiamen, sent to hospitals, and more than 120 others were bruised by stones.

Guardsmen were posted in a virtual circle around the entire area, and not a single person who could not show a reason for entering the district was allowed to set foot across the "deadline."

Area Is Quiet

During a concerted early morning drive, the militia routed every alleged striker and sympathizer from the mill section with tear gas bombs and bayonets, and for the first time in more than 36 hours, the area was quiet. More than 200 workers at the Sayles finishing plant entered the battered gates today and went to work unmolested.

Brigadier General Herbert R. Dean, commandant of the national guardsmen, declared that every national guardsmen in the state would be quartered here by this afternoon, and that military headquarters would be established here. He said he was attempting to work out a system whereby residents who live within the "bottled up" area, would be relieved of the restrictions which accompany military rule.

Federation To Supervise Distribution Of Consumer's Co-operation Stickers

Make Plans For Assisting With Renewal Of Interest In Movement Here

Pledging their complete cooperation in the effort which is being projected by the New Castle Compliance Board of the NRA to unify interest in a renewal of support for the Administration's Recovery plan, the Federation of Women's Clubs of Lawrence county, at a meeting held in the home of Mrs. D. Districts Must Submit Work Relief Projects To Secure Allocations Political sub-divisions that do not submit projects for RWD work in this county can expect no allocations of labor for their districts according to George Mudehart, director of the RWD. This means that work will be done in each district by the unemployed of that district.

To clarify the matter still further it means that a project that is being done in any township will be done by men of that township unless the authorities agree to men from other districts being brought in. Township supervisors that do not provide projects must therefore expect to have no men of their district put to work.

"The political sub-divisions are expected to submit the projects," said Mr. Mudehart. "We want enough projects in Harrisburg by October 1 that will guarantee the employment of 2000 men and women in Lawrence county."

Governor Offers Stop-Gap Plan To Finance Relief

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12.—A stop-gap plan to finance relief until the end of January by borrowing from seven state funds to supplement inadequate liquor profits was proposed to the special session of the legislature today by Governor Gifford Pinchot.

In a message delivered to the joint session of the House and Senate shortly after the Assembly convened at noon, the executive urged the legislators to appropriate themselves salaries of $10 a day instead of the $500 prescribed by statute for a special session, and requested them to provide funds for the payment of old age pensions. Suggests Sources for Funds

The governor suggested the $20,000,000 needed to finance relief as the commonwealth's share until the legislature meets regularly in January be accumulated from the following funds:

Liquor profits	$ 5,600,000
State insurance fund	548,000

PRESIDENT AND RICHBERG CONFER ON N.R.A.

Reorganization Plans Discussed

Indications Johnson Will Head Executive Division in New Program

RICHBERG LIKELY TO RE-SHAPE POLICY

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 12. NRA re-organization problems claimed President Roosevelt's thoughts for the second consecutive day this morning, as he called in for conference Donald R. Richberg, who has served as NRA chief counsel.

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson was gone, after a conference out of which emerged the information that Mr. Roosevelt intended to temporarily split the NRA into three divisions— legislative, judicial and administrative.

Up to the present, all signs pointed to Johnson's heading the executive or administrative division. His work as the head of this NRA division, however, will obviously be much less important than that which he has carried forward until the present.

Richberg Star Rising

Richberg, if the political signs point rightly, will head the legislative division, which will handle and re-shape NRA policy. The Richberg star has been rising for sometime, and it would surprise no one should he emerge from the present shifting as the "head man," so to speak, of NRA. Certainly, Johnson is no longer to occupy the important and titular position that has been his up to the present. Mr. Roosevelt announced after a lengthy conference with Johnson yesterday morning and the night before that the recovery chieftain would return to his vacation haunt, Bethany Beach, Delaware, and continue his work on a permanent program for NRA to be presented to the next convening session of congress.

Jones Talks To President

Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, head the list of guests today ahead of Richberg, who was not scheduled to arrive until late afternoon. In addition to Jones, John H. Fahey, chairman of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, was to be a luncheon guest.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early refused to say what these additional callers would discuss. At the same time, he announced that also, there would be at the Roosevelt household today, Orlando Weber, of the Allied Chemical company; Owen Lovejoy, of the Children's Aid Society, and Platt K. Wiggins.

to those who are now operating under an approved code and are displaying the Code Blue Eagle.

The new stickers, he stated, are to be displayed as a mark of approval by the residents of the community and will signify that those who display them are backing up the business firms who are operating under the various codes.

The inscription on the sticker reads as follows:

> "In the national effort to bring security to all, I will encourage and patronize those business establishments in which the Blue Eagle of NRA codes is displayed."

Marcus Feuchtwanger, president of the New Castle Compliance Board, thanked the ladies of the various clubs represented, for their hearty cooperation, which was so willingly given at the inception of the NRA movement here, and again appealed to them to continue their support in this great national effort.

Mrs. Pearson Speaks

Mrs. S. D. Pearson, past president of the Federation, spoke feelingly and assuringly that the women of New Castle, members of the clubs affiliated with the Federation, and the executives of the Girl Scouts, who were present to volunteer their aid in the movement, felt it their duty to cooperate heartily in the distribution of the stickers, and presented a motion expressing the willingness of the Federation to sponsor the effort. This was seconded by Mrs. W. C. Eckenroad.

Leaders of the Girl Scouts of Lawrence county, who were present, stated in this great national movement, and would make it one of their major projects.

To Head Effort

Mrs. Eckenroad was named chairman in charge of the distribution, with Mrs. C. Allen Ingels, as vice chairman. Because of the close alliance of the Girl Scouts with the Federation of Women's Clubs, their offer of assistance was gratefully accepted, and plans for the distribution were outlined.

The members of the different clubs will furnish automobile transportation for the girls of the various scout troops, and the distribution of the stickers will be started on September 22.

Mrs. Eckenroad, as chairman of the effort, asks all citizens of New Castle to receive the Girl Scouts courteously. It is felt that the vast majority of the residents of the community are in hearty sympathy with the plan, and will extend every courtesy to the girls when they arrive at the different homes to distribute the stickers.

Mrs. Eckenroad has also asked the presidents of the different clubs affiliated with the Federation to notify her this week of the number of machines which will be available, so that the plans may be coordinated.

Both Mr. Evans, representing Mr. Horner's office and Marcus Feuchtwanger, general chairman of the renewal campaigns, are more than pleased with the response which has been made to their plea for a renewal of interest in the NRA, and predict that New Castle will again be listed as one of the outstanding communities in the nation in their support of the Administration and its recovery program.

the Parkstown-Edenburg cement road toward Lowellville.

The truck, driven by William Navarre, was traveling south towards Edenburg, while the passenger vehicle, a two-door sedan, was traveling east towards Parkstown Corners.

Henry Venditto, of 107 Lawrence street, son of the accident victim, told of going to the De Vitte farm near Lowellville with Alfred Cletta, in the latter's car, to bring his mother home after a visit. They were coming down a grade towards the road intersection, and started to blow their horn before approaching the corner. The truck was about 100 feet away from them when he first saw it, he stated, and he did not notice it again until it hit their car. He was thrown out of the door. The two cars came to rest about ten feet east of the intersection, with the bumper of the truck hooked onto the back end of their car, the left side of their car being up in the air, and the front of the truck being raised off the ground, resting on the running board of their car.

He helped to pull his mother from the car and take her to the Stump home, from whence she was removed to the New Castle hospital in an ambulance.

Is Danger Spot

Corporal L. J. Lawton, told of being called to the accident scene on the evening of August 30, about 6:30. When he arrived, those involved had left the scene. He told of the position he found the cars in. The crossing is a very dangerous one, he stated, it being impossible to see north on the Harbor road, while coming down the Lowellville road, until almost at the intersection, and similarly, a car coming down the Harbor road cannot see up the Lowellville road. There are no stop signs at the point, but there are road crossing signs near the intersection. The bank at the northwest corner is high, grown over with bushes, and in addition, there are three telephone poles close together at the point.

William Navarre, driver of the truck, which is owned by C. W. Shingledecker and sons, of Hillsville, stated that he was proceeding south on the Harbor road, and as he approached the road crossing, slowed up and blew his horn.

Bank Obscures View

It is impossible to see up the Lowellville road, at this point, he stated. He started out across the road intersection in second gear, when he saw the small car driven by Cletta coming down the road. It was almost upon him. The smaller car caught his bumper and whirled the truck around behind it, toward the field to his left, the two cars coming to rest at the side of the road, about a car length from the road intersection. He was not injured, he stated.

Benny Tiratto, who was riding with Navarre told a similar story.

Alfred Cletta, of 507 Cunningham avenue, gave his version of the accident. He was driving the machine in which Mrs. Venditto was riding. His testimony was the same as Henry Venditto's, claiming that the truck ran into their machine.

It was evident, the jury stated, that neither driver was going at a high rate of speed, and that both had used a certain amount of caution on approaching the crossing. They recommended that the state erect stop signs at the road intersection, which has been the scene of several accidents.

The jury was composed of E. E. Linsley, Carl Staeber, Roy Samuels, Charles E. Allen, Robert H. Adams, and J. Bert James.

transfer and later repayment, including interest, of money from a number of funds now in the treasury, each devoted to a certain specific purpose, but for the most part not due to be paid out in the immediate future.

This plan would necessarily involve delay in the payment of certain subsidies to worthy purposes, but under present conditions relief is the most pressing and worthiest purposes of all.

Up To General Assembly

"I repeat the choice of the method to be used in raising the money for relief is wholly in the hands of the General Assembly. The decision is for it to make."

Talking from the speaker's rostrum in the House, the governor reviewed in detail his correspondence with President Roosevelt and Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, concerning the Pennsylvania relief situation. Again expressing the opinion Pennsylvania was entitled to more federal funds to support its million and a quarter needy, the governor declared the federal government's refusal to continue shouldering the state's full relief burden necessitated raising $20,000,000.

Estimates of the amounts available for borrowing were based upon present unencumbered balances plus estimated receipts to January 31, 1935.

The governor tied one string on his plan to avoid new taxes, giving notice he would veto all bills transferring money from all but the insurance, manufacturing and liquor funds unless the legislature made a specific declaration of repayment of specified date.

Brief Message

The executive's message, as was his proclamation limiting the session to consideration of relief, was the briefest Governor Pinchot has ever presented at the opening of a session.

The governor asked only that the legislature take as little money as necessary from the motor fund, pointing out:

"The is not much to be gained by cutting off work-relief on the roads and then supplying food-relief to the same men and their families out of the same money."

Urging confirmation of his appointments to the public service commission, the governor said:

"These men have proved themselves to be faithful public servants, militantly on the side of the people against the grasping public utilities.

"There is no excuse whatever for failure to confirm them. Such failure, if it is repeated at this session, will rightly be attributed by the people to a desire to protect the utilities against the people, and not to protect the people against the utilities."

The governor pointed out that if the entire liquor profits are utilized for relief, no money will remain for payment of old age pensions scheduled to begin December 1 under existing legislation. He made no recommendations for raising the necessary money.

A proposal that members of the legislature serve without pay during the special session was termed "unfair" by the governor to members who cannot afford to give their time and pay their own expenses at Harrisburg.

The special session was ushered in with confident predictions of adjournment next week-end by Republican legislative leaders.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12—According its organized Republican support to Gov. Gifford Pinchot for the first time in years, Pennsylvania's legislature convened in special session at noon today to provide funds for 1,250,000 needy persons.

Banging gavels called the senate to order at 12 o'clock and the house a minute later.

Both chambers filled slowly, the majority of the legislators attending the Republican caucas.

Republicans gathered in caucus at 10 o'clock and met behind closed doors until almost time for the legislature to convene.

Under the leadership of M. Harvey Taylor, new Republican state chairman, the G. O. P. legislators drafted plans to lend their support to Gov. Gifford Pinchot's plan to gather $20,000,000 for relief from various state funds.

A basket of flowers was substituted for the customary folders for bills on the desk of Rep. J. Anson Wright, Bedford, who died recently.

Although no statement was issued when the caucus broke up, scattered opposition to the program of party leaders was understood to have been overcome, lending support to predictions of a short session. Another caucus was to be held later in the day after the governor's program is officially before the legislature.

A squad of state police was posted at vantage points in both chambers. Major Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of state police, said the men were stationed as an "extra precaution, and to keep the aisles clear." He said the several hundred unemployed "marches" here to ask for greater relief allowances were not expected to attend the opening session.

ception in Tuesday's congressional primary on the face of nearly complete, but unofficial, returns.

Long Breaks Even.

In his battle with the forces of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley's old regulars and their anti-Long allies, in the city of New Orleans, Senator Long broke even on the vote. Adjoining country parishes, in which he drew almost solid blocks of votes, completely dominating the ballot, gave him the margin of victory wherever it was needed.

In the first and second congressional districts in which the New Orleans vote is the major factor, Long won signal victories.

Elsewhere in the state, where incumbent congressmen led their opponents easily, Long fared less well, but the major fight of his six-year career as the dominant power in Louisiana politics, was centered and won in New Orleans.

The sweep of Long's victory in his battle against the Walmsley regime was demonstrated by the fact that the old regulars, who revolted against Long and delivered him a smashing defeat in the January mayoralty election, carried only six of the city's 17 wards.

Mayor Ejects One Of His Visitors

Mayne Aroused When Caller Refers To Him As A "Dictator"

Mayor Charles B. Mayne played the role of heaver yesterday when a young man referred sarcastically to the mayor as a "dictator".

The young man, according to the story, had some difficulty at the Henry house and visited the mayor's private office where he requested the mayor to go to the Henry house and get his grip.

Mayor Mayne is said to have informed the young man such was not his duty, that it was the young man's trouble, not his, and advised him what to do.

The young man did not like this and is said to have said something about the mayor being a dictator after which the mayor reached over and took him by the neck and ejected him from his office.

He ordered the man to leave the building. Instead the man went to the first floor and after a few more words it is reported the mayor picked up the young man and put him out of the building.

Later the man is said to have sent his coat to the mayor's office with a request that it be cleaned. It is understood the coat will be kept on a hanger for a day or two. If not called for it will be thrown away, it is reported.

today, in which a crowd, estimated at time to be upwards of 4,000, clashed with the militia.

Workers in the Mashassuck cemetery at Central Falls were also busy clearing up the debris left by a band of alleged strikers and sympathizers who took refuge behind headstones and hurled missiles at the guardsmen.

State troopers and local police and deputy sheriffs were relieved by the militia of the task of policing the district. Machine guns and searchlights were mounted atop the roof of the Sayles Finishing Company, and the entire district today took on the appearance of a battleground.

PRESIDENT AND RICHBERG CONFER ON N.R.A.

Reorganization Plans Discussed

RICHBERG LIKELY TO RE-SHAPE POLICY

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 12. NRA re-organization problems claimed President Roosevelt's thoughts for the second consecutive day this morning, as he called in for conference Donald R. Richberg, who has served as NRA chief counsel.

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson was gone, after a conference out of which emerged the information that Mr. Roosevelt intended to temporarily split the NRA into three divisions— legislative, judicial and administrative.

Up to the present, all signs pointed to Johnson's heading the executive or administrative division. His work as the head of this NRA division, however, will obviously be much less important than that which he has carried forward until the present.

Richberg Star Rising

Richberg, if the political signs point rightly, will head the legislative division, which will handle and re-shape NRA policy. The Richberg star has been rising for sometime, and it would surprise no one should he emerge from the present shifting as the "head man," so to speak, of NRA. Certainly, Johnson is no longer to occupy the important and titular position that has been his up to the present. Mr. Roosevelt announced after a lengthy conference with Johnson yesterday morning and the night before that the recovery chieftain would return to his vacation haunt, Bethany Beach, Delaware, and continue his work on a permanent program for NRA to be presented to the next convening session of congress.

Jones Talks To President

Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, head the list of guests today ahead of Richberg, who was not scheduled to arrive until late afternoon. In addition to Jones, John H. Fahey, chairman of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, was to be a luncheon guest.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early refused to say what these additional callers would discuss. At the same time, he announced that also, there would be at the Roosevelt household today, Orlando Weber, of the Allied Chemical company; Owen Lovejoy, of the Children's Aid Society, and Platt K. Wiggins.

to those who are now operating under an approved code and are displaying the Code Blue Eagle.

The new stickers, he stated, are to be displayed as a mark of approval by the residents of the community and will signify that those who display them are backing up the business firms who are operating under the various codes.

The inscription on the sticker reads as follows:

> "In the national effort to bring security to all, I will encourage and patronize those business establishments in which the Blue Eagle of NRA codes is displayed."

Marcus Feuchtwanger, president of the New Castle Compliance Board, thanked the ladies, of the various clubs represented, for their hearty cooperation, which was so willingly given at the inception of the NRA movement here, and again appealed to them to continue their support in this great national effort.

Mrs. Pearson Speaks

Mrs. S. D. Pearson, past president of the Federation, spoke feelingly and assuringly that the women of New Castle, members of the clubs affiliated with the Federation, and the executives of the Girl Scouts, who were present to volunteer their aid in the movement, felt it their duty to cooperate heartily in the distribution of the stickers, and presented a motion expressing the willingness of the Federation to sponsor the effort. This was seconded by Mrs. W. C. Eckenroad.

Leaders of the Girl Scouts of Lawrence county, who were present, stated in this great national movement, and would make it one of their major projects.

To Head Effort

Mrs. Eckenroad was named chairman in charge of the distribution, with Mrs. C. Allen Ingels, as vice chairman. Because of the close alliance of the Girl Scouts with the Federation of Women's Clubs, their offer of assistance was gratefully accepted, and plans for the distribution were outlined.

The members of the different clubs will furnish automobile transportation for the girls of the various scout troops, and the distribution of the stickers will be started on September 22.

Mrs. Eckenroad, as chairman of the effort, asks all citizens of New Castle to receive the Girl Scouts courteously. It is felt that the vast majority of the residents of the community are in hearty sympathy with the plan, and will extend every courtesy to the girls when they arrive at the different homes to distribute the stickers.

Mrs. Eckenroad has also asked the presidents of the different clubs affiliated with the Federation to notify her this week of the number of machines which will be available, so that the plans may be coordinated.

Both Mr. Evans, representing Mr. Horner's office and Marcus Feuchtwanger, general chairman of the renewal campaigns, are more than pleased with the response which has been made to their plea for a renewal of interest in the NRA, and predict that New Castle will again be listed as one of the outstanding communities in the nation in their support of the Administration and its recovery program.

Mayor Ejects One Of His Visitors

Mayne Aroused When Caller Refers To Him As A "Dictator"

Mayor Charles B. Mayne played the role of heaver yesterday when a young man referred sarcastically to the mayor as a "dictator".

The young man, according to the story, had some difficulty at the Henry house and visited the mayor's private office where he requested the mayor to go to the Henry house and get his grip.

The young man did not like this and is said to have said something about the mayor being a dictator after which the mayor reached over and took him by the neck and ejected him from his office.

He ordered the man to leave the building. Instead the man went to the first floor and after a few more words it is reported the mayor picked up the young man and put him out of the building.

Later the man is said to have sent his coat to the mayor's office with a request that it be cleaned. It is understood the coat will be kept on a hanger for a day or two. If not called for it will be thrown away, it is reported.

today, in which a crowd, estimated at time to be upwards of 4,000, clashed with the militia.

Workers in the Mashassuck cemetery at Central Falls were also busy clearing up the debris left by a band of alleged strikers and sympathizers who took refuge behind headstones and hurled missiles at the guardsmen.

State troopers and local police and deputy sheriffs were relieved by the militia of the task of policing the district. Machine guns and searchlights were mounted atop the roof of the Sayles Finishing Company, and the entire district today took on the appearance of a battleground.

PRESIDENT AND RICHBERG CONFER ON N.R.A.

Reorganization Plans Discussed

RICHBERG LIKELY TO RE-SHAPE POLICY

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 12. NRA re-organization problems claimed President Roosevelt's thoughts for the second consecutive day this morning, as he called in for conference Donald R. Richberg, who has served as NRA chief counsel.

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson was gone, after a conference out of which emerged the information that Mr. Roosevelt intended to temporarily split the NRA into three divisions— legislative, judicial and administrative.

Up to the present, all signs pointed to Johnson's heading the executive or administrative division. His work as the head of this NRA division, however, will obviously be much less important than that which he has carried forward until the present.

Richberg Star Rising

Richberg, if the political signs point rightly, will head the legislative division, which will handle and re-shape NRA policy. The Richberg star has been rising for sometime, and it would surprise no one should he emerge from the present shifting as the "head man," so to speak, of NRA. Certainly, Johnson is no longer to occupy the important and titular position that has been his up to the present. Mr. Roosevelt announced after a lengthy conference with Johnson yesterday morning and the night before that the recovery chieftain would return to his vacation haunt, Bethany Beach, Delaware, and continue his work on a permanent program for NRA to be presented to the next convening session of congress.

Jones Talks To President

Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, head the list of guests today ahead of Richberg, who was not scheduled to arrive until late afternoon. In addition to Jones, John H. Fahey, chairman of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, was to be a luncheon guest.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early refused to say what these additional callers would discuss. At the same time, he announced that also, there would be at the Roosevelt household today, Orlando Weber, of the Allied Chemical company; Owen Lovejoy, of the Children's Aid Society, and Platt K. Wiggins.

to those who are now operating under an approved code and are displaying the Code Blue Eagle.

The new stickers, he stated, are to be displayed as a mark of approval by the residents of the community and will signify that those who display them are backing up the business firms who are operating under the various codes.

The inscription on the sticker reads as follows:

> "In the national effort to bring security to all, I will encourage and patronize those business establishments in which the Blue Eagle of NRA codes is displayed."

Marcus Feuchtwanger, president of the New Castle Compliance Board, thanked the ladies, of the various clubs represented, for their hearty cooperation, which was so willingly given at the inception of the NRA movement here, and again appealed to them to continue their support in this great national effort.

Mrs. Pearson Speaks

Mrs. S. D. Pearson, past president of the Federation, spoke feelingly and assuringly that the women of New Castle, members of the clubs affiliated with the Federation, and the executives of the Girl Scouts, who were present to volunteer their aid in the movement, felt it their duty to cooperate heartily in the distribution of the stickers, and presented a motion expressing the willingness of the Federation to sponsor the effort. This was seconded by Mrs. W. C. Eckenroad.

Leaders of the Girl Scouts of Lawrence county, who were present, stated in this great national movement, and would make it one of their major projects.

To Head Effort

Mrs. Eckenroad was named chairman in charge of the distribution, with Mrs. C. Allen Ingels, as vice chairman. Because of the close alliance of the Girl Scouts with the Federation of Women's Clubs, their offer of assistance was gratefully accepted, and plans for the distribution were outlined.

The members of the different clubs will furnish automobile transportation for the girls of the various scout troops, and the distribution of the stickers will be started on September 22.

Mrs. Eckenroad, as chairman of the effort, asks all citizens of New Castle to receive the Girl Scouts courteously. It is felt that the vast majority of the residents of the community are in hearty sympathy with the plan, and will extend every courtesy to the girls when they arrive at the different homes to distribute the stickers.

Mrs. Eckenroad has also asked the presidents of the different clubs affiliated with the Federation to notify her this week of the number of machines which will be available, so that the plans may be coordinated.

Both Mr. Evans, representing Mr. Horner's office and Marcus Feuchtwanger, general chairman of the renewal campaigns, are more than pleased with the response which has been made to their plea for a renewal of interest in the NRA, and predict that New Castle will again be listed as one of the outstanding communities in the nation in their support of the Administration and its recovery program.

RECOMMEND STOP SIGNS BE PLACED AT DANGER SPOT

the Parkstown-Edenburg cement road toward Lowellville.

The truck, driven by William Navarre, was traveling south towards Edenburg, while the passenger vehicle, a two-door sedan, was traveling east towards Parkstown Corners.

Henry Venditto, of 107 Lawrence street, son of the accident victim, told of going to the De Vitte farm near Lowellville with Alfred Cletta, in the latter's car, to bring his mother home after a visit. They were coming down a grade towards the road intersection, and started to blow their horn before approaching the corner. The truck was about 100 feet away from them when he first saw it, he stated, and he did not notice it again until it hit their car. He was thrown out of the door. The two cars came to rest about ten feet east of the intersection, with the bumper of the truck hooked onto the back end of their car, the left side of their car being up in the air, and the front of the truck being raised off the ground, resting on the running board of their car.

He helped to pull his mother from the car and take her to the Stump home, from whence she was removed to the New Castle hospital in an ambulance.

Is Danger Spot

Corporal L. J. Lawton, told of being called to the accident scene on the evening of August 30, about 6:30. When he arrived, those involved had left the scene. He told of the position he found the cars in. The crossing is a very dangerous one, he stated, it being impossible to see north on the Harbor road, while coming down the Lowellville road, until almost at the intersection, and similarly, a car coming down the Harbor road cannot see up the Lowellville road. There are no stop signs at the point, but there are road crossing signs near the intersection. The bank at the northwest corner is high, grown over with bushes, and in addition, there are three telephone poles close together at the point.

William Navarre, driver of the truck, which is owned by C. W. Shingledecker and sons, of Hillsville, stated that he was proceeding south on the Harbor road, and as he approached the road crossing, slowed up and blew his horn.

Bank Obscures View

It is impossible to see up the Lowellville road, at this point, he stated. He started out across the road intersection in second gear, when he saw the small car driven by Cletta coming down the road. It was almost upon him. The smaller car caught his bumper and whirled the truck around behind it, toward the field to his left, the two cars coming to rest at the side of the road, about a car length from the road intersection. He was not injured, he stated.

Benny Tiratto, who was riding with Navarre told a similar story.

Alfred Cletta, of 507 Cunningham avenue, gave his version of the accident. He was driving the machine in which Mrs. Venditto was riding. His testimony was the same as Henry Venditto's, claiming that the truck ran into their machine.

It was evident, the jury stated, that neither driver was going at a high rate of speed, and that both had used a certain amount of caution on approaching the crossing. They recommended that the state erect stop signs at the road intersection, which has been the scene of several accidents.

The jury was composed of E. E. Linsley, Carl Staeber, Roy Samuels, Charles E. Allen, Robert H. Adams, and J. Bert James.

transfer and later repayment, including interest, of money from a number of funds now in the treasury, each devoted to a certain specific purpose, but for the most part not due to be paid out in the immediate future.

This plan would necessarily involve delay in the payment of certain subsidies to worthy purposes, but under present conditions relief is the most pressing and worthiest purposes of all.

Up To General Assembly

"I repeat the choice of the method to be used in raising the money for relief is wholly in the hands of the General Assembly. The decision is for it to make."

Talking from the speaker's rostrum in the House, the governor reviewed in detail his correspondence with President Roosevelt and Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, concerning the Pennsylvania relief situation. Again expressing the opinion Pennsylvania was entitled to more federal funds to support its million and a quarter needy, the governor declared the federal government's refusal to continue shouldering the state's full relief burden necessitated raising $20,000,000.

Estimates of the amounts available for borrowing were based upon present unencumbered balances plus estimated receipts to January 31, 1935.

The governor tied one string on his plan to avoid new taxes, giving notice he would veto all bills transferring money from all but the insurance, manufacturing and liquor funds unless the legislature made a specific declaration of repayment of specified date.

Brief Message

The executive's message, as was his proclamation limiting the session to consideration of relief, was the briefest Governor Pinchot has ever presented at the opening of a session.

The governor asked only that the legislature take as little money as necessary from the motor fund, pointing out:

"The is not much to be gained by cutting off work-relief on the roads and then supplying food-relief to the same men and their families out of the same money."

Urging confirmation of his appointments to the public service commission, the governor said:

"These men have proved themselves to be faithful public servants, militantly on the side of the people against the grasping public utilities.

"There is no excuse whatever for failure to confirm them. Such failure, if it is repeated at this session, will rightly be attributed by the people to a desire to protect the utilities against the people, and not to protect the people against the utilities."

The governor pointed out that if the entire liquor profits are utilized for relief, no money will remain for payment of old age pensions scheduled to begin December 1 under existing legislation. He made no recommendations for raising the necessary money.

A proposal that members of the legislature serve without pay during the special session was termed "unfair" by the governor to members who cannot afford to give their time and pay their own expenses at Harrisburg.

The special session was ushered in with confident predictions of adjournment next week-end by Republican legislative leaders.

Session Opens

International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12—According its organized Republican support to Gov. Gifford Pinchot for the first time in years, Pennsylvania's legislature convened in special session at noon today to provide funds for 1,250,000 needy persons.

Banging gavels called the senate to order at 12 o'clock and the house a minute later.

Both chambers filled slowly, the majority of the legislators attending the Republican caucas.

Republicans gathered in caucus at 10 o'clock and met behind closed doors until almost time for the legislature to convene.

Under the leadership of M. Harvey Taylor, new Republican state chairman, the G. O. P. legislators drafted plans to lend their support to Gov. Gifford Pinchot's plan to gather $20,000,000 for relief from various state funds.

A basket of flowers was substituted for the customary folders for bills on the desk of Rep. J. Anson Wright, Bedford, who died recently.

Although no statement was issued when the caucus broke up, scattered opposition to the program of party leaders was understood to have been overcome, lending support to predictions of a short session. Another caucus was to be held later in the day after the governor's program is officially before the legislature.

A squad of state police was posted at vantage points in both chambers. Major Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of state police, said the men were stationed as an "extra precaution, and to keep the aisles clear." He said the several hundred unemployed "marches" here to ask for greater relief allowances were not expected to attend the opening session.

ception in Tuesday's congressional primary on the face of nearly complete, but unofficial, returns.

Long Breaks Even.

In his battle with the forces of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley's old regulars and their anti-Long allies, in the city of New Orleans, Senator Long broke even on the vote. Adjoining country parishes, in which he drew almost solid blocks of votes, completely dominating the ballot, gave him the margin of victory wherever it was needed.

In the first and second congressional districts in which the New Orleans vote is the major factor, Long won signal victories.

Elsewhere in the state, where incumbent congressmen led their opponents easily, Long fared less well, but the major fight of his six-year career as the dominant power in Louisiana politics, was centered and won in New Orleans.

MARTIAL LAW IN SAYLESVILLE MILL STRIKE DISTRICT

today, in which a crowd, estimated at time to be upwards of 4,000, clashed with the militia.

Workers in the Mashassuck cemetery at Central Falls were also busy clearing up the debris left by a band of alleged strikers and sympathizers who took refuge behind headstones and hurled missiles at the guardsmen.

State troopers and local police and deputy sheriffs were relieved by the militia of the task of policing the district. Machine guns and searchlights were mounted atop the roof of the Sayles Finishing Company, and the entire district today took on the appearance of a battleground.

BORDEN CLASS DINES AT GRANGE

One of the most delightful events the George R. Borden class of the First Methodist church has had on its calendar for a long time was the dinner Tuesday evening in the Westfield grange hall.

Mrs. W. D. Fullerton was in charge of the menu and floral decorations and she made a veritable flower garden of the dining room with exquisite large dahlias and gladioli in a profusion of colors placed effectively about the room and centering the tables which were arranged for 60 members and guests.

Special guests included Dr. Norris A. White, Miss Mary Alice White, Gertrude Hanks of Peru, Mrs. F. W. Hutchison, Mrs. David Keast and Robert Miner.

WELCOME ERIE CONFERENCE METHODISTS

NEW CASTLE is gratified to be able today to extend a sincere welcome to the host of Methodists who are gathered here for the sessions of the Erie Conference.

It is 21 years since this conference has been in New Castle, and this is the first time that the Epworth congregation has been the host. With the facilities of the magnificent new East Side church, and the co-operation of all congregations of the denomination in New Castle, there is every indication of an exceptionally pleasing stay in this city for the guests.

New Castle will receive an inspiration from the visit, as well as those who are in personal attendance at the various meetings. The presence of such a large body of consecrated Christian men and women is one that will leave a lasting impression of the finest kind.

It is the hope of the city at large, as well as that of the members of the denomination here that their stay in New Castle shall be pleasant and profitable, as well as the program of meetings be those of genuine helpfulness.

Welcome Erie Conference Methodists—pastors and laymen—and Bishop Edgar Blake, leader!

STUDYING THE STATE'S PRISONS

A committee authorized by the state legislature at the last session is preparing to make a thorough study of Pennsylvania prisons. Hearings are to be held following the special session.

The recent outbreak at the Eastern State penitentiary shows definitely there is room for improvement in the system. But the same thing may be said of the penal institutions in any other state. No perfect system yet has been devised.

Graterford was considered a model prison, yet there was a serious revolt at that penitentiary.

The probers may discover flaws which can be remedied, but the prison problem will continue to be a problem until the nature of criminals is changed.

ADVANTAGES OF LIVING IN U. S.

An American newspaper man, just returned to the United States after a world tour of some months' duration, announces that he is "even more sharply conscious of the advantages of living in America" than he has been after more than a dozen other summers in Europe or the Orient.

Then he proceeds to enumerate the advantages, some of which are superior plumbing, physical comfort in trains, hotels and homes and a general cleanliness and efficiency.

He lists the ills from which he knows his own land is suffering—drought, crop failures, unemployment, labor troubles, poverty, hunger, gangsters. Whatever they are, they are worse elsewhere. And to combat American ills there are "resolutions, kindliness, resourcefulness, enterprise and strength."

"There is no pathos or failure of hope in the outward aspects of America, nor in the feeling of its people, as you see or sense them freshly after a long absence. It is an affirmative and vital spirit that meets you in New York, that accompanies you on the train, that rests with you in a typical large American city."

Just lately Americans who have not been away from the country have felt there was a new wave of gloom and fear washing over us. It is good to know that this is not apparent to the home-owner. That wave of gloom is just one more thing that isn't as bad as it seems.

A CITATION FOR WOMANLY VALOR

Like a resurging theme in the tragedy of the Morro Castle runs the heroism of the women passengers.

In the stark horror of the moment when, according to the survivors, discipline seemed to be the first deserter, it was the women who helped others get into their lifebelts, spoke cheerful good-byes to passengers at the lifeboats or wished them well when the plunged into the ghostly dark.

A woman's lifebelt was snatched from her by a man. A woman called to her two sons departing in a lifeboat, "See you in the hotel." They were saved; she was drowned. Women holding to life preservers sustained exhausted men. Women worked frantically to make the lifebelts fit small children. Women exhorted swimmers who had almost reached the limit of their ability to stay afloat. Women sang to calm the fearful or rattled on in aimless conversation to take the minds of fellow passengers from a common peril.

Whether or not the investigation into the causes of the strange disaster may reveal anything of dishonor among men, the amazing first person stories that have stirred the pulses of readers since Saturday have established one indisputable truth:

The women, at least, weren't quitters.

SINCERITY

Mighty insincere, aren't you?

But the protest that you stand by certain principles.

You put them aside when they interfere with what you want to do.

Why don't you live up to the samples you display?

But you like popularity, you want to be known as a good sport, and so if it strikes your fancy, you let down the bars when opportunity presents.

At times you feel ashamed of your duplicity and you think you are fooling people—but you are not.

Your comelion-like changes are too frequent, too clearly discernible to deceive those with whom you associate to any great discernible to deceive with whom you associate to any great extent.

Your deception is known by each of the factions whose principles you espouse when in their presence.

There are many persons who are known to be contrary, contumacious and hard set in their conviction.

But such persons are to be preferred to the wishy-washy individual.

The positive persons can be relied upon to support the principles they assume to advocate, and they make strong friends among those who appreciate real worth and fearlessness.

All Of Us

By MARSHALL MASLIN

THE KIDDER

THE KIDDER is a fellow who can Dish It Out—but can't Take It.

Occasionally you find a Kidder who can take it, but he is always one whose kidding is gentler, more humorous, with far less malice than the ordinary run-of-the-mill kidding.

The average Kidder has a mean streak in him. Or perhaps it's a hurt, disappointed, baffled streak. (There really isn't as much difference between the two as we sometimes think.)

He likes to feel superior, and he has learned that the easiest way, for him, to accomplish this is to make the other fellow feel cheap. He picks on some all-too-human weakness in the other—some pride, some little folly, some modesty, some ridiculous error—and lays it before the multitude. Sometimes he is a lone wolf and prefers to see his victim writhe in secret. But usually he wants an audience. The bigger the audience, the greater the success of the joke, the deeper sinks the barb into the poor devil who is being kidded.

The Telephone Kidder is a particularly delightful type. He calls you up and tells you this is the express office and they have a package for you—and after he has you standing squarely on the trap he springs it and lets you dangle, while he rings off. . . . The Kidder starts by teasing the small boy who has patches on his pants. He goes on to organizing Snipe Hunts. And finally becomes the fellow in the livery stable who sends the town idiot to the hardware store for a left-handed monkey wrench or a can of striped paint. . . . He lets air out of your tires and knows a hundred cunning ways of deflating you, as well. (So far I have never encountered a woman who was a kidder and I don't believe I ever shall.)

You may guess from these few remarks on the subject that the writer of this article doesn't like Kidding. You are right, he doesn't. It is his opinion that Kidding has spoiled more dispositions, toughened more sensitive boys and girls and made them hard and suspicious, stultified more ambition, and ruined more idealism and fresh young effort than any other force in the world.

And if that means I haven't a sense of humor, very well, then, I haven't. . . . Because I'd rather not have any at all than have one and allow its curdle take to Kidding as a way of getting a laugh out of life.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

FACILIS DISCENSUS AVERNIS

While ex-Secretary of the Treasurer Andrew Mellon is being sued at the direction of the present administration in Washington for an alleged fraudulent return of income, notwithstanding his honorable record, it is interesting to have recalled something about his father, Thomas Mellon.

Andrew Mellon has as a life motto, "The smoothest way is not the way upward." It is the motto handed down to him by his father.

That father's career in many a way was the mold from which the successes of the more widely distinguished son are cast almost in exactness.

Thomas Mellon, starting in to study law at twenty-one "working himself through," showed from that start the self-same spirit of stalwart independence that lately has been manifest in the stand that Son Andrew has taken on every issue coming naturally within the province of his official duties.

It happened that in almost the first case that came before the elder Mellon, when early after his admission to the Bar, he had been chosen for a Pennsylvania judgeship, there appeared a local political leader who assumed proprietary airs. The case ended with the jury's verdict in the gentleman's favor. But that did not suffice. Extra allowances were asked—demanded. The court demurred. The attorney stormed. The judge's "duty was prescribed"—this was a swagger: there must be obedience—just that. That there could be hesitance seemed incomprehensible.

"It is necessary, your honor, that the court act at once—will you?" was the dictatorial call.

"Certainly," was the response. "The court sets the verdict aside. Allowance excessive. Call the next case, Mr. Clerk."

At the end of his judgeship Thos. Mellon did not go on practicing law. His clients clammered. "A business career is happier—buster," he said dismissingly—and there was then founded the business that has since developed until his family successors are preeminent in banking and industry, to the point that men with opportunities for making intelligent estimates do not list the great fortunes of America without starring the name of Mellon.

A Thomas Mellon autograph letter was in the collection of Edmund Clarence Stedman—celebrated as Wall Street's Banker Poet—its last line reading: "There is no law nor any man worth respect, or worth any thought, unless conceived and operating on-the-level, straight and fair."

Andrew took the way upward.

"Interpreters" for New Deal But Issues Do Not Stay "Put" Hand Forced by Strikes

New York Bureau
Central Press
245 E. 45th St.
By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 12. — The Roosevelt administration apparently was trying to conciliate business interests when the textile strike developed. Raymond Moley, close adviser to the president, was asserting that "interpreters" would dissipate fears of business. He, himself, has been picturing the administration as a conservative one, and has been outlining the various acts of the administration to prove his contention.

But the textile strike brought to a focus the crux of the evolutionary processes in the United States.

Either collective bargaining was or was not upheld by the administration. Then the issue came to a climax. The president openly and tactily declared for it. Openly, when the president told a press conference he considered it a vital part of the NRA. Tactily, the powerful Aluminum Company of America agreed to accede to it.

Newspaper observers close to happenings say they could see no alternative to the president's decision. But the administration is weakening itself, they believe, by its constant endeavor to please both sides and giving in a little to each without any definite determination of policy. Thus events themselves force the issues and the decisions. And the country is governed by expediency.

Whether business men like to hear this or not, newspaper men are asking:

"How far left will the president be pushed?"

The question will be decided on how strong the opposition is to the trend. The stronger the opposition, the farther to the left the president will be pushed, news observers say.

Business—except in certain old-established groups—realize the trend. Business would be willing to go ahead if the president would chart a course. The five billion dollars that banks could lend soon would find employment (bankers say) if the president would say: "Here are our plans. We shall go as far as this."

But can he say that? Hasn't compromise already lost him the golden opportunity? Some close observers insist that is the case.

Newspaper men report to this writer that many persons are drifting toward communistic ranks—and toward anybody with a fantastic scheme.

The terrible attack on the American Federation of Labor and its own archaic direction are breaking down the only conservative organization with which business actually can deal, these newspaper observers say. Francis J. Gorman, leader of the textile workers, may prove a blessing in disguise to employers. He may be the revitalizing force in the A. F. of L., thus making it the bulwark against the communists. It has not been.

That apparently is the belief of the administration—but many manufacturers do not see it that way. And strife increases.

NATIONALING THE GUARD

It is certain that if labor gains power in the United States, the National Guard will be nationalized. It will be part of the federal army.

Labor leaders assert that "the calling of the National Guard to protect strike breakers" is a violation of rights.

And the arming of deputies and company police also will stop — if labor gets into control.

The number of deaths this year, through shooting by such sources, is appalling.

EQUALIZATION

Movement of textile mills from New England to the south may halt when the textile strike has been settled.

Low wages in the south may begin to disappear.

Evidently Big Business does not consider this a "calamity". Several persons have told this writer that, with the increased wages and the larger buying power, the south will become the geratest potential market in the United States. With its increase in prosperity, wages likely are to continue rising.

The same processes led to the hey-day of the great industrial areas of the north.

IN FRANCE

A well-known newspaper correspondent, in from France, where he is stationed, believes France is nearer a revolution than any other country.

The effort to maintain the gold standard is "draining the country white".

But the French government fears to go into a "New Deal". The French are a people of habits—and one of their habits is to overthrow governments.

TODAY Is The Day

By CLARK KINNAIRD Copyright 1934 Central Press

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 12.

The World War Day By Day—An Australian—New Zealand expedition lopped off another German possession; New Guinea.

Germany wasn't attempting to use her navy to save her colonies. The Kaiser was holding the fleet in check, aiming to avoid conflict until his mine-layers and submarines had weakened the strength of the British Navy, until the strain of a close blockade had begun to tell on the superior enemy fleet and perhaps provided a chance for a surprise stroke, and until the conquest of Britain's Allies on land had made her position more difficult.

The defect of this strategy, as Germany immediately learned, was that it involved the abandonment of her foreign trade and reduced the possibility of her interference with the sea-borne supplies of the Allies.

However, she could and did still make some potent thrusts upon the sea. On this date the Russian cruiser Pallada was sunk by a U-boat with the loss of 568 lives. Next day the British submarine E9 sank the German cruiser Hela off Heligoland. Simultaneously, the lone wolf cruiser Emden carried out raids in the Bay of Bengal. She sank the Indus and Lovat, two troop transports; and captured the Kambinga and took it along to carry her prisoners.

Her commander, Karl von Mueller, was writing his name imperishably into the history of the sea with his chivalrous bravery and superb seamanship.

The exploits of this and the two or three other effective German commerce raiders attracted attention because they were the exceptions to the rule. The British, on the other hand, were able to capture such German merchantmen as ventured on the sea without difficulty. On the whole English foreign trade was unimpaired. British factories were even turning out products for German use! Goods sold to Swiss, Dutch and other neutral buyers found its way into Germany.

Sept. 12, 1818—Richard Gatling was born in Hertford county, N. C. He became one of the greatest American inventors and remained one of the least known. When he was 43 he evolved the first rapid-fire revolving field piece, the Gatling gun, forerunner of the machine-gun of today. It was first used by the Federals in the War Between the States against the forces of Gatling's own South and was employed in nearly all European countries before he died. It was capable of firing 350 to 1200 shot a minute up to 1½ miles.

However, it was only one of his noteworthy inventions, and most of the others were of peaceful intent. He developed the wheat-drill, a hemp-breaking machine, a motor plow. He probably did more than any other man to secure the wise adoption of drill husbandry in this country, and ranks with Jethro Tull as a revolutionizer of agriculture.

Sept. 12, 1866—The chorus girl, the stage-door johnny and the world of illusion called "Broadway," were born. The Black Crook had its premiere, revealing 100 lissom American girls, the first to be "glorified" in theatrical entertainment.

Sept. 12, 1892—The fatal combination of chorus girl and automobile was ready to be born. Charles E. Duryea successfully operated, in the streets of Springfield, Mass., a horseless carriage, produced in the shop that became the country's first regular automobile factory. It was a one-cylinder car.

This was not, of course, America's first automobile. In 1866, Henry A. House used a steam car constructed by his brother and himself to speed along Connecticut roads at 5 miles an hour. Owners of scared horses immediately began agitating for a law against the use of the public highways by such contraptions!

THE BORROWERS

It is strange but they never have borrowed a thing
Such as lemons, or butter, card tables or string
They go their own way and they let us go ours,
And she never has asked us for just a few flowers
We speak when we meet, but what more can you do
When your neighbors so nicely get on without you?

—Somtimes they have parties. We see the cars there,
But they never have asked us to lend them a chair
With dishes a-plenty they must be stocked up
For they never have borrowed a saucer or cup.
They've lived here a year but to us they're unknown,
For they never have borrowed a thing that we own

I suppose much of friendship 'tis vain to expect
From a method of living so strictly correct.
For such perfect behavior builds surely with time,
An invisible wall over which you can't climb
Until each very gladly both borrows and lends,
They may be good neighbors, but seldom good friends.

WELCOME ERIE CONFERENCE METHODISTS

NEW CASTLE is gratified to be able today to extend a sincere welcome to the host of Methodists who are gathered here for the sessions of the Erie Conference.

It is 21 years since this conference has been in New Castle, and this is the first time that the Epworth congregation has been the host. With the facilities of the magnificent new East Side church, and the co-operation of all congregations of the denomination in New Castle, there is every indication of an exceptionally pleasing stay in this city for the guests.

New Castle will receive an inspiration from the visit, as well as those who are in personal attendance at the various meetings. The presence of such a large body of consecrated Christian men and women is one that will leave a lasting impression of the finest kind.

It is the hope of the city at large, as well as that of the members of the denomination here that their stay in New Castle shall be pleasant and profitable, as well as the program of meetings be those of genuine helpfulness.

Welcome Erie Conference Methodists—pastors and laymen—and Bishop Edgar Blake, leader!

STUDYING THE STATE'S PRISONS

A committee authorized by the state legislature at the last session is preparing to make a thorough study of Pennsylvania prisons. Hearings are to be held following the special session.

The recent outbreak at the Eastern State penitentiary shows definitely there is room for improvement in the system. But the same thing may be said of the penal institutions in any other state. No perfect system yet has been devised.

Graterford was considered a model prison, yet there was a serious revolt at that penitentiary.

The probers may discover flaws which can be remedied, but the prison problem will continue to be a problem until the nature of criminals is changed.

ADVANTAGES OF LIVING IN U. S.

An American newspaper man, just returned to the United States after a world tour of some months' duration, announces that he is "even more sharply conscious of the advantages of living in America" than he has been after more than a dozen other summers in Europe or the Orient.

Then he proceeds to enumerate the advantages, some of which are superior plumbing, physical comfort in trains, hotels and homes and a general cleanliness and efficiency.

He lists the ills from which he knows his own land is suffering—drought, crop failures, unemployment, labor troubles, poverty, hunger, gangsters. Whatever they are, they are worse elsewhere. And to combat American ills there are "resolutions, kindliness, resourcefulness, enterprise and strength."

"There is no pathos or failure of hope in the outward aspects of America, nor in the feeling of its people, as you see or sense them freshly after a long absence. It is an affirmative and vital spirit that meets you in New York, that accompanies you on the train, that rests with you in a typical large American city."

Just lately Americans who have not been away from the country have felt there was a new wave of gloom and fear washing over us. It is good to know that this is not apparent to the home-owner. That wave of gloom is just one more thing that isn't as bad as it seems.

A CITATION FOR WOMANLY VALOR

Like a resurging theme in the tragedy of the Morro Castle runs the heroism of the women passengers.

In the stark horror of the moment when, according to the survivors, discipline seemed to be the first deserter, it was the women who helped others get into their lifebelts, spoke cheerful good-byes to passengers at the lifeboats or wished them well when the plunged into the ghostly dark.

A woman's lifebelt was snatched from her by a man. A woman called to her two sons departing in a lifeboat, "See you in the hotel." They were saved; she was drowned. Women holding to life preservers sustained exhausted men. Women worked frantically to make the lifebelts fit small children. Women exhorted swimmers who had almost reached the limit of their ability to stay afloat. Women sang to calm the fearful or rattled on in aimless conversation to take the minds of fellow passengers from a common peril.

Whether or not the investigation into the causes of the strange disaster may reveal anything of dishonor among men, the amazing first person stories that have stirred the pulses of readers since Saturday have established one indisputable truth:

The women, at least, weren't quitters.

Why don't you live up to the samples you display?

But you like popularity, you want to be known as a good sport, and so if it strikes your fancy, you let down the bars when opportunity presents.

At times you feel ashamed of your duplicity and you think you are fooling people—but you are not.

Your comelion-like changes are too frequent, too clearly discernible to deceive those with whom you associate to any great discernible to deceive with whom you associate to any great extent.

Your deception is known by each of the factions whose principles you espouse when in their presence.

All Of Us

By MARSHALL MASLIN

THE KIDDER

THE KIDDER is a fellow who can Dish It Out—but can't Take It.

Occasionally you find a Kidder who can take it, but he is always one whose kidding is gentler, more humorous, with far less malice than the ordinary run-of-the-mill kidding.

The average Kidder has a mean streak in him. Or perhaps it's a hurt, disappointed, baffled streak. (There really isn't as much difference between the two as we sometimes think.)

He likes to feel superior, and he has learned that the easiest way, for him, to accomplish this is to make the other fellow feel cheap. He picks on some all-too-human weakness in the other—some pride, some little folly, some modesty, some ridiculous error—and lays it before the multitude. Sometimes he is a lone wolf and prefers to see his victim writhe in secret. But usually he wants an audience. The bigger the audience, the greater the success of the joke, the deeper sinks the barb into the poor devil who is being kidded.

The Telephone Kidder is a particularly delightful type. He calls you up and tells you this is the express office and they have a package for you—and after he has you standing squarely on the trap he springs it and lets you dangle, while he rings off. . . . The Kidder starts by teasing the small boy who has patches on his pants. He goes on to organizing Snipe Hunts. And finally becomes the fellow in the livery stable who sends the town idiot to the hardware store for a left-handed monkey wrench or a can of striped paint. . . . He lets air out of your tires and knows a hundred cunning ways of deflating you, as well. (So far I have never encountered a woman who was a kidder and I don't believe I ever shall.)

You may guess from these few remarks on the subject that the writer of this article doesn't like Kidding. You are right, he doesn't. It is his opinion that Kidding has spoiled more dispositions, toughened more sensitive boys and girls and made them hard and suspicious, stultified more ambition, and ruined more idealism and fresh young effort than any other force in the world.

And if that means I haven't a sense of humor, very well, then, I haven't. . . . Because I'd rather not have any at all than have one and allow its curdle take to Kidding as a way of getting a laugh out of life.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

FACILIS DISCENSUS AVERNIS

While ex-Secretary of the Treasurer Andrew Mellon is being sued at the direction of the present administration in Washington for an alleged fraudulent return of income, notwithstanding his honorable record, it is interesting to have recalled something about his father, Thomas Mellon.

Andrew Mellon has as a life motto, "The smoothest way is not the way upward." It is the motto handed down to him by his father.

That father's career in many a way was the mold from which the successes of the more widely distinguished son are cast almost in exactness.

Thomas Mellon, starting in to study law at twenty-one "working himself through," showed from that start the self-same spirit of stalwart independence that lately has been manifest in the stand that Son Andrew has taken on every issue coming naturally within the province of his official duties.

It happened that in almost the first case that came before the elder Mellon, when early after his admission to the Bar, he had been chosen for a Pennsylvania judgeship, there appeared a local political leader who assumed proprietary airs. The case ended with the jury's verdict in the gentleman's favor. But that did not suffice. Extra allowances were asked—demanded. The court demurred. The attorney stormed. The judge's "duty was prescribed"—this was a swagger: there must be obedience—just that. That there could be hesitance seemed incomprehensible.

"It is necessary, your honor, that the court act at once—will you?" was the dictatorial call.

"Certainly," was the response. "The court sets the verdict aside. Allowance excessive. Call the next case, Mr. Clerk."

At the end of his judgeship Thos. Mellon did not go on practicing law. His clients clammered. "A business career is happier—busier," he said dismissingly—and there was then founded the business that has since developed until his family successors are preeminent in banking and industry, to the point that men with opportunities for making intelligent estimates do not list the great fortunes of America without starring the name of Mellon.

A Thomas Mellon autograph letter was in the collection of Edmund Clarence Stedman—celebrated as Wall Street's Banker Poet—its last line reading: "There is no law nor any man worth respect, or worth any thought, unless conceived and operating on-the-level, straight and fair."

Andrew took the way upward.

"Interpreters" for New Deal But Issues Do Not Stay "Put" Hand Forced by Strikes

New York Bureau
Central Press
245 E. 45th St.
By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 12. — The Roosevelt administration apparently was trying to conciliate business interests when the textile strike developed. Raymond Moley, close adviser to the president, was asserting that "interpreters" would dissipate fears of business. He, himself, has been picturing the administration as a conservative one, and has been outlining the various acts of the administration to prove his contention.

But the textile strike brought to a focus the crux of the evolutionary processes in the United States.

Either collective bargaining was or was not upheld by the administration. Then the issue came to a climax. The president openly and tactily declared for it. Openly, when the president told a press conference he considered it a vital part of the NRA. Tactily, the powerful Aluminum Company of America agreed to accede to it.

Newspaper observers close to happenings say they could see no alternative to the president's decision. But the administration is weakening itself, they believe, by its constant endeavor to please both sides and giving in a little to each without any definite determination of policy. Thus events themselves force the issues and the decisions. And the country is governed by expediency.

Whether business men like to hear this or not, newspaper men are asking:

"How far left will the president be pushed?"

The question will be decided on how strong the opposition is to the trend. The stronger the opposition, the farther to the left the president will be pushed, news observers say.

Business—except in certain old-established groups—realize the trend. Business would be willing to go ahead if the president would chart a course. The five billion dollars that banks could lend soon would find employment (bankers say) if the president would say: "Here are our plans. We shall go as far as this."

But can he say that? Hasn't compromise already lost him the golden opportunity? Some close observers insist that is the case.

Newspaper men report to this writer that many persons are drifting toward communistic ranks—and toward anybody with a fantastic scheme.

The terrible attack on the American Federation of Labor and its own archaic direction are breaking down the only conservative organization with which business actually can deal, these newspaper observers say. Francis J. Gorman, leader of the textile workers, may prove a blessing in disguise to employers. He may be the revitalizing force in the A. F. of L., thus making it the bulwark against the communists. It has not been.

That apparently is the belief of the administration—but many manufacturers do not see it that way. And strife increases.

NATIONALING THE GUARD

It is certain that if labor gains power in the United States, the National Guard will be nationalized. It will be part of the federal army.

Labor leaders assert that "the calling of the National Guard to protect strike breakers" is a violation of rights.

And the arming of deputies and company police also will stop — if labor gets into control.

The number of deaths this year, through shooting by such sources, is appalling.

EQUALIZATION

Movement of textile mills from New England to the south may halt when the textile strike has been settled.

Low wages in the south may begin to disappear.

Evidently Big Business does not consider this a "calamity". Several persons have told this writer that, with the increased wages and the larger buying power, the south will become the geratest potential market in the United States. With its increase in prosperity, wages likely are to continue rising.

The same processes led to the hey-day of the great industrial areas of the north.

TODAY Is The Day

By CLARK KINNAIRD Copyright 1934 Central Press

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 12.

The World War Day By Day—An Australian—New Zealand expedition lopped off another German possession; New Guinea.

Germany wasn't attempting to use her navy to save her colonies. The Kaiser was holding the fleet in check, aiming to avoid conflict until his mine-layers and submarines had weakened the strength of the British Navy, until the strain of a close blockade had begun to tell on the superior enemy fleet and perhaps provided a chance for a surprise stroke, and until the conquest of Britain's Allies on land had made her position more difficult.

The defect of this strategy, as Germany immediately learned, was that it involved the abandonment of her foreign trade and reduced the possibility of her interference with the sea-borne supplies of the Allies.

However, she could and did still make some potent thrusts upon the sea. On this date the Russian cruiser Pallada was sunk by a U-boat with the loss of 568 lives. Next day the British submarine E9 sank the German cruiser Hela off Heligoland. Simultaneously, the lone wolf cruiser Emden carried out raids in the Bay of Bengal. She sank the Indus and Lovat, two troop transports; and captured the Kambinga and took it along to carry her prisoners.

Her commander, Karl von Mueller, was writing his name imperishably into the history of the sea with his chivalrous bravery and superb seamanship.

The exploits of this and the two or three other effective German commerce raiders attracted attention because they were the exceptions to the rule. The British, on the other hand, were able to capture such German merchantmen as ventured on the sea without difficulty. On the whole English foreign trade was unimpaired. British factories were even turning out products for German use! Goods sold to Swiss, Dutch and other neutral buyers found its way into Germany.

Sept. 12, 1818—Richard Gatling was born in Hertford county, N. C. He became one of the greatest American inventors and remained one of the least known. When he was 43 he evolved the first rapid-fire revolving field piece, the Gatling gun, forerunner of the machine-gun of today. It was first used by the Federals in the War Between the States against the forces of Gatling's own South and was employed in nearly all European countries before he died. It was capable of firing 350 to 1200 shot a minute up to 1½ miles.

However, it was only one of his noteworthy inventions, and most of the others were of peaceful intent. He developed the wheat-drill, a hemp-breaking machine, a motor-plow. He probably did more than any other man to secure the wise adoption of drill husbandry in this country, and ranks with Jethro Tull as a revolutionizer of agriculture.

Sept. 12, 1866—The chorus girl, the stage-door johnny and the world of illusion called "Broadway," were born. The Black Crook had its premiere, revealing 100 lissom American girls, the first to be "glorified" in theatrical entertainment.

Sept. 12, 1892—The fatal combination of chorus girl and automobile was ready to be born. Charles E. Duryea successfully operated, in the streets of Springfield, Mass., a horseless carriage, produced in the shop that became the country's first regular automobile factory. It was a one-cylinder car.

This was not, of course, America's first automobile. In 1866, Henry A. House used a steam car constructed by his brother and himself to speed along Connecticut roads at 5 miles an hour. Owners of scared horses immediately began agitating for a law against the use of the public highways by such contraptions!

THE BORROWERS

It is strange but they never have borrowed a thing
Such as lemons, or butter, card tables or string.
They go their own way and they let us go ours.
And she never has asked us for just a few flowers
We speak when we meet, but what more can you do
When your neighbors so nicely get on without you?

—Somtimes they have parties. We see the cars there.
But they never have asked us to lend them a chair.
With dishes a-plenty they must be stocked up
For they never have borrowed a saucer or cup.
They've lived here a year but to us they're unknown.
For they never have borrowed a thing that we own.

I suppose much of friendship 'tis vain to expect
From a method of living so strictly correct.
For such perfect behavior builds surely with time,
An invisible wall over which you can't climb.
Until each very gladly both borrows and lends.
They may be good neighbors, but seldom good friends.

WELCOME ERIE CONFERENCE METHODISTS

NEW CASTLE is gratified to be able today to extend a sincere welcome to the host of Methodists who are gathered here for the sessions of the Erie Conference.

It is 21 years since this conference has been in New Castle, and this is the first time that the Epworth congregation has been the host. With the facilities of the magnificent new East Side church, and the co-operation of all congregations of the denomination in New Castle, there is every indication of an exceptionally pleasing stay in this city for the guests.

New Castle will receive an inspiration from the visit, as well as those who are in personal attendance at the various meetings. The presence of such a large body of consecrated Christian men and women is one that will leave a lasting impression of the finest kind.

It is the hope of the city at large, as well as that of the members of the denomination here that their stay in New Castle shall be pleasant and profitable, as well as the program of meetings be those of genuine helpfulness.

Welcome Erie Conference Methodists—pastors and laymen—and Bishop Edgar Blake, leader!

STUDYING THE STATE'S PRISONS

A committee authorized by the state legislature at the last session is preparing to make a thorough study of Pennsylvania prisons. Hearings are to be held following the special session.

The recent outbreak at the Eastern State penitentiary shows definitely there is room for improvement in the system. But the same thing may be said of the penal institutions in any other state. No perfect system yet has been devised.

Graterford was considered a model prison, yet there was a serious revolt at that penitentiary.

The probers may discover flaws which can be remedied, but the prison problem will continue to be a problem until the nature of criminals is changed.

ADVANTAGES OF LIVING IN U. S.

An American newspaper man, just returned to the United States after a world tour of some months' duration, announces that he is "even more sharply conscious of the advantages of living in America" than he has been after more than a dozen other summers in Europe or the Orient.

Then he proceeds to enumerate the advantages, some of which are superior plumbing, physical comfort in trains, hotels and homes and a general cleanliness and efficiency.

He lists the ills from which he knows his own land is suffering—drought, crop failures, unemployment, labor troubles, poverty, hunger, gangsters. Whatever they are, they are worse elsewhere. And to combat American ills there are "resolutions, kindliness, resourcefulness, enterprise and strength."

"There is no pathos or failure of hope in the outward aspects of America, nor in the feeling of its people, as you see or sense them freshly after a long absence. It is an affirmative and vital spirit that meets you in New York, that accompanies you on the train, that rests with you in a typical large American city."

Just lately Americans who have not been away from the country have felt there was a new wave of gloom and fear washing over us. It is good to know that this is not apparent to the home-owner. That wave of gloom is just one more thing that isn't as bad as it seems.

A CITATION FOR WOMANLY VALOR

Like a resurging theme in the tragedy of the Morro Castle runs the heroism of the women passengers.

In the stark horror of the moment when, according to the survivors, discipline seemed to be the first deserter, it was the women who helped others get into their lifebelts, spoke cheerful good-byes to passengers at the lifeboats or wished them well when the plunged into the ghostly dark.

A woman's lifebelt was snatched from her by a man. A woman called to her two sons departing in a lifeboat, "See you in the hotel." They were saved; she was drowned. Women holding to life preservers sustained exhausted men. Women worked frantically to make the lifebelts fit small children. Women exhorted swimmers who had almost reached the limit of their ability to stay afloat. Women sang to calm the fearful or rattled on in aimless conversation to take the minds of fellow passengers from a common peril.

Whether or not the investigation into the causes of the strange disaster may reveal anything of dishonor among men, the amazing first person stories that have stirred the pulses of readers since Saturday have established one indisputable truth:

The women, at least, weren't quitters.

SINCERITY

Mighty insincere, aren't you?

But the protest that you stand by certain principles.

You put them aside when they interfere with what you want to do.

Why don't you live up to the samples you display?

But you like popularity, you want to be known as a good sport, and so if it strikes your fancy, you let down the bars when opportunity presents.

At times you feel ashamed of your duplicity and you think you are fooling people—but you are not.

Your comelion-like changes are too frequent, too clearly discernible to deceive those with whom you associate to any great discernible to deceive with whom you associate to any great extent.

Your deception is known by each of the factions whose principles you espouse when in their presence.

There are many persons who are known to be contrary, contumacious and hard set in their conviction.

But such persons are to be preferred to the wishy-washy individual.

The positive persons can be relied upon to support the principles they assume to advocate, and they make strong friends among those who appreciate real worth and fearlessness.

All Of Us

THE KIDDER

THE KIDDER is a fellow who can Dish It Out—but can't Take It.

Occasionally you find a Kidder who can take it, but he is always one whose kidding is gentler, more humorous, with far less malice than the ordinary run-of-the-mill kidding.

The average Kidder has a mean streak in him. Or perhaps it's a hurt, disappointed, baffled streak. (There really isn't as much difference between the two as we sometimes think.)

He likes to feel superior, and he has learned that the easiest way, for him, to accomplish this is to make the other fellow feel cheap. He picks on some all-too-human weakness in the other—some pride, some little folly, some modesty, some ridiculous error—and lays it before the multitude. Sometimes he is a lone wolf and prefers to see his victim writhe in secret. But usually he wants an audience. The bigger the audience, the greater the success of the joke, the deeper sinks the barb into the poor devil who is being kidded.

The Telephone Kidder is a particularly delightful type. He calls you up and tells you this is the express office and they have a package for you—and after he has you standing squarely on the trap he springs it and lets you dangle, while he rings off. . . . The Kidder starts by teasing the small boy who has patches on his pants. He goes on to organizing Snipe Hunts. And finally becomes the fellow in the livery stable who sends the town idiot to the hardware store for a left-handed monkey wrench or a can of striped paint. . . . He lets air out of your tires and knows a hundred cunning ways of deflating you, as well. (So far I have never encountered a woman who was a kidder and I don't believe I ever shall.)

You may guess from these few remarks on the subject that the writer of this article doesn't like Kidding. You are right, he doesn't. It is his opinion that Kidding has spoiled more dispositions, toughened more sensitive boys and girls and made them hard and suspicious, stultified more ambition, and ruined more idealism and fresh young effort than any other force in the world.

And if that means I haven't a sense of humor, very well, then, I haven't. . . . Because I'd rather not have any at all than have one and allow its curdle take to Kidding as a way of getting a laugh out of life.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

FACILIS DISCENSUS AVERNIS

While ex-Secretary of the Treasurer Andrew Mellon is being sued at the direction of the present administration in Washington for an alleged fraudulent return of income, notwithstanding his honorable record, it is interesting to have recalled something about his father, Thomas Mellon.

Andrew Mellon has as a life motto, "The smoothest way is not the way upward." It is the motto handed down to him by his father.

That father's career in many a way was the mold from which the successes of the more widely distinguished son are cast almost in exactness.

Thomas Mellon, starting in to study law at twenty-one "working himself through," showed from that start the self-same spirit of stalwart independence that lately has been manifest in the stand that Son Andrew has taken on every issue coming naturally within the province of his official duties.

It happened that in almost the first case that came before the elder Mellon, when early after his admission to the Bar, he had been chosen for a Pennsylvania judgeship, there appeared a local political leader who assumed proprietary airs. The case ended with the jury's verdict in the gentleman's favor. But that did not suffice. Extra allowances were asked—demanded. The court demurred. The attorney stormed. The judge's "duty was prescribed"—this was a swagger: there must be obedience—just that. That there could be hesitance seemed incomprehensible.

"It is necessary, your honor, that the court act at once—will you?" was the dictatorial call.

"Certainly," was the response. "The court sets the verdict aside. Allowance excessive. Call the next case, Mr. Clerk."

At the end of his judgeship Thos. Mellon did not go on practicing law. His clients clammered. "A business career is happier—busier," he said dismissingly—and there was then founded the business that has since developed until his family successors are preeminent in banking and industry, to the point that men with opportunities for making intelligent estimates do not list the great fortunes of America without starring the name of Mellon.

A Thomas Mellon autograph letter was in the collection of Edmund Clarence Stedman—celebrated as Wall Street's Banker Poet—its last line reading: "There is no law nor any man worth respect, or worth any thought, unless conceived and operating on-the-level, straight and fair."

Andrew took the way upward.

"Interpreters" for New Deal But Issues Do Not Stay "Put" Hand Forced by Strikes

New York Bureau
Central Press
245 E. 45th St.

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 12. — The Roosevelt administration apparently was trying to conciliate business interests when the textile strike developed. Raymond Moley, close adviser to the president, was asserting that "interpreters" would dissipate fears of business. He, himself, has been picturing the administration as a conservative one, and has been outlining the various acts of the administration to prove his contention.

But the textile strike brought to a focus the crux of the evolutionary processes in the United States.

Either collective bargaining was or was not upheld by the administration. Then the issue came to a climax. The president openly and tactily declared for it. Openly, when the president told a press conference he considered it a vital part of the NRA. Tactily, the powerful Aluminum Company of America agreed to accede to it.

Newspaper observers close to happenings say they could see no alternative to the president's decision. But the administration is weakening itself, they believe, by its constant endeavor to please both sides and giving in a little to each without any definite determination of policy. Thus events themselves force the issues and the decisions. And the country is governed by expediency.

Whether business men like to hear this or not, newspaper men are asking:

"How far left will the president be pushed?"

The question will be decided on how strong the opposition is to the trend. The stronger the opposition, the farther to the left the president will be pushed, news observers say.

Business—except in certain old-established groups—realize the trend. Business would be willing to go ahead if the president would chart a course. The five billion dollars that banks could lend soon would find employment (bankers say) if the president would say: "Here are our plans. We shall go as far as this."

But can he say that? Hasn't compromise already lost him the golden opportunity? Some close observers insist that is the case.

Newspaper men report to this writer that many persons are drifting toward communistic ranks—and toward anybody with a fantastic scheme.

The terrible attack on the American Federation of Labor and its own archaic direction are breaking down the only conservative organization with which business actually can deal, these newspaper observers say. Francis J. Gorman, leader of the textile workers, may prove a blessing in disguise to employers. He may be the revitalizing force in the A. F. of L., thus making it the bulwark against the communists. It has not been.

That apparently is the belief of the administration—but many manufacturers do not see it that way. And strife increases.

NATIONALING THE GUARD

It is certain that if labor gains power in the United States, the National Guard will be nationalized. It will be part of the federal army.

Labor leaders assert that "the calling of the National Guard to protect strike breakers" is a violation of rights.

And the arming of deputies and company police also will stop — if labor gets into control.

The number of deaths this year, through shooting by such sources, is appalling.

EQUALIZATION

Movement of textile mills from New England to the south may halt when the textile strike has been settled.

Low wages in the south may begin to disappear.

Evidently Big Business does not consider this a "calamity". Several persons have told this writer that, with the increased wages and the larger buying power, the south will become the geratest potential market in the United States. With its increase in prosperity, wages likely are to continue rising.

The same processes led to the hey-day of the great industrial areas of the north.

TODAY Is The Day

By CLARK KINNAIRD Copyright 1934 Central Press

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 12.

The World War Day By Day—An Australian—New Zealand expedition lopped off another German possession; New Guinea.

Germany wasn't attempting to use her navy to save her colonies. The Kaiser was holding the fleet in check, aiming to avoid conflict until his mine-layers and submarines had weakened the strength of the British Navy, until the strain of a close blockade had begun to tell on the superior enemy fleet and perhaps provided a chance for a surprise stroke, and until the conquest of Britain's Allies on land had made her position more difficult.

The defect of this strategy, as Germany immediately learned, was that it involved the abandonment of her foreign trade and reduced the possibility of her interference with the sea-borne supplies of the Allies.

However, she could and did still make some potent thrusts upon the sea. On this date the Russian cruiser Pallada was sunk by a U-boat with the loss of 568 lives. Next day the British submarine E9 sank the German cruiser Hela off Heligoland. Simultaneously, the lone wolf cruiser Emden carried out raids in the Bay of Bengal. She sank the Indus and Lovat, two troop transports; and captured the Kambinga and took it along to carry her prisoners.

Her commander, Karl von Mueller, was writing his name imperishably into the history of the sea with his chivalrous bravery and superb seamanship.

The exploits of this and the two or three other effective German commerce raiders attracted attention because they were the exceptions to the rule. The British, on the other hand, were able to capture such German merchantmen as ventured on the sea without difficulty. On the whole English foreign trade was unimpaired. British factories were even turning out products for German use! Goods sold to Swiss, Dutch and other neutral buyers found its way into Germany.

Great Days, Sept. 12, 1787—New York ratified the Constitution, became the 11th state, exactly 186 years to the day after Henry Hudson began his explorations of it. Motto: Excelsior (Higher). Flower: Rose.

It was first used by the Federals in the War Between the States against the forces of Gatling's own South and was employed in nearly all European countries before he died. It was capable of firing 350 to 1200 shot a minute up to 1½ miles.

However, it was only one of his noteworthy inventions, and most of the others were of peaceful intent. He developed the wheat-drill, a hemp-breaking machine, a motor plow. He probably did more than any other man to secure the wise adoption of drill husbandry in this country, and ranks with Jethro Tull as a revolutionizer of agriculture.

Sept. 12, 1866—The chorus girl, the stage-door johnny and the world of illusion called "Broadway," were born. The Black Crook had its premiere, revealing 100 lissom American girls, the first to be "glorified" in theatrical entertainment.

Sept. 12, 1892—The fatal combination of chorus girl and automobile was ready to be born. Charles E. Duryea successfully operated, in the streets of Springfield, Mass., a horseless carriage, produced in the shop that became the country's first regular automobile factory. It was a one-cylinder car.

This was not, of course, America's first automobile. In 1866, Henry A. House used a steam car constructed by his brother and himself to speed along Connecticut roads at 5 miles an hour. Owners of scared horses immediately began agitating for a law against the use of the public highways by such contraptions!

Penney Department Store Will Open At 9 O'clock Thursday

Occupies Choice Washington Street Site; Building Is Modernized

One of the most important forward steps in the recent retail history of New Castle will be marked tomorrow morning with the opening of the new J. C. Penney department store on Washington street. The doors of this new addition to the New Castle shopping district will be opened to the public at 9 a. m.

Last minute touches were being given today to the interior redecoration of the building which was formerly occupied by the F. & W. Grand company. A spacious sales balcony has been constructed, a new store front added and the entire plan brought up-to-date in every detail.

J. C. PENNEY
Founder of the J. C. Penney Co.

Expect Throng of Shoppers.

Throngs of shoppers are expected to attend the opening event tomorrow morning. The entire 11,000 square feet of floor space which will be devoted to selling has been laid out with extreme care to provide the greatest possible ease and convenience for customers. Aisles are wide, departments are well arranged and well located.

Among the well stocked departments the customer will find: Women's and misses' ready-to-wear, women's and children's shoes, junior misses' apparel, infants' wear, women's and children's hosiery, women's accessories, corsets, toilet articles and cosmetics, millinery, notions, piece goods and domestics, men's and boys' clothing, hats, caps, shoes and furnishings and work clothes.

EARL C. SAMS
President of the J. C. Penney Co.

A. B. Naslund has been appointed manager of the new store and will have complete supervision of all matters dealing with the merchandising policy. Mr. Naslund comes here from Ashtabula, O. He has made an enviable reputation as a merchant there and has always taken an active part in civic activity.

Founded In 1902.

The Penney company was founded in a tiny store at Kemmerer, Wyo., in 1902. The company now operates nearly 1500 stores whose sales volume last year amounted to more than $178,000,000. Observers of department store operations in this country attribute much of the Penney company's success to its rigid adherence to its original plan of vesting full merchandising control of each store in the hands of a local manager who is in position to study the wants and needs of the people of his own community and effect great savings for them in buying through one central buying department. Then, too, the Penney company has steadfastly refused to be stampeded into the recent trend toward storekeeping frills and extravagances which add to the overhead of any retail business.

Faithful adherence to this long established principle is one of the chief concerns of Earl C. Sams, president and active head of the entire Penney organization.

Joining the Penney company as a clerk in the first little store in Kemmerer, Wyo., in 1907, Mr. Sams rose steadily through the ranks until he became president in 1917. His deep knowledge of human nature and of its needs—as well as his sincere belief in the Golden Rule as applied to business—was gained and fortified during those early years of intimate, personal contact across the counter with all kinds and types of people.

The growth of the Penney company, and the very enviable position that it occupies in every state of the Union, is in no small measure to be attributed to the leadership of Mr. Sams; the merchandising sense and inspiration that he has always been able to impart to his associates.

The Governor Says

What Is Going On In Harrisburg—And Why

By GIFFORD PINCHOT
Governor of Pennsylvania

The General Assembly meets in extraordinary session at noon today (Wednesday, September 12) to deal with unemployment relief.

I called the session because I had to. The Federal authorities refused to continue to bear the cost of unemployment relief in Pennsylvania without definite action toward meeting a share of the cost by the Pennsylvania Legislature.

The Federal Relief Administration has already accepted calling the session as evidence of Pennsylvania's good intentions to meet its demand and has given us $10,500,000 for September relief needs. What it will do for us for the rest of the year depends on what the Legislature does in the next few days. We have nothing in sight for October as yet.

It is my earnest hope that the Legislature will act promptly, adjourn, and go home. I believe it is yours too.

I did not include in the call much legislation that Pennsylvania needs for the good reason that all the legislation that I might have included has now been promised by both the Democratic and the Republican parties. Consequently, no matter who wins this fall, at the next session regular beginning in January substantially all of the legislation I might have included in the call will be put on Pennsylvania's statute books. If not, the party responsible will go up Salt River.

I refer, of course, to minimum wage legislation, abolition of company-paid deputy sheriffs, improvement of the Workmen's Compensation Laws, wiping out of sweatshops, and so on. But to include these things in the call would have got us nowhere, because it is perfectly clear that the extra session would not have enacted them. For one reason, that session is composed of the same membership which defeated them before. And for another reason, with these things in, the session would be jammed with politics. The election is only just around the corner.

In a statement issued last Monday, I said that wide open session would be a political bear garden—Bear, b-e-a-r. Most of the newspapers called it a beer garden—B-e-e-r. Perhaps the journalists who wrote the stories knew more about beers than they did about bears. Or maybe they didn't.

If the Republican Party had not pledged itself to this social legislation, as the Democratic Party had already done, I would have included every item of it in the call. I gave definite notice in advance to that effect where it would do the most good.

Of course I shall be abused by those who wanted a wide open session at which the real cause of the session—relief—would be all but forgotten in political jockeying for advantage in the November election.

Almost everyone agrees that no sound social legislation could come out of an atmosphere super-charged with political hatreds and struggles for political capital.

It is a matter of real satisfaction to me, and I hope to the people of Pennsylvania also, to know—as I retire from public office—that most of the things for which I have fought are now pledged in both the great party platforms.

Of course I wish these things could all have been enacted into law during my administration. I would have been prouder than a peacock if they could. But it should not be forgotten that in this administration more social legislation has already been enacted than the most hopeful of us even hoped for.

I mean approval of the Child Labor Amendment, abolition of unfair injunctions in labor disputes, and the yellow dog contract, to pensions for the aged and the blind, and many other things in addition to roads for the farmers and keeping two million Pennsylvanians from starving without involving the State in a huge debt. Hard as the times are we have more than a little to help keep us moderately cheerful.

Penney Department Store Will Open At 9 O'clock Thursday

Occupies Choice Washington Street Site; Building Is Modernized

One of the most important forward steps in the recent retail history of New Castle will be marked tomorrow morning with the opening of the new J. C. Penney department store on Washington street. The doors of this new addition to the New Castle shopping district will be opened to the public at 9 a. m.

Last minute touches were being given today to the interior redecoration of the building which was formerly occupied by the F. & W. Grand company. A spacious sales balcony has been constructed, a new store front added and the entire plan brought up-to-date in every detail.

J. C. PENNEY
Founder of the J. C. Penney Co.

Expect Throng of Shoppers.

Throngs of shoppers are expected to attend the opening event tomorrow morning. The entire 11,000 square feet of floor space which will be devoted to selling has been laid out with extreme care to provide the greatest possible ease and convenience for customers. Aisles are wide, departments are well arranged and well located.

Among the well stocked departments the customer will find: Women's and misses' ready-to-wear, women's and children's shoes, junior misses' apparel, infants' wear, women's and children's hosiery, women's accessories, corsets, toilet articles and cosmetics, millinery, notions, piece goods and domestics, men's and boys' clothing, hats, caps, shoes and furnishings and work clothes.

EARL C. SAMS
President of the J. C. Penney Co.

A. B. Naslund has been appointed manager of the new store and will have complete supervision of all matters dealing with the merchandising policy. Mr. Naslund comes here from Ashtabula, O. He has made an enviable reputation as a merchant there and has always taken an active part in civic activity.

Founded In 1902.

The Penney company was founded in a tiny store at Kemmerer, Wyo., in 1902. The company now operates nearly 1500 stores whose sales volume last year amounted to more than $178,000,000. Observers of department store operations in this country attribute much of the Penney company's success to its rigid adherence to its original plan of vesting full merchandising control of each store in the hands of a local manager who is in position to study the wants and needs of the people of his own community and effect great savings for them in buying through one central buying department. Then, too, the Penney company has steadfastly refused to be stampeded into the recent trend toward storekeeping frills and extravagances which add to the overhead of any retail business.

Faithful adherence to this long established principle is one of the chief concerns of Earl C. Sams, president and active head of the entire Penney organization.

Joining the Penney company as a clerk in the first little store in Kemmerer, Wyo., in 1907, Mr. Sams rose steadily through the ranks until he became president in 1917. His deep knowledge of human nature and of its needs—as well as his sincere belief in the Golden Rule as applied to business—was gained and fortified during those early years of intimate, personal contact across the counter with all kinds and types of people.

The growth of the Penney company, and the very enviable position that it occupies in every state of the Union, is in no small measure to be attributed to the leadership of Mr. Sams; the merchandising sense and inspiration that he has always been able to impart to his associates.

The Governor Says

What Is Going On In Harrisburg— And Why

By GIFFORD PINCHOT
Governor of Pennsylvania

The General Assembly meets in extraordinary session at noon today (Wednesday, September 12) to deal with unemployment relief.

I called the session because I had to. The Federal authorities refused to continue to bear the cost of unemployment relief in Pennsylvania without definite action toward meeting a share of the cost by the Pennsylvania Legislature.

The Federal Relief Administration has already accepted calling the session as evidence of Pennsylvania's good intentions to meet its demand and has given us $10,500,000 for September relief needs. What it will do for us for the rest of the year depends on what the Legislature does in the next few days. We have nothing in sight for October as yet.

It is my earnest hope that the Legislature will act promptly, adjourn, and go home. I believe it is yours too.

I did not include in the call much legislation that Pennsylvania needs for the good reason that all the legislation that I might have included has now been promised by both the Democratic and the Republican parties. Consequently, no matter who wins this fall, at the next session regular beginning in January substantially all of the legislation I might have included in the call will be put on Pennsylvania's statute books. If not, the party responsible will go up Salt River.

I refer, of course, to minimum wage legislation, abolition of company-paid deputy sheriffs, improvement of the Workmen's Compensation Laws, wiping out of sweatshops, and so on. But to include these things in the call would have got us nowhere, because it is perfectly clear that the extra session would not have enacted them. For one reason, that session is composed of the same membership which defeated them before. And for another reason, with these things in, the session would be jammed with politics. The election is only just around the corner.

In a statement issued last Monday, I said that wide open session would be a political bear garden—Bear, b-e-a-r. Most of the newspapers called it a beer garden—B-e-e-r. Perhaps the journalists who wrote the stories knew more about beers than they did about bears. Or maybe they didn't.

If the Republican Party had not pledged itself to this social legislation, as the Democratic Party had already done, I would have included every item of it in the call. I gave definite notice in advance to that effect where it would do the most good.

Of course I shall be abused by those who wanted a wide open session at which the real cause of the session—relief—would be all but forgotten in political jockeying for advantage in the November election.

Almost everyone agrees that no sound social legislation could come out of an atmosphere super-charged with political hatreds and struggles for political capital.

It is a matter of real satisfaction to me, and I hope to the people of Pennsylvania also, to know—as I retire from public office—that most of the things for which I have fought are now pledged in both the great party platforms.

Of course I wish these things could all have been enacted into law during my administration. I would have been prouder than a peacock if they could. But it should not be forgotten that in this administration more social legislation has already been enacted than the most hopeful of us even hoped for.

I mean approval of the Child Labor Amendment, abolition of unfair injunctions in labor disputes, and the yellow dog contract, to pensions for the aged and the blind, and many other things in addition to roads for the farmers and keeping two million Pennsylvanians from starving without involving the State in a huge debt. Hard as the times are we have more than a little to help keep us moderately cheerful.

Students Can Enroll Until September 24

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 12—Although registration of students for the eighty-third academic year at Westminster College started Monday and classes begin on Friday morning, students may enroll until September 24, President R. F. Galbreath announced today.

The fact that all students are given 10 days after the start of classes in which to rearrange schedules without penalty makes it possible to register as late as 10 days after classes start, it was pointed out. Work missed because of late registration, however, must be made up under direction of professors of the courses.

You're Wrong If You Believe—Cleopatra, that is, the most famous of the Cleopatras—for all Egyptian queens of her dynasty bore that name—was an Egyptian, and that she died from the bite of an asp. As a matter of fact, her father, Auletes, was the illegimate son of Ptolemy VII, and all the Ptolemies were Greeks. She didn't die of a snake bite, as Shakespeare and the movies pretend, but of poison.

Textile Strikers Preparing For Greater Battle

Tighten Lines As Ultimatum On Arbitration Is Not Accepted

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Promised "all possible assistance" from the 108 affiliates of the American Federation of Labor, the striking cotton textile workers today made preparations for the worst, determined to remain idle until the manufacturers grant improved working conditions.

New orders to "tighten the lines and stand pat" were sent to all divisions of the Cotton Textile Workers of America by its vice-president, Francis J. Gorman. They were drawn after the manufacturers refused Gorman's proposal for neutral arbitration which the president's board of inquiry had him extend another 24 hours. The extension expired at 6 p. m. yesterday.

Hope that the workers and the manufacturers might be able to settle their grievances without extending the strike indefinitely was given when Gorman intimated he would consider any proposal offered by the board. His own plan called for an agreement with the manufacturers to allow the board arbitrate the strike and both labor and the mill owners accept its decision. Apparently the stumbling block to this was Gorman's insistance that all mills be closed during the arbitration period.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L., called off a scheduled meeting here of the heads of all affiliates of his organization to discuss relief for the strikers when most of these organizations pledged support. He notified every affiliate to give all possible assistance immediately pending the organization's meeting in San Francisco October 4.

Repaint Your Home Through the National Housing Act

Repair your home. Improve. Paint it. If you don't have the money—borrow it.

Let us suppose that your house which you own is in need of repainting, the roof leaks and is beyond patching—a complete new roof or other improvements are needed. You have not had the cash to make these repairs and you have not been able to borrow money on a satisfactory basis, if at all.

What can you do about it now?

Under the National Housing Act you can go to a responsible local contractor and secure a written estimate of the cost of the work you wish done, together with specifications. Let us say it amounts to $500. You take this written estimate to (1) your local bank, (2) building and loan association, or (3) other lending institution and offer your note for $500 to finance it. If you are considered a satisfactory credit risk and the estimate is reasonable the note is accepted and the money will be readily available.

The lending institution either makes the loan direct to you or pays the contractor on completion of the work, as the Housing Administrator may regulate. YOU repay the institution which holds your note in equal monthly installments over a period of time as the Administrator may prescribe. These installments include interest at a reasonable rate, but exclude all padded "financing charges."

Textile Strikers Preparing For Greater Battle

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Promised "all possible assistance" from the 108 affiliates of the American Federation of Labor, the striking cotton textile workers today made preparations for the worst, determined to remain idle until the manufacturers grant improved working conditions.

New orders to "tighten the lines and stand pat" were sent to all divisions of the Cotton Textile Workers of America by its vice-president, Francis J. Gorman. They were drawn after the manufacturers refused Gorman's proposal for neutral arbitration which the president's board of inquiry had him extend another 24 hours. The extension expired at 6 p. m. yesterday.

Hope that the workers and the manufacturers might be able to settle their grievances without extending the strike indefinitely was given when Gorman intimated he would consider any proposal offered by the board. His own plan called for an agreement with the manufacturers to allow the board arbitrate the strike and both labor and the mill owners accept its decision. Apparently the stumbling block to this was Gorman's insistance that all mills be closed during the arbitration period.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L., called off a scheduled meeting here of the heads of all affiliates of his organization to discuss relief for the strikers when most of these organizations pledged support. He notified every affiliate to give all possible assistance immediately pending the organization's meeting in San Francisco October 4.

Repaint Your Home Through the National Housing Act

Repair your home. Improve. Paint it. If you don't have the money—borrow it.

Let us suppose that your house which you own is in need of repainting, the roof leaks and is beyond patching—a complete new roof or other improvements are needed. You have not had the cash to make these repairs and you have not been able to borrow money on a satisfactory basis, if at all.

What can you do about it now?

Under the National Housing Act you can go to a responsible local contractor and secure a written estimate of the cost of the work you wish done, together with specifications. Let us say it amounts to $500. You take this written estimate to (1) your local bank, (2) building and loan association, or (3) other lending institution and offer your note for $500 to finance it. If you are considered a satisfactory credit risk and the estimate is reasonable the note is accepted and the money will be readily available.

The lending institution either makes the loan direct to you or pays the contractor on completion of the work, as the Housing Administrator may regulate. YOU repay the institution which holds your note in equal monthly installments over a period of time as the Administrator may prescribe. These installments include interest at a reasonable rate, but exclude all padded "financing charges."

Dr. Gates Believes Daughter Is Safe

Ridicules Theories That Daughter Is Lost In Wilds Of Wyoming

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—Dr. Thomas S. Gates, president of the University of Pennsylvania, today ridiculed theories emanating from the West that his missing daughter, Miss Virginia Ewing Gates, is either lost in the trackless wilds of Wyoming or "seeking romance".

Despite the fact that nothing has been heard of the young debutante since she disappeared August 14 from a dude ranch near Pinedale, Wyo., Dr. Gates continues to reiterate his conviction that she is "safe and will be coming along home one of these days."

Members of western searching parties, according to word reaching here, are inclined to believe Miss Gates had become lost in the trackless hills surrounding the isolated ranch. Friends here denied both the kidnap and the romance theories.

"No threatening letters or ransom notes of any kind have been received," a spokesman for the family declared emphatically, "and as for Virginia going West to forget an old love affair, that is nonsense. She went away of her own accord because she likes the outdoors and riding.

"We feel she just decided to go off on her own for a lark. She has probably read the stories of other girls who have disappeared, found themselves jobs, and got in touch with their families when they made good."

Break Window In North Mill Street

True Bills Returned Against Roxie Long

Virginia Long Also Indicted In Connection With Conspiracy Cases

Roxie Long was indicted by the grand jury today on five charges of obtaining property by false pretense, and on five charges of conspiracy to defraud. In the latter cases, Virginia Long, his wife, was indicted with him, but "not a true bill" was returned as to Isaac Riston.

Four others who were charged with conspiracy to defraud in the information have entered pleas. They were Anthony Adisey, Jake Exler, Louis Cardone and Abraham J. Coury.

The goods which Long is alleged to have secured by false pretense were obtained from the following persons: New Castle Milling Company, $52.50; New Castle Grocery Company, $68.75; Bloom-Rosemblum-Kline Company, $59.89; Abe Goldberg, $92.10 and Premium Supply Company, $110.02.

It is alleged that the goods were taken to a storeroom in the seventh ward. Checks for payment were issued on the Wampum National Bank, but it was found that they were worthless. The goods were removed from the storeroom before they could be attached.

A true bill was also returned against Paul J. Cartwright of Ellwood City, charged with failing to stop and render assistance. At night during a fog it is alleged that he ran against a lamp post, knocking it down. It struck and injured Harry Summers. Cartwright claims that he did not know that Summers had been struck.

Other true bills returned were as follows: Commonwealth against D. J. Romisher, charged with embezzlement by agent of $436.92 from the Rocalene Refining Company.

Edward Shaffer and Earl Mallary, of Ellwood City, charged with setting up a gambling device.

Howard Zeigler, charged with a serious offense by a young woman.

In the case of Henry McNany, charged with aggravated assault and battery on Margaret McKelvie, not a true bill, was returned and the costs placed on the county.

Shapiro Resists Order In "Hold-Up"

Fails To Stick Up His Hands But Wallops Intruder At South Side Store

William Burns who gave his residence in police court today as Southern Illinois was sentenced to serve 30 days in the county jail as the result of an episode at the store of Abraham Shapiro, Moravia street last night. Burns was wounded about the head by a milk bottle wielded by Shapiro after Burns is alleged to have ordered Shapiro to "stick up" his hands.

According to Mr. Shapiro, Burns who is a cripple, came to his store last night and asked for money. Mr. Shapiro gave the man a small amount after which Burns thanked him.

Burns left but returned later and unannounced walked into living quarters where Mr. Shapiro was reading. Burns asked for more money. Shapiro reminded Burns he already had been helped.

According to Shapiro, Burns pointed something which Shapiro thought to be a knife and ordered him to "stick up" his hands.

Burns then landed a left to Shapiro's left eye. Shapiro seized an empty milk bottle and struck Burns on the head. The blow felled him. Shapiro then rained more blows on his head.

Police arrived and before Burns, who had been drinking, was placed in the patrol he struck Mr. Shapiro in the right eye. It was swollen and discolored this morning.

When Burns was taken to the police station it was necessary to call a doctor to take care of his head wounds. The mayor sentenced him to serve 30 days in the county jail.

Dr. Gates Believes Daughter Is Safe

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—Dr. Thomas S. Gates, president of the University of Pennsylvania, today ridiculed theories emanating from the West that his missing daughter, Miss Virginia Ewing Gates, is either lost in the trackless wilds of Wyoming or "seeking romance".

Despite the fact that nothing has been heard of the young debutante since she disappeared August 14 from a dude ranch near Pinedale, Wyo., Dr. Gates continues to reiterate his conviction that she is "safe and will be coming along home one of these days."

Members of western searching parties, according to word reaching here, are inclined to believe Miss Gates had become lost in the trackless hills surrounding the isolated ranch. Friends here denied both the kidnap and the romance theories.

"No threatening letters or ransom notes of any kind have been received," a spokesman for the family declared emphatically, "and as for Virginia going West to forget an old love affair, that is nonsense. She went away of her own accord because she likes the outdoors and riding.

"We feel she just decided to go off on her own for a lark. She has probably read the stories of other girls who have disappeared, found themselves jobs, and got in touch with their families when they made good."

Break Window In North Mill Street

City detectives, it is reported, are endeavoring to obtain some trace of the party who threw a large piece of concrete through the Emery store window in North Mill street, north of North street. It occurred around six a. m. Sunday according to the city detectives.

Smart Fall Outfit

Striped woolen material makes this smart fall fashion street outfit worn by Grace Bradley, one of the younger set of picture players It is a black and white knit with straight skirt. The youthful jumper laces with bright red woolen shoe strings, and the tailored felt hat also is bright red.

True Bills Returned Against Roxie Long

Virginia Long Also Indicted In Connection With Conspiracy Cases

Roxie Long was indicted by the grand jury today on five charges of obtaining property by false pretense, and on five charges of conspiracy to defraud. In the latter cases, Virginia Long, his wife, was indicted with him, but "not a true bill" was returned as to Isaac Riston.

Four others who were charged with conspiracy to defraud in the information have entered pleas. They were Anthony Adisey, Jake Exler, Louis Cardone and Abraham J. Coury.

The goods which Long is alleged to have secured by false pretense were obtained from the following persons: New Castle Milling Company, $52.50; New Castle Grocery Company, $68.75; Bloom-Rosemblum-Kline Company, $59.89; Abe Goldberg, $92.10 and Premium Supply Company, $110.02.

It is alleged that the goods were taken to a storeroom in the seventh ward. Checks for payment were issued on the Wampum National Bank, but it was found that they were worthless. The goods were removed from the storeroom before they could be attached.

A true bill was also returned against Paul J. Cartwright of Ellwood City, charged with failing to stop and render assistance. At night during a fog it is alleged that he ran against a lamp post, knocking it down. It struck and injured Harry Sumners. Cartwright claims that he did not know that Sumners had been struck.

Other true bills returned were as follows: Commonwealth against D. J. Romisher, charged with embezzlement by agent of $436.92 from the Rocalene Refining Company.

Edward Shaffer and Earl Mallary, of Ellwood City, charged with setting up a gambling device.

Howard Zeigler, charged with a serious offense by a young woman.

In the case of Henry McNany, charged with aggravated assault and battery on Margaret McKelvie, not a true bill, was returned and the costs placed on the county.

Shapiro Resists Order In "Hold-Up"

Fails To Stick Up His Hands But Wallops Intruder At South Side Store

William Burns who gave his residence in police court today as Southern Illinois was sentenced to serve 30 days in the county jail as the result of an episode at the store of Abraham Shapiro, Moravia street last night. Burns was wounded about the head by a milk bottle wielded by Shapiro after Burns is alleged to have ordered Shapiro to "stick up" his hands.

According to Mr. Shapiro, Burns who is a cripple, came to his store last night and asked for money. Mr. Shapiro gave the man a small amount after which Burns thanked him.

Burns left but returned later and unannounced walked into living quarters where Mr. Shapiro was reading. Burns asked for more money. Shapiro reminded Burns he already had been helped.

According to Shapiro, Burns pointed something which Shapiro thought to be a knife and ordered him to "stick up" his hands.

Burns then landed a left to Shapiro's left eye. Shapiro seized an empty milk bottle and struck Burns on the head. The blow felled him. Shapiro then rained more blows on his head.

Police arrived and before Burns, who had been drinking, was placed in the patrol he struck Mr. Shapiro in the right eye. It was swollen and discolored this morning.

When Burns was taken to the police station it was necessary to call a doctor to take care of his head wounds. The mayor sentenced him to serve 30 days in the county jail.

Woman Survivor Says Crew Was Not Efficient

Zelda Nathanson, 29, Pittsburgh, Says Morro Castle Crew Untrained

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 12.—Zelda Nathanson, 29, survivor of the Morro Castle disaster, today charged that an incompetent and inefficient crew contributed to making it one of the greatest sea tragedies in history.

Telling of how she played cards until early Saturday morning and then went to bed, Miss Nathanson said:

"I was awakened later by a lot of noise and confusion. I was used to such noises as a result of the continual drinking aboard, so I turned over to go to sleep again, but changed my mind and decided to take a look outside.

"I saw one of the crew playing a hose on flames at one end of the corridor. I slipped a coat over my nightclothes, picked up a watch I valued very much and went up to B deck."

Was Picked Up.

She told of having drifted for hours before being picked up on a small boat. She went on:

"They had picked up several other survivors and we were taken to Spring Lake."

Asked if she thought the crew had been sufficiently schooled for such an emergency, Miss Nathanson replied:

"They were'nt trained at all. How could you expect them to be efficient when the ship changes all hands every week? I saw no more than four members of the crew from the time I left my cabin until I went over the rail. I don't know where the rest were—probably on the way to Jersey."

ST. BERNARDS DREW RECORD LOADS IN YUKON GOLD RUSH

(International News Service)

TACOMA, Wash.—Memories of Jack London's famous book "The Call of the Wild" and its dog hero "Buck" stirred in the hearts of sourdough reunion delegates here when H. Claude Kelly, of Tacoma recalled his 14 dog team, most St. Bernards, that astonished Tacomans during the hectic days of '98 by puling heavy loads over Tacoma's bare streets.

The team was one of the most unusual ever to go to Alaska. It was brought here by Kelly and his partner Robert McArthur and trained for four months before being shipped to Skagway

At one time the big St. Bernard leader of the team, Diamond, "broke out" and pulled 300 pounds on a sled alone over bare roads of a Tacoma dock, while the entire team easily moved 800 pounds over Tacoma's snowless streets.

Kelly smiled as he recalled predictions he made before encountering the rigors of the north that five of his dogs could pull a ton of supplies across the snow, make 40 miles a day "if we could keep up with them, and that outfits they packed on the sleds at Skagway would be delivered across the summit at night.

DILLINGER MISSED LAW-ABIDING LIFE

(International News Service)

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Instead of Public Enemy No. 1 the late John Dillinger might have been a self-supporting, law abiding citizen, if he had received the benefit of scientific study and treatment when he was first in trouble, according to Milton Weiffenbach, U. S. Probation Officer for the Eastern District of Missouri.

"Being confined with criminals for nine years when his co-defendant, reported as an ex-convict and equally guilty, received only one year, may explain a mental attitude which considered organized society as his enemy," Weiffenbach said.

ST. BERNARDS DREW RECORD LOADS IN YUKON GOLD RUSH

(International News Service)

TACOMA, Wash.—Memories of Jack London's famous book "The Call of the Wild" and its dog hero "Buck" stirred in the hearts of sourdough reunion delegates here when H. Claude Kelly, of Tacoma recalled his 14 dog team, most St. Bernards, that astonished Tacomans during the hectic days of '98 by puling heavy loads over Tacoma's bare streets.

The team was one of the most unusual ever to go to Alaska. It was brought here by Kelly and his partner Robert McArthur and trained for four months before being shipped to Skagway

At one time the big St. Bernard leader of the team, Diamond, "broke out" and pulled 300 pounds on a sled alone over bare roads of a Tacoma dock, while the entire team easily moved 800 pounds over Tacoma's snowless streets.

Kelly smiled as he recalled predictions he made before encountering the rigors of the north that five of his dogs could pull a ton of supplies across the snow, make 40 miles a day "if we could keep up with them, and that outfits they packed on the sleds at Skagway would be delivered across the summit at night.

Woman Survivor Says Crew Was Not Efficient

Zelda Nathanson, 29, Pittsburgh, Says Morro Castle Crew Untrained

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 12.—Zelda Nathanson, 29, survivor of the Morro Castle disaster, today charged that an incompetent and inefficient crew contributed to making it one of the greatest sea tragedies in history.

Telling of how she played cards until early Saturday morning and then went to bed, Miss Nathanson said:

"I was awakened later by a lot of noise and confusion. I was used to such noises as a result of the continual drinking aboard, so I turned over to go to sleep again, but changed my mind and decided to take a look outside.

"I saw one of the crew playing a hose on flames at one end of the corridor. I slipped a coat over my nightclothes, picked up a watch I valued very much and went up to B deck."

Was Picked Up.

She told of having drifted for hours before being picked up on a small boat. She went on:

"They had picked up several other survivors and we were taken to Spring Lake."

Asked if she thought the crew had been sufficiently schooled for such an emergency, Miss Nathanson replied:

"They were'nt trained at all. How could you expect them to be efficient when the ship changes all hands every week? I saw no more than four members of the crew from the time I left my cabin until I went over the rail. I don't know where the rest were—probably on the way to Jersey."

No Solution To Slaying Mystery

Husband Of Swissvale Woman Held For Investigation Of Story

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 12.—Possibilities of "another woman" in the mysterious death of Mrs. Julia Cummings, 30, were being investigated today as her husband, Thomas, 33, former Swissvale police chief, was held in county jail on a district attorney's detainer.

Meanwhile the sleuths were investigating the story told by Cummings when grilled yesterday immediately after he notified police his wife had been shot and killed in her boudoir.

Cummings told officers he believed his wife had been shot by a weapon fired from an alley next to their apartment. He added that the first he knew of the tragedy was when he heard a dull thud and believed that his wife had fallen out of bed. He said he picked her up and then, seeing blood on the floor, discovered she was dead.

Police were investigating the fining of a .32-.20 caliber revolver in a chimney of the building. The gun, covered with ashes, contained one empty shell, authorities said.

DEATH SHIP PROBE REVEALS NEW FACTS

erine Liebler, of Bellrose, Long Island, a passenger.

A murmur of astonishment broke over the court room as Miss Liebler made this assertion.

She is 27 years old, medium height and slim. She testified in a calm, clear voice.

"After the ship left Havana," she said, "quite a few of the waiters were intoxicated. One had to be taken from the dining room."

Q.—(By Dickerson N. Hoover, chairman of the inquiry board)—What night was it the waiters were intoxicated?

A.—Wednesday night.

The fire-disaster occurred early Saturday morning.

Miss Liebler was asked if she saw any intoxication among the crew after Wednesday night.

"No,—not after Wednesday night."

The questioning then veered from that point.

Opening her testimony, Miss Leibler said she occupied cabin number 403 on D deck. She first learned of the fire when one of the stewards pounded on the door.

Slid Down Rope

The stewards were "very nice", she said. They helped her and a girl friend and her girl friend's father and mother to the back of the ship.

Miss Liebler did not remember reading any signs of instructions as to what to do in case of any emergency. Nobody, moreover, showed her what station to go to in case of trouble.

During the excitement she and her girl friend became separated. Asked if any of the crew were at the back of the boat, she answered: "Some of the bellboys."

"How did you happen to get off the ship?"

"I slid down a rope."

Miss Liebler described the "awful flames and smoke." She said the passengers were warned not to go near the flames up forward.

Q.—Could you have crossed through the flames to go forward to where the lifeboats were?

A.—No. The flames were too thick.

She was in the water "about ten minutes." Then a lifeboat picked her up. She was then put aboard the Steamer Luckenbach.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Hundred Attends Tea Last Evening

Standard Bearers Hostesses At Evening Gathering In M. E. Church

One hundred guests gathered for tea at the Mahoning M. E. church Tuesday evening, with the members of the Standard Bearers Society as the hostesses.

An unusually enjoyable program was presented, including a piano solo by Jessie Jane Gilbert, a reading by Martha Louise Mauck, piano selections by Guy Davis, of Wampum, and readings by Mrs. John Davis. A skit and a one act comedy were also important parts of the program.

In charge of arrangements were Miss Maxine Gillespie and Mrs. Q. E. Davy.

Tea and light lunch were served at small tables.

Street Signs Are Needing Attention

Street signs in Seventh ward need a considerable amount of renovation. This has been suggested as a worthwhile work project for several of the city's unemployed and would mean something to the community. Some of the local streets are not marked at all, others have been marked but the signs came out in losers after a long and valiant fight with the weather. Still other street signs are erratic to say the least. For instance, that at the Liberty and Orchard street intersection has something to say about Maple street and Clearview avenue.

Eighteen Gather At Broaddus Home

Mrs. Manley Broaddus received 18 members of the M. E. G. Auxiliary of the Mahoningtown Presbyterian church at her home on Fourth street Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Harold Unangst was in charge of the foreign topic, entitled "Challenging Facts", and Miss Evelyn Marshall was in charge of the national topic, "The Younger Generation". Mrs. Wade Daugherty was in charge of devotionals.

During the business meeting Mrs. H. E. Alexander appointed the following committee to make arrangements for a corn roast some time soon: Mrs. G. G. Horchler, Mrs. Bert Galbreath and Mrs. Clarence Allen. Dime cards were turned in and other business talked over. A tasty lunch was served by Mrs. Broaddus, assisted by Miss Ethel Scheidemantle.

In October the M. E. G. Auxiliary will have a joint meeting with the Opportunity Circle in the church parlor.

40TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DeMasi, of Erie, Pa., have returned to their home after spending the week end at the former's home here. On Sunday they took part in a surprise celebration of the 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Gennaro DeMasi. The honored couple was presented with a wedding cake from one of their daughters.

The evening was spent in gay reunion with all of the family and grandchildren participating. The cake was presented by Mrs. F. Rouso of Montgomery avenue. It was beautifully decorated with a miniature bride and groom and the number "40" in small floral rosettes. Delicious refreshments were enjoyed later in the evening, with the cake as dessert.

ST. MARGARET'S CHURCH

During the services on Sunday in St. Margaret's church, corner of Second and Clayton streets, the banns of matrimony were announced for Albert Dottle and Olive Noble.

Catechism classes were resumed Sunday afternoon at 1:30. Sister Rose Agnes and Sister Maurio from St. Mary's Convent uptown are conducting the classes.

The Altar boys had a meeting Sunday afternoon and elected the following officers for the coming year: James Ronan, president; William Cushion, monitor and Francis Carlin, secretary.

The first autumn card party will be held in the Lyceum hall, Thursday evening, September 13. Mrs. A. F. Stritzinger and Mrs. R. Vatter will be in charge of the party.

REPAIRING DAMAGE

Workmen employed by the New Castle Water Company are on their third day of repair work as the result of damage done by a bad water main break last week, on Liberty at Wabash. Monday and Tuesday the men were engaged in removing the resurface material and the bed of bricks which had been lifted by the water pressure. The street will be repaved and resurfaced by the water company from the old White Star restaurant to a point half way down the Wettich block.

GROUP ONE MEETING

Section one of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society had a delightful meeting in the Mahoning M. E. church Monday evening. Eighteen were in attendance.

Mrs. William Jones was in charge of devotionals and Mrs. Q. E. Davy of the study book.

A nicely arranged and delicious lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. M. C. Adams, Mrs. C. W. Davis, Mrs. W. J. Cauffield and Mrs. Clara Arble.

S. C. W. BIBLE CLASS

The S. C. W. Bible class of the Mahoningtown Presbyterian church will commence fall meetings at the home of Mrs. Herman Rhodes, West Madison avenue, Thursday.

SEVENTH WARD PERSONALS

Clarence Coates, of Alderman K. G. Coates' office, was a business visitor in Youngstown, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Waddell and son, Jack, of North Liberty street, were in Hubbard, O., recently, called by the death and funeral of Mr. Waddell's brother.

Mr. and Mrs. William Beard and son, Billy, of Baltimore, Md., have returned to their home after spending two weeks with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Beard, of Orchard street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Porter, of Pittsburgh, moved on Tuesday to the Norris building, North Liberty street. Mrs. Porter will be remembered as Miss Mildred Weisbaker, formerly of this city.

W. Greyson Coats and Jimmie Coats, Jr., of Constantine, Mich., were here over the week end. Alderman H. G. Coates, of North Liberty street, returned with them to Constantine for a visit.

Mrs. Q. E. Davy, of North Cedar street, recently visited Miss Helen Anderson, of West Madison avenue, who is a patient in a Pittsburgh hospital. Miss Anderson is reported to be showing some improvement.

James Fletcher, well known World War veteran, who resides with the Lawrence Vatter family on West Madison avenue, is reported confined to his bed, but is able and glad to receive visits from his friends. Mr. Fletcher has been an invalid for a number of years.

New Violence Marks Strike

Pitched Battle Develops At Bridgeport Plant Early Today

TROUBLE OCCURS AT MILL GATES

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—For the third consecutive day, violence flared today in the eastern Pennsylvania sector of the giant textile industry strike.

At the crack of dawn, a pitched battle again thwarted plans of the management to reopen the James Lees woolen mills at Bridgeport.

More than a score of men and women were felled in the rioting before state troopers rushed into the thick of the fight, scattered the rioters and arrested ten alleged ringleaders.

Frank Marinari of Philadelphia, one of the many injured and taken to Montgomery county hospital, at Norristown, was reported in a serious condition. His head was split open by a blow and doctors believe he may have suffered a fractured skull.

The arrival at the plant's heavily picketed gates of a motor caravan containing would-be strike-breakers touched off the riot fuse. Within less than five minute the scene resembled a wartime hand-to-hand battle, with screams and cries of the injured renting the air as club wielders trampled them underfoot.

Automobiles were overturned, their occupants yanked from the vehicles and pummelled severely. Several of the cars were virtually torn apart by the embattled strikers.

Frank Kirsch and John Bodber, described as out of town union organizers, were among ten persons arrested by state troopers.

Local Scrappers At Mercer Fair

Paris Cangey, fight manager, announced today that Charles Arkett, Frank Massie and Al Solo will go to the Mercer fair tonight for amateur boxing matches with well known opponents. The boys have been working under the supervision of Cangey at the A. C. club on Long avenue.

Hundred Attends Tea Last Evening

Standard Bearers Hostesses At Evening Gathering In M. E. Church

One hundred guests gathered for tea at the Mahoning M. E. church Tuesday evening, with the members of the Standard Bearers Society as the hostesses.

An unusually enjoyable program was presented, including a piano solo by Jessie Jane Gilbert, a reading by Martha Louise Mauck, piano selections by Guy Davis, of Wampum, and readings by Mrs. John Davis. A skit and a one act comedy were also important parts of the program.

In charge of arrangements were Miss Maxine Gillespie and Mrs. Q. E. Davy.

Street Signs Are Needing Attention

Street signs in Seventh ward need a considerable amount of renovation. This has been suggested as a worthwhile work project for several of the city's unemployed and would mean something to the community. Some of the local streets are not marked at all, others have been marked but the signs came out in losers after a long and valiant fight with the weather. Still other street signs are erratic to say the least. For instance, that at the Liberty and Orchard street intersection has something to say about Maple street and Clearview avenue.

During the business meeting Mrs. H. E. Alexander appointed the following committee to make arrangements for a corn roast some time soon: Mrs. G. G. Horchler, Mrs. Bert Galbreath and Mrs. Clarence Allen. Dime cards were turned in and other business talked over. A tasty lunch was served by Mrs. Broaddus, assisted by Miss Ethel Scheidemantle.

The evening was spent in gay reunion with all of the family and grandchildren participating. The cake was presented by Mrs. F. Rouso of Montgomery avenue. It was beautifully decorated with a miniature bride and groom and the number "40" in small floral rosettes. Delicious refreshments were enjoyed later in the evening, with the cake as dessert.

REPAIRING DAMAGE

Workmen employed by the New Castle Water Company are on their third day of repair work as the result of damage done by a bad water main break last week, on Liberty at Wabash. Monday and Tuesday the men were engaged in removing the resurface material and the bed of bricks which had been lifted by the water pressure. The street will be repaved and resurfaced by the water company from the old White Star restaurant to a point half way down the Wettich block.

New Violence Marks Strike

Pitched Battle Develops At Bridgeport Plant Early Today

TROUBLE OCCURS AT MILL GATES

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—For the third consecutive day, violence flared today in the eastern Pennsylvania sector of the giant textile industry strike.

At the crack of dawn, a pitched battle again thwarted plans of the management to reopen the James Lees woolen mills at Bridgeport.

More than a score of men and women were felled in the rioting before state troopers rushed into the thick of the fight, scattered the rioters and arrested ten alleged ringleaders.

Frank Marinari of Philadelphia, one of the many injured and taken to Montgomery county hospital, at Norristown, was reported in a serious condition. His head was split open by a blow and doctors believe he may have suffered a fractured skull.

The arrival at the plant's heavily picketed gates of a motor caravan containing would-be strike-breakers touched off the riot fuse. Within less than five minute the scene resembled a wartime hand-to-hand battle, with screams and cries of the injured renting the air as club wielders trampled them underfoot.

Automobiles were overturned, their occupants yanked from the vehicles and pummelled severely. Several of the cars were virtually torn apart by the embattled strikers.

Frank Kirsch and John Bodber, described as out of town union organizers, were among ten persons arrested by state troopers.

Good Growing Weather In August Has Partially Saved Crops Of State

POTATO, APPLE CROPS IMPROVED

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12.—Late field crops flourished in Pennsylvania as a result of good growing weather in August, the federal-state crop reporting service had reported toady.

Rains, which were only slightly below normal, revived the buckwheat crop, making a bumper harvest probable in districts where little yield was expected a month ago. Barley fields were reported improved.

Apple crops developed rapidly during the month, the report said, but other fruits continued about the same. August rains improved the potato crop but quality was lower because most of the yield was second growth, according to the report.

Second cutting hay crops of good quality were reported even from the drought area nortwest of the mountains. A short growth of oats resulted in cutting hay green in some sections.

Rust and Wildfire which spread during the latter part of August dampened hopes for a bumper tobacco crop but early harvesting saved considerable portions of the growth.

DEMOCRACY AT WORK

THE Telephone Industry is Democracy at Work.

Three-quarters of a million men and women in every walk of life—a cross-section of America—have invested savings in securities of Bell System Companies.

A quarter of a million men and women are Bell Telephone employees. Almost 17,000 are Pennsylvanians. They are your fellow citizens, neighbors, friends.

There are 17,000,000 telephones in the United States—practically everybody is a telephone user. In our country are more than half the telephones in the world—six times as many in relation to population as in Europe.

THE company that operates Pennsylvania's Bell telephones is part of a nation-wide telephone democracy. This is the Bell System—an association of twenty-four operating companies, each independent within its own territory yet combined to serve the nation as a whole. With them are affiliated the Bell Telephone Laboratories, home of telephone research and development, and the Western Electric Company which manufactures for the System.

There is no pulling at cross-purposes; no costly overlapping of activities in this democracy of telephone companies. The American Telephone and Telegraph Company co-ordinates their efforts; operates the "long distance" lines that join them together; carries on the many and varied activities that can best be done by a central organization.

PENNSYLVANIA, as a result, enjoys the finest telephone service in the world and we urge its broader and broader use as contributing to the American way of living.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA

Associated with the Bell System—participating in and benefiting from the telephone research, telephone development and nation-wide telephone experience which have given America the world leadership in telephone service.

IT COSTS SO LITTLE MORE TO SAY—"I drive a CHRYSLER!"

$740 AND UP F.O.B. FACTORY

NOTICE HOW they say it, these Chrysler owners.

"I drive a Chrysler!" There's pride in their voices every time. Yet it really costs very little to get a lot more in a Chrysler.

There's the Chrysler Six . . . right in the low-priced field at $740 and up f. o. b. But it's bigger, finer, faster than the cars you think of as low-priced. More weight, more wheelbase, greater riding comfort . . . and a lot of important features.

The fact is, about the only reason you can think of for spending more than the price of a Chrysler Six is to get the tremendously outstanding advantages of an Airflow Eight. Chrysler designed the Airflow for the specific purpose of giving greater riding comfort, spaciousness and performance than could possibly be put into any conventional car.

The result is so astonishing that you can't begin to understand it until you actually ride in an Airflow car.

We'll be delighted to show you Chrysler value . . . the Six and the Airflow. Stop in.

CHRYSLER Airflow Eights CHRYSLER SIX

Chrysler Six . . . 93 horsepower (100 with optional aluminum head), 7 body types on 117-inch and 121-inch wheelbase. Priced from $740 up. Four-door Sedan, $830. Chrysler Airflow Eight . . . 122 horsepower . . . 123-inch wheelbase. All body types, $1345. Chrysler Airflow Imperial . . . 130 horsepower . . . 128-inch wheelbase. All body types, $1625. "Did you create Old Golds especially for people with sensitive throats?"

asks Dolores Del Rio

Appearing in Warner Bros. forthcoming production "Madame Du Barry"

Old Gold
THE PLEASURE OF THEM ALL

Dear Miss Del Rio:

Our aim, when we created Old Golds, was simply to produce a smoother cigarette than America had ever known before . . .

A cigarette that would appeal to everyone by reason of its mellow mildness—its freedom from rasp and bite.

The tobaccos used in Old Gold are free from artificial flavoring and other seasonings. Hence the throat-ease . . . without any irritation even for the most sensitive throat.

Sincerely,
P. LORILLARD COMPANY, INC.
ESTABLISHED 1760

P. S.—Another outstanding reason is this, Miss Del Rio:—No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure. That's why Old Golds are easy on the THROAT and NERVES.

Crops Of State Looking Better

Good Growing Weather In August Has Partially Saved Crops Of State

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12.—Late field crops flourished in Pennsylvania as a result of good growing weather in August, the federal-state crop reporting service had reported toady.

Rains, which were only slightly below normal, revived the buckwheat crop, making a bumper harvest probable in districts where little yield was expected a month ago. Barley fields were reported improved.

Apple crops developed rapidly during the month, the report said, but other fruits continued about the same. August rains improved the potato crop but quality was lower because most of the yield was second growth, according to the report.

Second cutting hay crops of good quality were reported even from the drought area nortwest of the mountains. A short growth of oats resulted in cutting hay green in some sections.

Rust and Wildfire which spread during the latter part of August dampened hopes for a bumper tobacco crop but early harvesting saved considerable portions of the growth.

AROUND CITY HALL

Police chronology for 24 hours ending at 3:30 p. m. September 11, five arrests on charges as follows: violation of traffic regulation 1, drunkenness and begging 2, and drunkenness 2.

All of the police will have had their vacations by September 17, it is reported following which Chief of Police Haven will formally name the men who will be in charge of the cruiser cars.

The city plans soon to start laying a sidewalk in front of Jackson park, which fronts on East Washington street. The sidewalk there is low, according to complaints.

When the city constructs a new toolhouse in South Jefferson street it will be made large enough to house the biggest fire truck the city has. The present repair shop in Croton avenue cannot house them.

The sidecar of the new motorcycle has been painted cobalt blue and attached to the motorcycle. According to the manufacturer the motorcycle if necessary can travel 90 miles an hour.

Assessors will close their books for 1934 on October 1 and all deeds recorded after that date on the books in the city department of engineers will be recorded on 1935 lists according to Neil Williams.

SUBPOENA EVERY MORRO CASTLE CREW SURVIVOR

Probers Prevent Members Leaving

Board Fearful That Important Witnesses May Disappear Before Being Heard

TESTIMONY HINTS CREW COWARDICE

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Frankly fearful that some of the key witnesses in the Morro Castle disaster may disappear before they have a chance to tell their versions of what took place, federal authorities probing the disaster today had under subpoena every member of the crew who survived the disaster.

Already one youthful survivor is detained as a material witness. In his case, however, the detention is described merely as a "protective measure," made necessary by the extraordinary importance of his testimony.

Some Of Crew Signed

He is George I. Alagna, radio man aboard the doomed vessel.

The decision to issue the subpoenas came after department of justice agents had learned that some of the crew members had been signed by the Ward Line, owners of the Morro Castle, to ship for Cuba on other vessels.

Meanwhile the probing board headed by Dickerson N. Hoover, was to hear further witnesses today either affirm or deny stories of disgraceful cowardice on the part of the crew in frantically seizing life boats and leaving passengers at the mercy of the flames or the rain-swept seas.

Passenger To Testify

In the wake of Chief Engineer Eben S. Abbott's testimony that he fled the ship in a boat containing 32 crew members and only two passengers, Dr. D. A. Cochrane today was expected to give his own version of this extraordinary episode.

The physician was one of the two passengers mentioned in Abbott's testimony. The other was a woman, but there has been no indication as yet as to her identity.

With the commerce department's inquiry scheduled to run for at least three more days, there was every indication today that a great mass of sensational testimony on the panic of the passengers, the trapping of victims in blazing state-rooms and the behavior of officers and crew is still to be heard.

It was even hinted that the U. S. Board of Standards, which has a vast collection of data on the cause of fire, might be called into the case.

Government Neglect?
Strikes Grow.
Billions And Billions.
Good News For 4 In 5.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

ACCORDING TO latest figures, about one hundred and sixteen human beings were burned alive, smothered by smoke, or otherwise killed on board the steamship Morro Castle. Many unaccounted for are probably floating around in the ocean.

The usual "investigation" that has started should not confine itself to the owners, officers and crew.

If negligence or criminal neglect of safety precautions can be shown, the guilty should be punished.

There should be an investigation, by impartial men, to fix the responsibility of United States government officials supposed to inspect ships and protect lives of citizens.

IF FIRE LINES or pumps were not working, if one or more tanks full of oil were carried on the ship in position where fire might easily reach them, if any one of a thousand reckless conditions existed on that ship, THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT should have known about it and done away with it.

On December 14, 1928, after the steamship Vestris went down with heavy loss of life, Congressman La-Guardia of New York made an excellent speech beginning:

> "Mr. Speaker, Gentlemen and Ladies of the House: It is my purpose to talk about our shipping laws."

He introduced a resolution demanding complete revision of laws governing inspection of ships and adequate provision for the safety of passengers.

In accordance with the national habit, nothing was done about it. The government might read it now and do something.

THE TEXTILE STRIKE grows, with 65,000 more in an allied industry threatening to go out. Strikes threaten to take from jobs more men than the government can take from the unemployed list.

The government proposes mediation and appoints a board. Mr. Gorman, strike leader, says that before mediation is considered all mills must close down.

In many mills employes have made no complaint. In some mills they are working under contract.

And whether you believe in private ownership of property or not, all of the mills at present belong to their owners.

If employers said to strikers: "before we mediate you must all move out of your houses," employes probably would say "no".

When strikers say "shut down your mills, and stop profits," mill owners naturally say "no".

IT MAY BE, as some suggest, that we are on our way to a new system of society, in which nobody will own anything in particular, the government owning and managing all.

If it is intended to carry out that plan, it should be announced frankly.

The government should say to the citizens, "you do not really own anything," and tell them what the ancient Czar of Russia told his boyars, that not only all property, but every life in Russia belonged to him, and he could take the life or property if he chose.

THE GOVERNMENT will refund one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four million dollars' worth of government debts, and rejoices that it will pay only 3¼ per cent interest. Why issue more fiat bonds when plain fiat money would be exactly as good? Neither is worth more than the paper it is printed on, except for the government's signature.

During twelve years for which the new government debt obligations will run taxpayers will have to pay in interest unnecessarily $692,151,915, or compounding the interest $838,509,361.

FURTHERMORE, the government will have to refinance this year altogether $5,369,086,400 of indebtedness and will presumably issue fiat bonds bearing at least 3¼ per cent interest. This foolishness will cost United States taxpayers in the twelve years following the issue $2,093,943,696. Two thousand and ninety-three million dollars.

Why insist on issuing fiat bonds, when you can just as well issue fiat money? You might say "people that have bonds are entitled to new bonds". Why so tender about bond owners? Government takes every other kind of property that it needs. Bondholders should not complain if the government handed them one hundred per cent of green fiat dollars instead of yellow fiat bonds, no better than the greenbacks.

Getting plain money, not bearing interest, they might spend or invest it, which would be good for the country.

THE BRITISH Association for the Advancement of Science at Aberdeen hears from Professor A. Szent-Gyorgi, of the University of Szeged, Hungary, views highly important to every human being.

He has discovered that several of the most serious diseases can be cured by injecting vitamin C into the blood.

He has shown that three injections of vitamin C will cure pyorrhea, which, according to distinguished advertisers, would be good news for "four out of five" although this is hardly a time for science to kill valuable advertising. Professor Szent-Gyorgi, who succeeded in identifying and isolating the C vitamin otherwise "ascrobic acid", is the greatest living authority in his field.

The blood stream, which is the stream of life, is a river of living organisms, number billions of living individuals, including dangerous enemies.

Red cells that feed the body, white cells that protect it from its enemies, are attacked in the veins and arteries by innumerable disease germs, including the streptococci, one of them like the strettococcus mucosus, protected from attack by a mucous coat of armor.

The Hungarian scientist ennumerates many diseases born of blood infection that the C vitamin destroys utterly.

Among others he mentions haemophilia, a disease hereditary in the former royal families of Spain and Russia, causing bleeding that cannot be checked.

No announcement more important could be more than that of the learned Hungarian, whose statements were heard with deepest respect by the world's leading scientists.

"Ascorbic" or anti-scorbutic acid, without which, supplied in fruits and vegetables, sailors died of scurvy, is apparently the same as vitamin C.

Having convinced himself that lack of activity in the adrenal glands caused Addison's disease, which makes the human skin turn brown and blotchy, he made innumerable experiments, which included testing tons of adrenal glands of oxen in the Chicago stockyards. He was generously assisted, financially, by the Josiah Macy Foundation, an American philanthropy.

After working for a year in the United States, in securing "only 24 grammes of the precious "ascorbic" substance, he returned to Hungary, and there in his native Hungarian paprika he found all the ascorbic acid he wanted.

Perhaps Hungarians have been saving themselves from many illnesses by using paprika so freely.

Fire Loss At Pants Factory

Part Of Stock Is Burned In Blaze Early This Morning

Fire originating it is believed, from an exploded light bulb and shorted wire connections threatened the plant of the National Pants Company at 4:15 this morning. The fire was discovered at 4:15 o'clock by William Braden, night watchman who said that about that time he heard an explosion. Investigating he found that a bulb had exploded and in some way the wire connections had shorted, firing some paper wrappings. In a short time the stock of finished pants kept in the south end of the building were afire and flames were shooting through the roof. Mr

Board Fearful That Important Witnesses May Disappear Before Being Heard

TESTIMONY HINTS CREW COWARDICE

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Frankly fearful that some of the key witnesses in the Morro Castle disaster may disappear before they have a chance to tell their versions of what took place, federal authorities probing the disaster today had under subpoena every member of the crew who survived the disaster.

Already one youthful survivor is detained as a material witness. In his case, however, the detention is described merely as a "protective measure," made necessary by the extraordinary importance of his testimony.

Some Of Crew Signed

He is George I. Alagna, radio man aboard the doomed vessel.

The decision to issue the subpoenas came after department of justice agents had learned that some of the crew members had been signed by the Ward Line, owners of the Morro Castle, to ship for Cuba on other vessels.

Meanwhile the probing board headed by Dickerson N. Hoover, was to hear further witnesses today either affirm or deny stories of disgraceful cowardice on the part of the crew in frantically seizing life boats and leaving passengers at the mercy of the flames or the rain-swept seas.

Passenger To Testify

In the wake of Chief Engineer Eben S. Abbott's testimony that he fled the ship in a boat containing 32 crew members and only two passengers, Dr. D. A. Cochrane today was expected to give his own version of this extraordinary episode.

The physician was one of the two passengers mentioned in Abbott's testimony. The other was a woman, but there has been no indication as yet as to her identity.

With the commerce department's inquiry scheduled to run for at least three more days, there was every indication today that a great mass of sensational testimony on the panic of the passengers, the trapping of victims in blazing state-rooms and the behavior of officers and crew is still to be heard.

It was even hinted that the U. S. Board of Standards, which has a vast collection of data on the cause of fire, might be called into the case.

Government Neglect?

Strikes Grow.

Billions And Billions.

Good News For 4 In 5.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

ACCORDING TO latest figures, about one hundred and sixteen human beings were burned alive, smothered by smoke, or otherwise killed on board the steamship Morro Castle. Many unaccounted for are probably floating around in the ocean.

The usual "investigation" that has started should not confine itself to the owners, officers and crew.

If negligence or criminal neglect of safety precautions can be shown, the guilty should be punished.

There should be an investigation, by impartial men, to fix the responsibility of United States government officials supposed to inspect ships and protect lives of citizens.

IF FIRE LINES or pumps were not working, if one or more tanks full of oil were carried on the ship in position where fire might easily reach them, if any one of a thousand reckless conditions existed on that ship, THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT should have known about it and done away with it.

On December 14, 1928, after the steamship Vestris went down with heavy loss of life, Congressman LaGuardia of New York made an excellent speech beginning:

"Mr. Speaker, Gentlemen and Ladies of the House: It is my purpose to talk about our shipping laws."

He introduced a resolution demanding complete revision of laws governing inspection of ships and adequate provision for the safety of passengers.

In accordance with the national habit, nothing was done about it. The government might read it now and do something.

THE TEXTILE STRIKE grows, with 65,000 more in an allied industry threatening to go out. Strikes threaten to take from jobs more men than the government can take from the unemployed list.

The government proposes mediation and appoints a board. Mr. Gorman, strike leader, says that before mediation is considered all mills must close down.

In many mills employes have made no complaint. In some mills they are working under contract.

And whether you believe in private ownership of property or not, all of the mills at present belong to their owners.

If employers said to strikers: "before we mediate you must all move out of your houses," employes probably would say "no".

When strikers say "shut down your mills, and stop profits," mill owners naturally say "no".

IT MAY BE, as some suggest, that we are on our way to a new system of society, in which nobody will own anything in particular, the government owning and managing all.

If it is intended to carry out that plan, it should be announced frankly.

The government should say to the citizens, "you do not really own anything," and tell them what the ancient Czar of Russia told his boyars, that not only all property, but every life in Russia belonged to him, and he could take the life or property if he chose.

THE GOVERNMENT will refund one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four million dollars' worth of government debts, and rejoices that it will pay only 3¼ per cent interest. Why issue more fiat bonds when plain fiat money would be exactly as good? Neither is worth more than the paper it is printed on, except for the government's signature.

During twelve years for which the new government debt obligations will run taxpayers will have to pay in interest unnecessarily $692,151,915, or compounding the interest $838,509,361.

FURTHERMORE, the government will have to refinance this year altogether $5,369,086,400 of indebtedness and will presumably issue fiat bonds bearing at least 3¼ per cent interest. This foolishness will cost United States taxpayers in the twelve years following the issue $2,093,943,696. Two thousand and ninety-three million dollars.

Why insist on issuing fiat bonds, when you can just as well issue fiat money? You might say "people that have bonds are entitled to new bonds". Why so tender about bond owners? Government takes every other kind of property that it needs. Bondholders should not complain if the government handed them one hundred per cent of green fiat dollars instead of yellow fiat bonds, no better than the greenbacks.

Getting plain money, not bearing interest, they might spend or invest it, which would be good for the country.

THE BRITISH Association for the Advancement of Science at Aberdeen hears from Professor A. Szent-Gyorgi, of the University of Szeged, Hungary, views highly important to every human being.

He has discovered that several of the most serious diseases can be cured by injecting vitamin C into the blood.

He has shown that three injections of vitamin C will cure pyorrhea, which, according to distinguished advertisers, would be good news for "four out of five" although this is hardly a time for science to kill valuable advertising. Professor Szent-Gyorgi, who succeeded in identifying and isolating the C vitamin otherwise "ascrobic acid", is the greatest living authority in his field.

The blood stream, which is the stream of life, is a river of living organisms, number billions of living individuals, including dangerous enemies.

Red cells that feed the body, white cells that protect it from its enemies, are attacked in the veins and arteries by innumerable disease germs, including the streptococci, one of them like the strettococcus mucosus, protected from attack by a mucous coat of armor.

The Hungarian scientist ennumerates many diseases born of blood infection that the C vitamin destroys utterly.

Among others he mentions haemophilia, a disease hereditary in the former royal families of Spain and Russia, causing bleeding that cannot be checked.

No announcement more important could be more than that of the learned Hungarian, whose statements were heard with deepest respect by the world's leading scientists.

"Ascorbic" or anti-scorbutic acid, without which, supplied in fruits and vegetables, sailors died of scurvy, is apparently the same as vitamin C.

Having convinced himself that lack of activity in the adrenal glands caused Addison's disease, which makes the human skin turn brown and blotchy, he made innumerable experiments, which included testing tons of adrenal glands of oxen in the Chicago stockyards. He was generously assisted, financially, by the Josiah Macy Foundation, an American philanthropy.

After working for a year in the United States, in securing "only 24 grammes of the precious "ascorbic" substance, he returned to Hungary, and there in his native Hungarian paprika he found all the ascorbic acid he wanted.

Perhaps Hungarians have been saving themselves from many illnesses by using paprika so freely.

Professor Szent-Gyorgi, who succeeded in identifying and isolating the C vitamin otherwise "ascrobic acid", is the greatest living authority in his field.

The blood stream, which is the stream of life, is a river of living organisms, number billions of living individuals, including dangerous enemies.

Red cells that feed the body, white cells that protect it from its enemies, are attacked in the veins and arteries by innumerable disease germs, including the streptococci, one of them like the strettococcus mucosus, protected from attack by a mucous coat of armor.

The Hungarian scientist ennumerates many diseases born of blood infection that the C vitamin destroys utterly.

Among others he mentions haemophilia, a disease hereditary in the former royal families of Spain and Russia, causing bleeding that cannot be checked.

No announcement more important could be more than that of the learned Hungarian, whose statements were heard with deepest respect by the world's leading scientists.

"Ascorbic" or anti-scorbutic acid, without which, supplied in fruits and vegetables, sailors died of scurvy, is apparently the same as vitamin C.

Having convinced himself that lack of activity in the adrenal glands caused Addison's disease, which makes the human skin turn brown and blotchy, he made innumerable experiments, which included testing tons of adrenal glands of oxen in the Chicago stockyards. He was generously assisted, financially, by the Josiah Macy Foundation, an American philanthropy.

After working for a year in the United States, in securing "only 24 grammes of the precious "ascorbic" substance, he returned to Hungary, and there in his native Hungarian paprika he found all the ascorbic acid he wanted.

Perhaps Hungarians have been saving themselves from many illnesses by using paprika so freely.

Part Of Stock Is Burned In Blaze Early This Morning

Fire originating it is believed, from an exploded light bulb and shorted wire connections threatened the plant of the National Pants Company at 4:15 this morning. The fire was discovered at 4:15 o'clock by William Braden, night watchman who said that about that time he heard an explosion. Investigating he found that a bulb had exploded and in some way the wire connections had shorted, firing some paper wrappings. In a short time the stock of finished pants kept in the south end of the building were afire and flames were shooting through the roof. Mr. (Continued On Page Two)

On Court House Hill

County Commissioners and supervisors of Shenango township are considering the improvement of a road leading over Sheep hill, as a relief work project. It is claimed that in its present condition the road is expensive to keep up, and with relief work furnished by the state it could be placed in good shape at a minimum of expense to the county and township. No definite action has yet been taken on the proposition.

Arguments on questions of law are scheduled for this week in the case of Andy Rotunno against Erskine and Schraum, an Ohio corporation doing business in the limestone quarries at Hillsville. Rotunno claims that defendants employed him to quarry 5,175 tons of limestone 5x15 inches, in what was formerly the Mahoning Limestone Company property, now owned by I. P. Cowden. He alleges that after he had employed ten men and started to work Ralph J. Erskine, president of the Erskine and Schraum company, induced some of his men to leave and employed them himself, thus hindering the plaintiff in fulfilling his contract. This is denied by Erskine. Plaintiff is claiming $1,112.62 on the contract.

For the information of boys and girls under 14 years of age, who may be contemplating an application at the county treasurer's office for a hunting license, it may be stated that the game laws do not permit the issuing of licenses to persons under 14, and they, therefore cannot hunt legally with firearms, except on the cultivated lands on which they live and adjoining lands. Persons 14 to 16 years of age must present the written consent of parent or guardian, to obtain a hunting license. They must also be accompanied by a person 21 years of age, or older, while hunting with firearms off the lands on which they reside.

Petition of New Wilmington citizens to vote on the question of installing voting machines is causing considerable discussion in the borough, and the question has arisen as to whom were the promotors of the idea. From all accounts it appears that a woman who was formerly a resident of New Wilmington, but who now lives in Sharon, was the power behind the movement. According to the story the woman was employed by a voting machine company to circulate a petition in New Wilmington, asking that the county commissioners permit a vote on the matter. As usual in such cases there was no trouble in getting signers to the petition, although it is understood that many of those who signed the petition have signified their intention of voting against the machines, since they have learned that it would involve the county in considerable expense Machines, which would have to be purchased by the county if the proposition carried, cost over $1000 apiece. They enable the returns to be more quickly counted after an election, but are an expense to keep in operation, it is said. It is presumed that if the voting machine company is successful in getting their machines installed in one election district, they would consider it as an opening wedge for other districts, which would involve the county in a heavy expense.

Petition for a stay of execution has been presented to court by Frances E. Connor in the case of George V. Capin, trustee, use of Margaret Rankin, now for the use of Dora Levinson against William M. Nunn, with notice to Katherine E. Walker, widow of Earl D. Walker, deceased, Francis Connor, Frances E. Connor, and Katherine E. Hamilton, owner or reputed owner and Joseph D. Alexander, terre tenant. The court issued a rule on Dora Levinson to show cause why the prayer should not be granted. Rule is returnable September 20.

On Court House Hill

County Commissioners and supervisors of Shenango township are considering the improvement of a road leading over Sheep hill, as a relief work project. It is claimed that in its present condition the road is expensive to keep up, and with relief work furnished by the state it could be placed in good shape at a minimum of expense to the county and township. No definite action has yet been taken on the proposition.

Arguments on questions of law are scheduled for this week in the case of Andy Rotunno against Erskine and Schraum, an Ohio corporation doing business in the limestone quarries at Hillsville. Rotunno claims that defendants employed him to quarry 5,175 tons of limestone 5x15 inches, in what was formerly the Mahoning Limestone Company property, now owned by I. P. Cowden. He alleges that after he had employed ten men and started to work Ralph J. Erskine, president of the Erskine and Schraum company, induced some of his men to leave and employed them himself, thus hindering the plaintiff in fulfilling his contract. This is denied by Erskine. Plaintiff is claiming $1,112.62 on the contract.

For the information of boys and girls under 14 years of age, who may be contemplating an application at the county treasurer's office for a hunting license, it may be stated that the game laws do not permit the issuing of licenses to persons under 14, and they, therefore cannot hunt legally with firearms, except on the cultivated lands on which they live and adjoining lands. Persons 14 to 16 years of age must present the written consent of parent or guardian, to obtain a hunting license. They must also be accompanied by a person 21 years of age, or older, while hunting with firearms off the lands on which they reside.

Petition of New Wilmington citizens to vote on the question of installing voting machines is causing considerable discussion in the borough, and the question has arisen as to whom were the promotors of the idea. From all accounts it appears that a woman who was formerly a resident of New Wilmington, but who now lives in Sharon, was the power behind the movement. According to the story the woman was employed by a voting machine company to circulate a petition in New Wilmington, asking that the county commissioners permit a vote on the matter. As usual in such cases there was no trouble in getting signers to the petition, although it is understood that many of those who signed the petition have signified their intention of voting against the machines, since they have learned that it would involve the county in considerable expense. Machines, which would have to be purchased by the county if the proposition carried, cost over $1000 apiece. They enable the returns to be more quickly counted after an election, but are an expense to keep in operation, it is said. It is presumed that if the voting machine company is successful in getting their machines installed in one election district, they would consider it as an opening wedge for other districts, which would involve the county in a heavy expense.

Petition for a stay of execution has been presented to court by Frances E. Connor in the case of George V. Capin, trustee, use of Margaret Rankin, now for the use of Dora Levinson against William M. Nunn, with notice to Katherine E. Walker, widow of Earl D. Walker, deceased, Francis Connor, Frances E. Conner, and Katherine E. Hamilton, owner or reputed owner and Joseph D. Alexander, terre tenant. The court issued a rule on Dora Levinson to show cause why the prayer should not be granted. Rule is returnable September 20.

Gala Welcome Planned For Johnstown On Day Team Plays At Stadium

The city of New Castle will show the city of Johnstown what hospitality is when the Johnstown football fans accompany their gridiron warriors here for an engagement with the Red Hurricane at Taggart field on the afternoon of October 6, it became known today as the representative Athletic Council of the local school district took steps to arrange a colorful welcome.

The council, it was learned, formally launched its hospitality undertaking at its last meeting and named Ralph W. Bolsinger, past president of the New Castle Rotary club and a graduate of the Johnstown high school to organize support for the movement.

Moving swiftly after being apprised of his job, Bolsinger has rallied together a number of club leaders and within a short time will contact more. He plans to inform civic and fraternal clubs of the special hospitality plans and to seek their full backing and active co-operation.

Principal F. L. Orth heads the council which is asking citizens to "Welcome Johnstown" with all the vigor they know how. As plans are worked out, the public will be informed of them.

Want Stadium Packed

"We hope to pack the stadium on October 6," Chairman Bolsinger told The News today, adding that "we want to show their school and their city that New Castle is a worthwhile athletic friend. New Castle has never met Johnstown in athletic competition."

Mr. Bolsinger has in his hands the responsibility of preparing the October 6 program.

Serving with Mr. Orth on the Athletic Council are A. W. Bauman, A. C. Hyde and Dr. W. D. Cleland of the school board; Dike Blair, Attorney Joseph R. McFate and Carl E. Paisley of the school's alumni, and two others whom the Senior high student body elect each year. They have not been named.

The day's booster program will have a two-fold objective: First, to fill the Taggart stadium and bleachers with a record-breaking crowd, and second, to show Johnstown, a new athletic friend, that true sportsmanship exists here.

Hearing Friday At Washington

National Labor Relations Board To Hear Complaint In Johnson Bronze Co. Case

Following a hearing by the Regional Labor board some time ago in which violations were alleged against the Johnson Bronze company, the National Labor Relations board will hold a hearing in Washington, D. C., on Friday, September 14, on a complaint that the company failed to comply with the decision of the previous hearing.

The case arises out of the recent strike at the plant which was settled by agreement. Shortly after it was alleged that six employes were discharged "unfairly and because of union membership." The Pittsburgh Regional Labor board heard the complaint in August and recommended the reinstatement of the six men.

The company was not represented at the hearing in August, taking the position that the Pittsburgh Regional Labor board had no jurisdiction in the case and that the case properly came under the Automobile Labor board. The National Labor board ruled that the Pittsburgh Labor board had jurisdiction and has ordered the hearing in Washington on Friday.

P. J. Flaherty, president of the Johnson Bronze company, made no statement today on the case but said that he would await developments.

A pulmotor crew was summoned immediately and Levine was pronounced out of danger by physicians at six a. m.

Report Levine Tries Suicide

First Trans-Atlantic Passenger Discouraged After Series Of "Bad Breaks"

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Penniless and disheartened by a long series of "bad breaks", Charles A. Levine, famous as the first trans-Atlantic airplane passenger, who flew with Clarence Chamberlain from New York to Germany in 1927, attempted to commit suicide in the apartment of a friend in Brooklyn early today.

Levine was stopping at the home of A. J. Walters. Shortly before four a. m. he went into the kitchen, wrote three notes, one of which was to his mother, and another to his host, and then turned on all six jets in the gas range.

Walters, who previously had heard Levine get out of bed, smelled the fumes and rushed into the kitchen and turned off the gas.

A pulmotor crew was summoned immediately and Levine was pronounced out of danger by physicians at six a. m.

Resist Order For New State Church

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—The Bavarian and Wurtemberg Protestant churches today refused to be incorporated in a new state church, as ordered by Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, delivering a strong blow against the Hitler government's plans and threatening a new flareup of the smouldering Protestant church war.

The Bavarian church council stated it cannot consider the Reichsbishop's order, recently promulgated, as legal, and that it will stand exclusively upon the church constitution of July 11, 1933.

Gala Welcome Planned For Johnstown On Day Team Plays At Stadium

The city of New Castle will show the city of Johnstown what hospitality is when the Johnstown football fans accompany their gridiron warriors here for an engagement with the Red Hurricane at Taggart field on the afternoon of October 6, it became known today as the representative Athletic Council of the local school district took steps to arrange a colorful welcome.

The council, it was learned, formally launched its hospitality undertaking at its last meeting and named Ralph W. Bolsinger, past president of the New Castle Rotary club and a graduate of the Johnstown high school to organize support for the movement.

Moving swiftly after being apprised of his job, Bolsinger has rallied together a number of club leaders and within a short time will contact more. He plans to inform civic and fraternal clubs of the special hospitality plans and to seek their full backing and active cooperation.

Principal F. L. Orth heads the council which is asking citizens to "Welcome Johnstown" with all the vigor they know how. As plans are worked out, the public will be informed of them.

Want Stadium Packed

"We hope to pack the stadium on October 6," Chairman Bolsinger told The News today, adding that "we want to show their school and their city that New Castle is a worthwhile athletic friend. New Castle has never met Johnstown in athletic competition."

Mr. Bolsinger has in his hands the responsibility of preparing the October 6 program.

Serving with Mr. Orth on the Athletic Council are A. W. Bauman, A. C. Hyde and Dr. W. D. Cleland of the school board; Dike Blair, Attorney Joseph R. McFate and Carl E. Paisley of the school's alumni, and two others whom the Senior high student body elect each year. They have not been named.

The day's booster program will have a two-fold objective: First, to fill the Taggart stadium and bleachers with a record-breaking crowd, and second, to show Johnstown, a new athletic friend, that true sportsmanship exists here.

Hearing Friday At Washington

National Labor Relations Board To Hear Complaint In Johnson Bronze Co. Case

Following a hearing by the Regional Labor board some time ago in which violations were alleged against the Johnson Bronze company, the National Labor Relations board will hold a hearing in Washington, D. C., on Friday, September 14, on a complaint that the company failed to comply with the decision of the previous hearing.

The case arises out of the recent strike at the plant which was settled by agreement. Shortly after it was alleged that six employes were discharged "unfairly and because of union membership." The Pittsburgh Regional Labor board heard the complaint in August and recommended the reinstatement of the six men.

The company was not represented at the hearing in August, taking the position that the Pittsburgh Regional Labor board had no jurisdiction in the case and that the case properly came under the Automobile Labor board. The National Labor board ruled that the Pittsburgh Labor board had jurisdiction and has ordered the hearing in Washington on Friday.

P. J. Flaherty, president of the Johnson Bronze company, made no statement today on the case but said that he would await developments.

Church Golfing Banquet Success

First Annual Banquet Held At Castle Hills; T. W. Dickey Toastmaster

J. B. "Jack" Waddington Elected New President; First Presbyterians Get Trophy

In golf the main thing is the follow through, and the New Castle Church league golfers followed through their most successful first season last night at the Castle Hills clubhouse with their first annual banquet.

Seventy of the league golfers attended the dinner. It was a steak dinner and one of the finest ever served at Castle Hills. Mrs. V. Arthur Smith and a capable group served the banquet.

With the eating end of the program out of the way John B. "Jack" Waddington acting as president in the absence of John P. Lockhart, who was unable to attend owing to illness, called upon Attorney Thomas W. Dickey as toastmaster. Sam Lewis, one of New Castle's best known singers started the program by leading in a number of snappy pep songs with Albert Taylor at the piano.

Dickey Toastmaster

Attorney Dickey with a few complimentary remarks called upon Charles "Bugs" Walther, for a talk on "Birth and History of the New Castle Church Golf League." Mr. Walther responded with a short talk, reviewing the beginning of the league, and gave out the low scores made in the course of the year's play.

Rev. P. C. Pearson, rector of Trinity church, was the next speaker and said that the Church League was a credit to the city of New Castle. He also said in the course of his fine talk that the league created real fellowship and that was the big thing. He endorsed the league 100 per cent.

Very Fine Speeches

Following Rev. Pearson came Attorney Robert Wallace, a member of the Highland church golfing team and he also said that he thought the league a fine thing. He talked about the "dub" golfers. He waxed very humorous at times as he passed comment on certain of the church league players. Mr. Wallace said that he hopes the league will continue.

Hon. Attorney Walter S. Reynolds a member of the First Methodist team, was the next speaker and waxed very humorous and then turned serious in his characteristic manner. Mr. Reynolds also endorsed the idea of a church golf league and said that he enjoyed playing this summer.

All of the speeches were much enjoyed with Attorney Dickey in his incomparable manner handling the toastmaster job in perfect style. The Dickey wit and humor is well known to banquet goers. There are few dull moments when Dickey steps up to the speakers rostrum.

Gerson Trophy Presented

Toastmaster Dickey called upon Mr. Walther again to present the beautiful Gerson Trophy Cup to Russ Magill, captain of the First Presbyterian "A" team, champions of the league for both halves of the year. Mr. Magill responded with a short speech of acceptance.

Jack Gerson, well known local jeweler and donor of the trophy was called upon by Toastmaster Dickey and responded with a very fine talk, in which he promised the New Castle Church golf league his co-operation at any time.

Ministers Speak

Three ministers who were special guests of the league were then called upon for short talks—Rev. G. S. Bennett of the First Christian church, Rev. D. L. Ferguson of Highland U. P. church and Rev. S. E. Irvine of First U. P. church. Rev. Father Doerr was unable to be present last night.

All of the ministers had the highest praise for the church golf league and all urged that the league be continued throughout the coming years.

Mr. Walther was then called upon to give out the prizes to the winners of the kickers' handicap event staged prior to the banquet. The following won prizes—R. M. Garland 41-3-38, Russ Magill 43-5-38, H. L. Featers 50-12-38, H. H. Pearce 48-10-38, Jack Hope 46-8-38. The medalist was that sensational young golfer, Chris Clark, who shot a brilliant 36 card, one over par for the first nine at Castle Hills. Fulton Magill also received a ball for his 38 card.

Waddington President

The members of the championship team of the First Presbyterian "A" team are—J. B. "Jack" Waddington, Russ Magill, Paul Hunt, Mont Magill, Jim Elder, Bud Long, Dick Dana, Bill Long, Frank Butler, Ches Sweezy, Russ Melvin.

Election of officers for next year was the final gesture on the splendid program. The ballots were given to the men to name their own choices for officers, with John B. "Jack" Waddington being chosen as the 1935 president, Ralph B. Davis, as vice-president, and Dr. R. C. Gilmore re-elected as secretary and treasurer. Attorney John P. Lockhart is the retiring president of the league.

Dunlap Favored To Win Tourney

Goodman, Ouimet, Bobby Jones, Jr., And Other Stars Are Eliminated

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 12—Having indulged itself in two days of refined blood-letting, during which first, Francis Ouimet and then Johnny Goodman were done to their death, the national amateur gold championship will degenerate into a common brawl this morning, with every man for himself.

All we're going to do is hold two wild eighteen-hole rounds and, when the general disorder abates, we will be down to a practical, working basis at last, with the original field of 180 reduced to fifteen survivors. The new national amateur golf champion will be somewhere in that surviving list.

Dunlap Survives

Last year, it was George Dunlap, of New York. This year, it could still be George Dunlap. He remains in there this morning.

Ouimet went out on Monday at the instigation of the new Bobby Jones. Jones went out yesterday. So did Goodman. His particular betonoir was and is a 16-year-old by the name of Bobby Jacobson and doubtless sometime today Jacobson himself will be snuffed out.

Dunlap could very well pass away this morning. He has been brought up against a very plausible person in Willie Turnesa, New York.

A couple of guys who probably never will be due again are to play one of the third round matches this morning. They are the ex-champions, Chick Evans and Chandler Egan.

Sommerville-Noyes

Another pretty poignant meeting is that between Ross Somerville, the Canadian who won the title two years ago, and Sidney Noyes, a quarter-finalist in the same tournament. The Texans, Reynolds Smith and Dave Goldman are also embroiled in a couple of interesting matches. Smith will play Ernie Caldwell, while Goldman, who started with three birdies yesterday, is coupled with the southern, Bobby Riegel.

I don't profess to know how important it may be, but Lawson Little, British open champion, is to play Milan O. Heath, Boston. Little looks every inch the best man in the tournament and Heath, so far as I know, is just another golfer. But it would be in keeping with the mad tempo of this event if Heath won today.

Perry-Allison Battling Today

(International News Service)

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Fred Perry, the defending champion, will meet Wilmer Allison, the challenger, for the American tennis championship this afternoon, and, unless the lantern-jawed Texan can register the greatest sport upset of the year, when it's all over some Joe Humphries of the courts will arise to announce: "The winnah and still champion—Fred Perry."

The gallery probably will be all for Allison today; first, because the patrons would like to see an American win an American title, and second, because the natives feel the Texan got a chill deal when he was called to England to play for the Davis cup and then told to go home.

Field Club Will Have Field Day

First Annual Field Day To Occur On Thursday Great Program

MANY RESERVATIONS ARE ALREADY MADE

Golfers from all over Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio, are expected in New Castle Thursday, September 14, when the New Castle Field club will hold its first annual "Field Day" on the club course. Already over 200 reservations have been received from this county, from Mercer, Butler, Beaver and the Youngstown district.

The fun starts early in the morning with a golf tournament, a low ball foursome affair. In the afternoon there will be a Blind Bogey tournament with Lady Luck helping as much as golfing skill to win the prize. Early in the evening there will be an amateur boxing tournament with some of the best boys in this district trading punches.

In the evening a dinner will be held in the club dining rooms with the admission ticket being good for the dinner as well. Special arrangements are being made to seat the crowd and to insure everybody a good time.

Guides and ticket sellers are being spotted on road entrances leading from the various highways to the Field Club, with arrow indicators along the way. Arrangements have been made to have 200 caddies dismissed from school on Thursday to caddy for the visiting golfers, and it is urged that members of the New Castle Field Club co-operate in getting them out to the club house.

It is going to be a big day. A lot of golf, and a lot of food, a lot of boxing and a lot of enjoyment. By tonight it is anticipated that the advance sale will go to three hundred, with another hundred coming in from outside clubs.

McLaughry Influence Back At Westminster

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 12.—With two proteges of "Tuss McLaughry at the helm of Westminster College football, with another protege of the popular Brown coach as director of athletics at Westminster, and with Judge J. A. McLaughry, father of "Tuss" on the athletic council, the influence of the former Sharon high and Westminster star is again evident on the campus.

Bill and Tom Gilbane, All American fullback and center respectively on McLaughry's Brown teams, are head coach and assistant coach this season. John D. Lawther, who played under McLaughry when he was a coach at Westminster, is again director of athletics. Judge J. A. McLaughry of Mercer was this week elected to the Titan athletic council. And Bill and Tom Gilbane, Titan mentors, are rooming at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McLaughry in town. William McLaughry is a brother of Judge McLaughry of Mercer.

With all this McLaughry influence, it is little wonder that district teams are looking ahead to their first contact with the triple wing back and other offensive formations which McLaughry has used so effectively at Amherst and Brown. Westminster will be the only district team to employ the McLaughry system.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Fistania today has a middleweight champion who lacks a punch, Teddy Yarosz having feather dusted Vince Dundee in 15 rounds last night at Forbes field, Pittsburgh. Dundee displayed nothing but aggressiveness in the hope of getting close to Yarosz who kept punching as he moved around Vince. It was not until the latter rounds that Dundee did any impressive work. Yarosz was the more tired at the finish but his showing in the early rounds won him the decision. One judge and the referee voted for Yarosz and the other judge cast his ballot for Dundee.

There were many local fans at the fight and among the crowd of former leather tossers who watched Yarosz win the championship that once was held by George Chip, were boys who have performed in this city. Some of them came to Forbes field from long distance and sat in on the exchange of ring crowns.

Waiting at the press gate was found one of the boys whom New Castle fans have not and will not forget for some time, Patsy Brannigan. He apparently knew everybody who was strutting into the place and just before the bell rang for the semi-final to go on Patsy took his ringside seat.

There was what the writer thought to be a good sized crowd but whether it was a profitable fight no one excepting the promoters can tell that. The weather was ideal. The ring was well illuminated. Spike Eberle, nephew of Jack Eberle of this city, was the announcer.

After two weeks of intensive drilling, with one week spent at Camp Muddy Creek Falls, the New Castle team is ready and waiting for the opening whistle that sends them into action.

Lineup In Doubt

Coach Bridenbaugh is not set yet on the starting lineup. There are several positions in doubt. Fleming is almost a certainty to start at the signal barking post, with Mumford, DeCaprio, Donegan and James fighting it out for the halfback posts. The fullbacking job is being taken care of by Alex Shellogg.

On the line will be Fred Shellogg and Palkovitch at the tackles, Captain Walter Raskowski at one guard post, with Johns, Cardella, Otlowski and Jokinen fighting for the other guard job. The ends will be Tuscano and Wisosky.

Yarosz Captures Middleweight Title

Neither Boxer Exhibits Punching Power In 15-Round Titular Bout

MONACA BOY WINS TWO OF THREE VOTES

By VICTOR J. JACOBS
International News Service Sports Writer.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 12.—Thad (Teddy) Yarosz, youthful boxing idol of the steel district, ruled the middleweight class today by lifting the crown from Titleholder Vince Dundee, Newark, N. J., in a 15-round split decision battle here last night.

Yarosz dethroned the champion but the chorus of "boos" that greeted the verdict showed it was far from a popular decision. Two judges split the decision and it was left to Al Grayber, referee of Pittsburgh, to cast the deciding vote in favor of the Monaca battler.

The battle, marked by an absence of punching power on the part of both fighters, lacked the color and glamor of a title match. It was exceedingly tame and not altogether pleasing to the crowd of 28,000.

Unofficial scorers gave Yarosz a slight edge in six rounds and four to Dundee. Five were even. But the dethroned champion forced the issue. He kept pressing in and followed the challenger as Yarosz resorted to his peculiar style of combat. He continually pushed his left hand into Dundee's face and then circled the ring.

Neither battler displayed any hitting power. Dundee's weaving style and his experience caused Yarosz to miss frequently but the loser found it difficult to land any telling blows.

Leave Ring Unmarked.

Both men left the ring unmarked. At the final bell both Yarosz and Dundee were tired and weary. Neither was floored during the 15 rounds, although one or the other fell during clinches on three different occasions.

Dundee entered the ring at 158½ pounds, holding a one-pound advantage over his opponent. He displayed a determined, defiant air and relied heavily upon his experiences and knowledge rather than an aggressive attack to carry him to victory.

Yarosz was eager and obviously nervous. His desire to win the match and title caused him to miss many blows to the champion's head as the latter danced about the ring.

The early rounds were uninteresting as Yarosz assumed his peculiar stance. Pushing his left glove into Dundee's face, he circled the ring while the champion pursued.

Repeated warnings to Dundee from the referee for hitting low brought a complaint from the titleholder that Yarosz was pushing the glove to its low mark.

Forces Teddy to Miss.

As the battle proceeded, Dundee's experience and ring knowledge became more obvious. He weaved his head and shoulders, forcing Yarosz, anxious to pile up an advantage, to miss many good blows.

Dundee's bid for victory in the final round fell short. Some of his blowse found their mark and Yarosz weakened. The challenger's pace was retarded as he stumbled awkwardly about the ring. Still he showed no signs of going down as he fought back until the bell.

Then he trudged slowly to his corner when Dundee moved with equal uncertain steps toward his handlers.

The decision was as pleasant to Yarosz as it was disappointing to Dundee, who had been defeated twice before in non-title bouts by the newly crowned champion.

Paul Pirrone Wns.

Paul Pirrone, 157½, of Cleveland won an eight-round decision from Al Diamond, 158½, Newark, in the semi-final eight-round battle.

Young Stuley, 154 Chicago, knocked out Al Salbano, 153, Syracuse, in the second round of their eight-round struggle.

Ross Fields, 127 3-4, Weirton, W. Va., cut short the threat of Joe Fortunoni, 124½, Canton, O., with a knockout punch in the fifth stanza of their match.

Johnny Durso, 139½, Pittsburgh, was given a technical knockout over Marty Gornick, 139½, Pittsburgh, when Gornick was unabe to answer the fifth round bell.

Church Golfing Banquet Success

First Annual Banquet Held At Castle Hills; T. W. Dickey Toastmaster

J. B. "Jack" Waddington Elected New President; First Presbyterians Get Trophy

In golf the main thing is the follow through, and the New Castle Church league golfers followed through their most successful first season last night at the Castle Hills clubhouse with their first annual banquet.

Seventy of the league golfers attended the dinner. It was a steak dinner and one of the finest ever served at Castle Hills. Mrs. V. Arthur Smith and a capable group served the banquet.

With the eating end of the program out of the way John B. "Jack" Waddington acting as president in the absence of John P. Lockhart, who was unable to attend owing to illness, called upon Attorney Thomas W. Dickey as toastmaster. Sam Lewis, one of New Castle's best known singers started the program by leading in a number of snappy pep songs with Albert Taylor at the piano.

Dickey Toastmaster

Attorney Dickey with a few complimentary remarks called upon Charles "Bugs" Walther, for a talk on "Birth and History of the New Castle Church Golf League." Mr. Walther responded with a short talk, reviewing the beginning of the league, and gave out the low scores made in the course of the year's play.

Rev. P. C. Pearson, rector of Trinity church, was the next speaker and said that the Church League was a credit to the city of New Castle. He also said in the course of his fine talk that the league created real fellowship and that was the big thing. He endorsed the league 100 per cent.

Very Fine Speeches

Following Rev. Pearson came Attorney Robert Wallace, a member of the Highland church golfing team and he also said that he thought the league a fine thing. He talked about the "dub" golfers. He waxed very humorous at times as he passed comment on certain of the church league players. Mr. Wallace said that he hopes the league will continue.

Hon. Attorney Walter S. Reynolds a member of the First Methodist team, was the next speaker and waxed very humorous and then turned serious in his characteristic manner. Mr. Reynolds also endorsed the idea of a church golf league and said that he enjoyed playing this summer.

All of the speeches were much enjoyed with Attorney Dickey in his incomparable manner handling the toastmaster job in perfect style. The Dickey wit and humor is well known to banquet goers. There are few dull moments when Dickey steps up to the speakers rostrum.

Gerson Trophy Presented

Toastmaster Dickey called upon Mr. Walther again to present the beautiful Gerson Trophy Cup to Russ Magill, captain of the First Presbyterian "A" team, champions of the league for both halves of the year. Mr. Magill responded with a short speech of acceptance.

Jack Gerson, well known local jeweler and donor of the trophy was called upon by Toastmaster Dickey and responded with a very fine talk, in which he promised the New Castle Church golf league his co-operation at any time.

Ministers Speak

Three ministers who were special guests of the league were then called upon for short talks—Rev. G. S. Bennett of the First Christian church, Rev. D. L. Ferguson of Highland U. P. church and Rev. S. E. Irvine of First U. P. church. Rev. Father Doerr was unable to be present last night.

All of the ministers had the highest praise for the church golf league and all urged that the league be continued throughout the coming years.

Mr. Walther was then called upon to give out the prizes to the winners of the kickers' handicap event staged prior to the banquet. The following won prizes—R. M. Garland 41-3-38. Russ Magill 43-5-38. H. L. Featers 50-12-38. H. H. Pearce 48-10-38. Jack Hope 46-8-38. The medalist was that sensational young golfer, Chris Clark, who shot a brilliant 36 card, one over par for the first nine at Castle Hills. Fulton Magill also received a ball for his 38 card.

Waddington President

The members of the championship team of the First Presbyterian "A" team are—J. B. "Jack" Waddington, Russ Magill, Paul Hunt, Mont Magill, Jim Elder, Bud Long, Dick Dana, Bill Long, Frank Butler, Ches Sweezy, Russ Melvin.

Election of officers for next year was the final gesture on the splendid program. The ballots were given to the men to name their own choices for officers, with John B. "Jack" Waddington being chosen as the 1935 president. Ralph B. Davis, as vice-president, and Dr. R. C. Gilmore re-elected as secretary and treasurer. Attorney John P. Lockhart is the retiring president of the league.

Dunlap Favored To Win Tourney

Goodman, Ouimet, Bobby Jones, Jr., And Other Stars Are Eliminated

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 12.—Having indulged itself in two days of refined blood-letting, during which first, Francis Ouimet and then Johnny Goodman were done to their death, the national amateur gold championship will degenerate into a common brawl this morning, with every man for himself.

All we're going to do is hold two wild eighteen-hole rounds and, when the general disorder abates, we will be down to a practical, working basis at last, with the original field of 180 reduced to fifteen survivors. The new national amateur golf champion will be somewhere in that surviving list.

Dunlap Survives

Last year, it was George Dunlap, of New York. This year, it could still be George Dunlap. He remains in there this morning.

Ouimet went out on Monday at the instigation of the new Bobby Jones. Jones went out yesterday. So did Goodman. His particular betonoir was and is a 16-year-old by the name of Bobby Jacobson and doubtless sometime today Jacobson himself will be snuffed out.

Dunlap could very well pass away this morning. He has been brought up against a very plausible person in Willie Turnesa, New York.

A couple of guys who probably never will be due again are to play one of the third round matches this morning. They are the ex-champions, Chick Evans and Chandler Egan.

Sommerville-Noyes

Another pretty poignant meeting is that between Ross Somerville, the Canadian who won the title two years ago, and Sidney Noyes, a quarter-finalist in the same tournament. The Texans, Reynolds Smith and Dave Goldman are also embroiled in a couple of interesting matches. Smith will play Ernie Caldwell, while Goldman, who started with three birdies yesterday, is coupled with the southern, Bobby Riegel.

I don't profess to know how important it may be, but Lawson Little, British open champion, is to play Milan O. Heath, Boston. Little looks every inch the best man in the tournament and Heath, so far as I know, is just another golfer. But it would be in keeping with the mad tempo of this event if Heath won today.

Perry-Allison Battling Today

(International News Service)

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Fred Perry, the defending champion, will meet Wilmer Allison, the challenger, for the American tennis championship this afternoon, and, unless the lantern-jawed Texan can register the greatest sport upset of the year, when it's all over some Joe Humphries of the courts will arise to announce: "The winnah and still champion—Fred Perry."

The gallery probably will be all for Allison today; first, because the patrons would like to see an American win an American title, and second, because the natives feel the Texan got a chill deal when he was called to England to play for the Davis cup and then told to go home.

Field Club Will Have Field Day

The fun starts early in the morning with a golf tournament, a low ball foursome affair. Leave Ring Unmarked.

Both men left the ring unmarked. At the final bell both Yarosz and Dundee were tired and weary. Neither was floored during the 15 rounds, although one or the other fell during clinches on three different occasions.

Dundee entered the ring at 158½ pounds, holding a one-pound advantage over his opponent. He displayed a determined, defiant air and relied heavily upon his experiences and knowledge rather than an aggressive attack to carry him to victory.

Yarosz was eager and obviously nervous. His desire to win the match and title caused him to miss many blows to the champion's head as the latter danced about the ring.

The early rounds were uninteresting as Yarosz assumed his peculiar stance. Pushing his left glove into Dundee's face, he circled the ring while the champion pursued.

Repeated warnings to Dundee from the referee for hitting low brought a complaint from the titleholder that Yarosz was pushing the glove to its low mark.

Forces Teddy to Miss.

As the battle proceeded, Dundee's experience and ring knowledge became more obvious. He weaved his head and shoulders, forcing Yarosz, anxious to pile up an advantage, to miss many good blows.

Dundee's bid for victory in the final round fell short. Some of his blowse found their mark and Yarosz weakened. The challenger's pace was retarded as he stumbled awkwardly about the ring. Still he showed no signs of going down as he fought back until the bell.

Then he trudged slowly to his corner when Dundee moved with equal uncertain steps toward his handlers.

The decision was as pleasant to Yarosz as it was disappointing to Dundee, who had been defeated twice before in non-title bouts by the newly crowned champion.

Paul Pirrone Wns.

Paul Pirrone, 157½, of Cleveland won an eight-round decision from Al Diamond, 158½, Newark, in the semi-final eight-round battle.

Young Stuley, 154 Chicago, knocked out Al Salbano, 153, Syracuse, in the second round of their eight-round struggle.

Ross Fields, 127 3-4, Weirton, W. Va., cut short the threat of Joe Fortunoni, 124½, Canton, O., with a knockout punch in the fifth stanza of their match.

Johnny Durso, 139½, Pittsburgh, was given a technical knockout over Marty Gornick, 139½, Pittsburgh, when Gornick was unabe to answer the fifth round bell.

Church Golfing Banquet Success

First Annual Banquet Held At Castle Hills; T. W. Dickey Toastmaster

J. B. "Jack" Waddington Elected New President; First Presbyterians Get Trophy

In golf the main thing is the follow through, and the New Castle Church league golfers followed through their most successful first season last night at the Castle Hills clubhouse with their first annual banquet.

Seventy of the league golfers attended the dinner. It was a steak dinner and one of the finest ever served at Castle Hills. Mrs. V. Arthur Smith and a capable group served the banquet.

With the eating end of the program out of the way John B. "Jack" Waddington acting as president in the absence of John P. Lockhart, who was unable to attend owing to illness, called upon Attorney Thomas W. Dickey as toastmaster. Sam Lewis, one of New Castle's best known singers started the program by leading in a number of snappy pep songs with Albert Taylor at the piano.

Dickey Toastmaster

Attorney Dickey with a few complimentary remarks called upon Charles "Bugs" Walther, for a talk on "Birth and History of the New Castle Church Golf League." Mr. Walther responded with a short talk, reviewing the beginning of the league, and gave out the low scores made in the course of the year's play.

Rev. P. C. Pearson, rector of Trinity church, was the next speaker and said that the Church League was a credit to the city of New Castle. He also said in the course of his fine talk that the league created real fellowship and that was the big thing. He endorsed the league 100 per cent.

Very Fine Speeches

Following Rev. Pearson came Attorney Robert Wallace, a member of the Highland church golfing team and he also said that he thought the league a fine thing. He talked about the "dub" golfers. He waxed very humorous at times as he passed comment on certain of the church league players. Mr. Wallace said that he hopes the league will continue.

Hon. Attorney Walter S. Reynolds a member of the First Methodist team, was the next speaker and waxed very humorous and then turned serious in his characteristic manner. Mr. Reynolds also endorsed the idea of a church golf league and said that he enjoyed playing this summer.

All of the speeches were much enjoyed with Attorney Dickey in his incomparable manner handling the toastmaster job in perfect style. The Dickey wit and humor is well known to banquet goers. There are few dull moments when Dickey steps up to the speakers rostrum.

Gerson Trophy Presented

Toastmaster Dickey called upon Mr. Walther again to present the beautiful Gerson Trophy Cup to Russ Magill, captain of the First Presbyterian "A" team, champions of the league for both halves of the year. Mr. Magill responded with a short speech of acceptance.

Jack Gerson, well known local jeweler and donor of the trophy was called upon by Toastmaster Dickey and responded with a very fine talk, in which he promised the New Castle Church golf league his co-operation at any time.

Ministers Speak

Three ministers who were special guests of the league were then called upon for short talks—Rev. G. S. Bennett of the First Christian church, Rev. D. L. Ferguson of Highland U. P. church and Rev. S. E. Irvine of First U. P. church. Rev. Father Doerr was unable to be present last night.

All of the ministers had the highest praise for the church golf league and all urged that the league be continued throughout the coming years.

Mr. Walther was then called upon to give out the prizes to the winners of the kickers' handicap event staged prior to the banquet. The following won prizes—R. M. Garland 41-3-38. Russ Magill 43-5-38. H. L. Featers 50-12-38. H. H. Pearce 48-10-38. Jack Hope 46-8-38. The medalist was that sensational young golfer, Chris Clark, who shot a brilliant 36 card, one over par for the first nine at Castle Hills. Fulton Magill also received a ball for his 38 card.

Waddington President

The members of the championship team of the First Presbyterian "A" team are—J. B. "Jack" Waddington, Russ Magill, Paul Hunt, Mont Magill, Jim Elder, Bud Long, Dick Dana, Bill Long, Frank Butler, Ches Sweezy, Russ Melvin.

Election of officers for next year was the final gesture on the splendid program. The ballots were given to the men to name their own choices for officers, with John B. "Jack" Waddington being chosen as the 1935 president, Ralph B. Davis, as vice-president, and Dr. R. C. Gilmore re-elected as secretary and treasurer. Attorney John P. Lockhart is the retiring president of the league.

Dunlap Favored To Win Tourney

Goodman, Ouimet, Bobby Jones, Jr., And Other Stars Are Eliminated

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 12.—Having indulged itself in two days of refined blood-letting, during which first, Francis Ouimet and then Johnny Goodman were done to their death, the national amateur gold championship will degenerate into a common brawl this morning, with every man for himself.

All we're going to do is hold two wild eighteen-hole rounds and, when the general disorder abates, we will be down to a practical, working basis at last, with the original field of 180 reduced to fifteen survivors. The new national amateur golf champion will be somewhere in that surviving list.

Dunlap Survives

Last year, it was George Dunlap, of New York. This year, it could still be George Dunlap. He remains in there this morning.

Ouimet went out on Monday at the instigation of the new Bobby Jones. Jones went out yesterday. So did Goodman. His particular betonoir was and is a 16-year-old by the name of Bobby Jacobson and doubtless sometime today Jacobson himself will be snuffed out.

Dunlap could very well pass away this morning. He has been brought up against a very plausible person in Willie Turnesa, New York.

A couple of guys who probably never will be due again are to play one of the third round matches this morning. They are the ex-champions, Chick Evans and Chandler Egan.

Sommerville-Noyes

Another pretty poignant meeting is that between Ross Somerville, the Canadian who won the title two years ago, and Sidney Noyes, a quarter-finalist in the same tournament. The Texans, Reynolds Smith and Dave Goldman are also embroiled in a couple of interesting matches. Smith will play Ernie Caldwell, while Goldman, who started with three birdies yesterday, is coupled with the southern, Bobby Riegel.

I don't profess to know how important it may be, but Lawson Little, British open champion, is to play Milan O. Heath, Boston. Little looks every inch the best man in the tournament and Heath, so far as I know, is just another golfer. But it would be in keeping with the mad tempo of this event if Heath won today.

Perry-Allison Battling Today

(International News Service)

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Fred Perry, the defending champion, will meet Wilmer Allison, the challenger, for the American tennis championship this afternoon, and, unless the lantern-jawed Texan can register the greatest sport upset of the year, when it's all over some Joe Humphries of the courts will arise to announce: "The winnah and still champion—Fred Perry."

The gallery probably will be all for Allison today; first, because the patrons would like to see an American win an American title, and second, because the natives feel the Texan got a chill deal when he was called to England to play for the Davis cup and then told to go home.

Field Club Will Have Field Day

First Annual Field Day To Occur On Thursday Great Program

MANY RESERVATIONS ARE ALREADY MADE

Golfers from all over Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio, are expected in New Castle Thursday, September 14, when the New Castle Field club will hold its first annual "Field Day" on the club course. Already over 200 reservations have been received from this county, from Mercer, Butler, Beaver and the Youngstown district.

The fun starts early in the morning with a golf tournament, a low ball foursome affair. In the afternoon there will be a Blind Bogey tournament with Lady Luck helping as much as golfing skill to win the prize. Early in the evening there will be an amateur boxing tournament with some of the best boys in this district trading punches.

In the evening a dinner will be held in the club dining rooms with the admission ticket being good for the dinner as well. Special arrangements are being made to seat the crowd and to insure everybody a good time.

Guides and ticket sellers are being spotted on road entrances leading from the various highways to the Field Club, with arrow indicators along the way. Arrangements have been made to have 200 caddies dismissed from school on Thursday to caddy for the visiting golfers, and it is urged that members of the New Castle Field Club co-operate in getting them out to the club house.

It is going to be a big day. A lot of golf, and a lot of food, a lot of boxing and a lot of enjoyment. By tonight it is anticipated that the advance sale will go to three hundred, with another hundred coming in from outside clubs.

IN OTHER WORDS

A tramp was arrested and taken to the police station.

"Come on," said the station sergeant, "strip yourself for a bath."

The tramp gazed at him unbelievingly.

"What!" he exclaimed. "Me go into water?"

"Of course!" snapped the officer. "How long is it since you last had a bath?"

"Well," replied the tramp, with a puzzled frown, "I was never arrested before."

CONCEIT!

Woman (in crowded bus to her friends): I wish that good looking man would give me his seat.

Six men rose.

McLaughry Influence Back At Westminster

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 12.—With two proteges of "Tuss McLaughry at the helm of Westminster College football, with another protege of the popular Brown coach as director of athletics at Westminster, and with Judge J. A. McLaughry, father of "Tuss" on the athletic council, the influence of the former Sharon high and Westminster star is again evident on the campus.

Bill and Tom Gilbane, All American fullback and center respectively on McLaughry's Brown teams, are head coach and assistant coach this season. John D. Lawther, who played under McLaughry when he was a coach at Westminster, is again director of athletics. Judge J. A. McLaughry of Mercer was this week elected to the Titan athletic council. And Bill and Tom Gilbane, Titan mentors, are rooming at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McLaughry in town. William McLaughry is a brother of Judge McLaughry of Mercer.

With all this McLaughry influence, it is little wonder that district teams are looking ahead to their first contact with the triple wing back and other offensive formations which McLaughry has used so effectively at Amherst and Brown. Westminster will be the only district team to employ the McLaughry system.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Fistania today has a middleweight champion who lacks a punch, Teddy Yarosz having feather dusted Vince Dundee in 15 rounds last night at Forbes field, Pittsburgh. Dundee displayed nothing but aggressiveness in the hope of getting close to Yarosz who kept punching as he moved around Vince. It was not until the latter rounds that Dundee did any impressive work. Yarosz was the more tired at the finish but his showing in the early rounds won him the decision. One judge and the referee voted for Yarosz and the other judge cast his ballot for Dundee.

There were many local fans at the fight and among the crowd of former leather tossers who watched Yarosz win the championship that once was held by George Chip, were boys who have performed in this city. Some of them came to Forbes field from long distance and sat in on the exchange of ring crowns.

Waiting at the press gate was found one of the boys whom New Castle fans have not and will not forget for some time, Patsy Brannigan. He apparently knew everybody who was strutting into the place and just before the bell rang for the semi-final to go on Patsy took his ringside seat.

There was what the writer thought to be a good sized crowd but whether it was a profitable fight no one excepting the promoters can tell that. The weather was ideal. The ring was well illuminated. Spike Eberle, nephew of Jack Eberle of this city, was the announcer.

Two Days Until Football Opener

New Castle High Gridders Are Polished Up Ready For Braddock High

STARTING LINEUP IS NOT DEFINITE

Just two more days and Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh will unleash his 1934 "Red Hurricane" football machine for the fans to look at. Braddock High, coached by "Ham" Hudson, will offer the opposition in the first game. The game will start at eight o'clock, and the scene is Taggart Stadium. The doors will open at seven o'clock.

After two weeks of intensive drilling, with one week spent at Camp Muddy Creek Falls, the New Castle team is ready and waiting for the opening whistle that sends them into action.

Lineup In Doubt

Coach Bridenbaugh is not set yet on the starting lineup. There are several positions in doubt. Fleming is almost a certainty to start at the signal barking post, with Mumford, DeCaprio, Donegan and James fighting it out for the halfback posts. The fullbacking job is being taken care of by Alex Shellogg.

On the line will be Fred Shellogg and Palkovitch at the tackles, Captain Walter Raskowski at one guard post, with Johns, Cardella, Otlowski and Jokinen fighting for the other guard job. The ends will be Tuscano and Wisosky.

Taggart Field is being made ready for the kick-off. The lights are being put into place. The bleachers are already up. The turnstiles are being installed.

Coon Hunters To Plan Field Trials

Meeting Will Be Held In Y. M. C. A. Friday Evening To Begin Arrangements

Lawrence county coon hunters will have a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. Friday evening, at 8 o'clock, when plans will be inaugurated for the big field trials, which will take place at the New Castle Fair grounds, Saturday, October 6.

Deep interest was shown in the field trials held recently at Gunton Park, and the coming event is expected to arouse deep interest among the coon hunters of the county.

Yarosz Captures Middleweight Title

Neither Boxer Exhibits Punching Power In 15-Round Titular Bout

MONACA BOY WINS TWO OF THREE VOTES

By VICTOR J. JACOBS
International News Service Sports Writer.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 12.—Thad (Teddy) Yarosz, youthful boxing idol of the steel district, ruled the middleweight class today by lifting the crown from Titleholder Vince Dundee, Newark, N. J., in a 15-round split decision battle here last night.

Yarosz dethroned the champion but the chorus of "boos" that greeted the verdict showed it was far from a popular decision. Two judges split the decision and it was left to Al Grayber, referee of Pittsburgh, to cast the deciding vote in favor of the Monaca battler.

The battle, marked by an absence of punching power on the part of both fighters, lacked the color and glamor of a title match. It was exceedingly tame and not altogether pleasing to the crowd of 28,000.

Unofficial scorers gave Yarosz a slight edge in six rounds and four to Dundee. Five were even. But the dethroned champion forced the issue. He kept pressing in and followed the challenger as Yarosz resorted to his peculiar style of combat. He continually pushed his left hand into Dundee's face and then circled the ring.

Neither battler displayed any hitting power. Dundee's weaving style and his experience caused Yarosz to miss frequently but the loser found it difficult to land any telling blows.

Leave Ring Unmarked.

Both men left the ring unmarked. At the final bell both Yarosz and Dundee were tired and weary. Neither was floored during the 15 rounds, although one or the other fell during clinches on three different occasions.

Dundee entered the ring at 158½ pounds, holding a one-pound advantage over his opponent. He displayed a determined, defiant air and relied heavily upon his experiences and knowledge rather than an aggressive attack to carry him to victory.

Giants Defeat Pirates, 3 To 1

Giants Gain In Flag Race As Cardinals Split With Phillies

TIGERS LOSE, YANKEES GAIN

By GENE LAWRENCE
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Fully recovered from their bad attack of fumblitis that proved so costly two days back and having regained some batting power the New York Giants were breathing easier today since they had snapped their three-game losing streak.

Fears that the champions were beginning to crack under the strain of trying to win their second consecutive National league pennant had Giants' fans in its grip until Roy "Tarzan" Parmelee turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday, 3 to 1.

It was a clever performance, that of shackling the Pirate batters and allowing only six hits and typical of Parmelee's work this season. It marked the fourth time this year he came through with a victory when the Giants needed one badly.

Parmelee put the Giants four and one-half games ahead of the second place St. Louis Cardinals, who split a double-header with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Cardinals Divide.

The Phillies gave the Cardinals a scare, winning the first game 5 to 0 on homers by Allen, Camilli and John Moore while Sylvester Johnson allowed only five hits. However, the St. Louis batters got down to serious business in the nightcap, winning 6 to 4, despite being outhit 11 to 9 by the Phillies.

The third place Chicago Cubs held their ground seven games back of the Giants when Bill Lee pitched them to a 2-0 shutout triumph over the Boston Braves. Lee won a close duel from the veteran Ed Brandt, each pitcher allowing but six hits.

Yankees Split.

A four-run attack in the opening inning paved the way for the Brooklyn Dodgers to hang up a 5-2 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

The New York Yankees, not yet convinced that the pennant race is over in the American league, gained a half game on the pace-making Detroit Tigers by dividing a double-header with the St. Louis Browns. The Yankees won the first game behind Johnny Broaca 7-4, but dropped the nightcap 7-3.

Tigers Defeated.

The Tigers dropped a decision to Bob Grove and the Boston Red Sox 4-3, in an 11-inning contest. Grove outpitched the Tigers' sensational youngster, Schoolboy Rowe, who was seeking his 23rd victory of the season.

The defeat cut the Tigers' lead over the Yankees to four games.

The Chicago White Sox pulled out a 3-2 victory over the Washington senators in the 11th inning.

The Philadelphia Athletics beat the Cleveland Indians 6-4. A homer by Roger Cramer in the seventh broke a 4-4 tie and the Athletics clinched the game with another tally in the eighth.

THE SPORT PATROL

* * * * * * * *

By JOHN J. MAHER, JR.

DETROIT TIGERS— INEXPERIENCED ROOKIES.

Last spring the Detroit Tigers were given an outside chance of landing in the first division. Too much uncertainty at every position except second base and catch was given as the reason for the fourth or fifth place selection.

But the same club with the same inexperienced ball players is well on its ways to the American league pennant. Even now the critics say the club, lacking balance and experience, should really be topped by New York, Boston and Cleveland.

The Tigers, nevertheless, continue to win enough ball games to maintain the league lead while their more experienced rivals have fallen by the wayside. Batting power and pitching has made their inexperience of little account.

Last Monday Hank Greenberg made two home runs to give the Bengals a 2-1 victory over Boston. Hank also prolonged Rowe's 16 game winning streak when it was endangered in Washington a few weeks ago. That's the way the Jewish lad bats, if two homers are needed to win a game he gets them.

Marvin Owen has been fielding and hitting so well that it is difficult to say which improvement in his work has astonished the most. He has a .334 batting average and does everything in the field from making outfield catches to starting triple plays.

Goose Goslin, everyone thought, was slowing up. Yet on June 6, he stole second and scored on Gehringer's single. That hit by Charley was the only one the Tigers made but they defeated Cleveland 2-1. The inexperienced Bengals demonstrated that they could win even though their powerful bats had been silenced.

Jo Jo White is the peppiest centerfielder Detroit has had since Ty Cobb. In the recent series at Boston, White stole second. Gehringer then got on base and the two of them were successful in a double steal. When third baseman Bill Werber dropped the ball White dashed home. Jo Jo has a .325 batting mark which enables him to make use of his speed on the bases quite often.

Knickerbocker and Cronin are considered the best shortstops in the American league. However, Detroit is satisfied with Billy Rogell whose .315 batting mark has been very valuable.

Walker in right field is another speedster who also possesses a lusty batting mark. He is dangerous on the bases and when in the field makes the opposing batters hustle to reach first on right field Texas leaguers.

The pitching staff was supposed to be composed of in and outers—"in" the first few innings and "out" about the fifth. Nevertheless, Rowe ran up a long winning streak, Bridges is one of the best strike-out pitchers, Auker has become a shut-out expert, and Marberry has been invincible in relief.

So if the critics want the scientific veteran clubs they can have them. Perhaps Washington or Pittsburgh would be suitable.

The Pirates, with a team of veterans, were supposed to furnish the Giants some stiff opposition this year. Well, they still have Red Lucas who was expected to be the making of a great hurling staff. Larry French hasn't come very close to those 20 games expected of him. Arky Vaughan and Paul Waner, both great players, are on the team. So is Lindstrom and Lloyd Waner, good outfielders, and Pie Traynor, for years a hero of Pittsburgh fans.

While the Pirates are out of the pennant fight the inexperienced Detroit youngsters are walloping the ball all over the lot, the pitchers are pushing strikes past the batters, and the base-runners get to the bags ahead of the ball. Maybe this is done without the finesse of a polished team of veterans but the results show more victories than the older teams have been able to collect.

THEY SAY IN SPORTS

Jimmy Dykes—Put seven .300 hitters in a line-up and the other two "bums" will hit to keep them company. Cochrane's success with the Tigers is the story of the 1929 Athletics all over again.

Gene Sarazen—The saddest thing in golf is those zealous, jealous, gossiping wives of professional players who haunt their husbands and watch them fire every shot in a money tournament.

Bucky Harris—The Tigers have had great luck with Rowe, besides the help of Bridges and Marberry, but Mickey Cochrane has had to do a lot of shuffling with his staff.

YOUR GRANDAD LOOKED BEFORE HE BOUGHT . . .

You can bet he made sure a horse was "sound in wind and limb." He knew it paid to look them all over before he bought.

Don't buy ANY car too hurriedly

WE LOOKED AT THE OTHERS BEFORE WE BOUGHT

In 6 months I have traveled 12,705 miles, and my Terraplane has given me perfect performance. My total repair account has been $1.50. I investigated four other cars before buying.—THE VEN. CHARLES KNIGHT WELLER, Memphis, Tenn.

I traded a new car of another make, after driving it only 700 miles, for a Terraplane, and I am delighted with it. In fact, I think the Terraplane is superior in every way to any of its competitors.—WM. A. SHAW, Montclair, New Jersey.

My engine is the smoothest piece of machinery I have ever driven or ridden behind. I get excellent gas mileage and can safely say that I am more thoroughly satisfied with this Hudson than any car I have ever driven.—A. C. STREET, Oakland, Calif.

At that, it's a lot easier for you to get the real facts about an automobile than it was for grandfather to size up a horse. And if you're as tired as we are of being told that every automobile is the "best in the world," you'll do your own looking, your own comparing, your own deciding.

If you're interested in safety, step on the great equal-action brakes in a Hudson or Terraplane. Then try the brakes of other cars. If it's smooth power you seek, ride behind the sweet-running engine of a Hudson-built car. Then see how others compare. What about ruggedness, low upkeep cost, ability to keep on "taking it"? Hudson and Terraplane dealers can show you sworn affidavits of owners. Ask other dealers for evidence like this!

Compare — Then You Be the Judge

That's why we say: "Don't buy any car too hurriedly." Not even a Hudson or a Terraplane. Look at the others, too. Decide by what you see and feel, rather than what you hear. Then buy where you get the most for your money. We'll be glad to help you. Come in, examine, drive — then compare.

Giants Defeat Pirates, 3 To 1

Giants Gain In Flag Race As Cardinals Split With Phillies

TIGERS LOSE, YANKEES GAIN

By GENE LAWRENCE
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Fully recovered from their bad attack of fumbilitis that proved so costly two days back and having regained some batting power the New York Giants were breathing easier today since they had snapped their three-game losing streak.

Fears that the champions were beginning to crack under the strain of trying to win their second consecutive National league pennant had Giants' fans in its grip until Roy "Tarzan" Parmelee turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday, 3 to 1.

It was a clever performance, that of shackling the Pirate batters and allowing only six hits and typical of Parmelee's work this season. It marked the fourth time this year he came through with a victory when the Giants needed one badly.

Parmelee put the Giants four and one-half games ahead of the second place St. Louis Cardinals, who split a double-header with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Cardinals Divide.

The Phillies gave the Cardinals a scare, winning the first game 5 to 0 on homers by Allen, Camilli and John Moore while Sylvester Johnson allowed only five hits. However, the St. Louis batters got down to serious business in the nightcap, winning 6 to 4, despite being outhit 11 to 9 by the Phillies.

The third place Chicago Cubs held their ground seven games back of the Giants when Bill Lee pitched them to a 2-0 shutout triumph over the Boston Braves. Lee won a close duel from the veteran Ed Brandt, each pitcher allowing but six hits.

Yankees Split.

A four-run attack in the opening inning paved the way for the Brooklyn Dodgers to hang up a 5-2 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

The New York Yankees, not yet convinced that the pennant race is over in the American league, gained a half game on the pace-making Detroit Tigers by dividing a double-header with the St. Louis Browns. The Yankees won the first game behind Johnny Broaca 7-4, but dropped the nightcap 7-3.

Tigers Defeated.

The Tigers dropped a decision to Bob Grove and the Boston Red Sox 4-3, in an 11-inning contest. Grove outpitched the Tigers' sensational youngster, Schoolboy Rowe, who was seeking his 23rd victory of the season.

The defeat cut the Tigers' lead over the Yankees to four games.

The Chicago White Sox pulled out a 3-2 victory over the Washington senators in the 11th inning.

The Philadelphia Athletics beat the Cleveland Indians 6-4. A homer by Roger Cramer in the seventh broke a 4-4 tie and the Athletics clinched the game with another tally in the eighth.

By JOHN J. MAHER, JR.

DETROIT TIGERS— INEXPERIENCED ROOKIES.

Last spring the Detroit Tigers were given an outside chance of landing in the first division. Too much uncertainty at every position except second base and catch was given as the reason for the fourth or fifth place selection.

But the same club with the same inexperienced ball players is well on its ways to the American league pennant. Even now the critics say the club, lacking balance and experience, should really be topped by New York, Boston and Cleveland.

The Tigers, nevertheless, continue to win enough ball games to maintain the league lead while their more experienced rivals have fallen by the wayside. Batting power and pitching has made their inexperience of little account.

Last Monday Hank Greenberg made two home runs to give the Bengals a 2-1 victory over Boston. Hank also prolonged Rowe's 16 game winning streak when it was endangered in Washington a few weeks ago. That's the way the Jewish lad bats, if two homers are needed to win a game he gets them.

Marvin Owen has been fielding and hitting so well that it is difficult to say which improvement in his work has astonished the most. He has a .334 batting average and does everything in the field from making outfield catches to starting triple plays.

Goose Goslin, everyone thought, was slowing up. Yet on June 6, he stole second and scored on Gehringer's single. That hit by Charley was the only one the Tigers made but they defeated Cleveland 2-1. The inexperienced Bengals demonstrated that they could win even though their powerful bats had been silenced.

Jo Jo White is the peppiest centerfielder Detroit has had since Ty Cobb. In the recent series at Boston, White stole second. Gehringer then got on base and the two of them were successful in a double steal. When third baseman Bill Werber dropped the ball White dashed home. Jo Jo has a .325 batting mark which enables him to make use of his speed on the bases quite often.

Knickerbocker and Cronin are considered the best shortstops in the American league. However, Detroit is satisfied with Billy Rogell whose .315 batting mark has been very valuable.

Walker in right field is another speedster who also possesses a lusty batting mark. He is dangerous on the bases and when in the field makes the opposing batters hustle to reach first on right field Texas leaguers.

The pitching staff was supposed to be composed of in and outers—"in" the first few innings and "out" about the fifth. Nevertheless, Rowe ran up a long winning streak, Bridges is one of the best strike-out pitchers. Auker has become a shut-out expert, and Marberry has been invincible in relief.

So if the critics want the scientific veteran clubs they can have them. Perhaps Washington or Pittsburgh would be suitable.

The Pirates, with a team of veterans, were supposed to furnish the Giants some stiff opposition this year. Well, they still have Red Lucas who was expected to be the making of a great hurling staff. Larry French hasn't come very close to those 20 games expected of him. Arky Vaughan and Paul Waner, both great players, are on the team. So is Lindstrom and Lloyd Waner, good outfielders, and Pie Traynor, for years a hero of Pittsburgh fans.

While the Pirates are out of the pennant fight the inexperienced Detroit youngsters are walloping the ball all over the lot, the pitchers are pushing strikes past the batters, and the base-runners get to the bags ahead of the ball. Maybe this is done without the finesse of a polished team of veterans but the results show more victories than the older teams have been able to collect.

THEY SAY IN SPORTS

Jimmy Dykes—Put seven .300 hitters in a line-up and the other two "bums" will hit to keep them company. Cochrane's success with the Tigers is the story of the 1929 Athletics all over again.

Gene Sarazen—The saddest thing in golf is those zealous, jealous, gossiping wives of professional players who haunt their husbands and watch them fire every shot in a money tournament.

Bucky Harris—The Tigers have had great luck with Rowe, besides the help of Bridges and Marberry, but Mickey Cochrane has had to do a lot of shuffling with his staff.

YOUR GRANDAD LOOKED BEFORE HE BOUGHT . . .

You can bet he made sure a horse was "sound in wind and limb." He knew it paid to look them all over before he bought.

Don't buy ANY car too hurriedly

WE LOOKED AT THE OTHERS BEFORE WE BOUGHT

In 6 months I have traveled 12,705 miles, and my Terraplane has given me perfect performance. My total repair account has been $1.50. I investigated four other cars before buying.—THE VEN. CHARLES KNIGHT WELLER, Memphis, Tenn.

I traded a new car of another make, after driving it only 700 miles, for a Terraplane, and I am delighted with it. In fact, I think the Terraplane is superior in every way to any of its competitors.—WM. A. SHAW, Montclair, New Jersey.

My engine is the smoothest piece of machinery I have ever driven or ridden behind. I get excellent gas mileage and can safely say that I am more thoroughly satisfied with this Hudson than any car I have ever driven.—A. C. STREET, Oakland, Calif.

At that, it's a lot easier for you to get the real facts about an automobile than it was for grandfather to size up a horse. And if you're as tired as we are of being told that every automobile is the "best in the world," you'll do your own looking, your own comparing, your own deciding.

If you're interested in safety, step on the great equal-action brakes in a Hudson or Terraplane. Then try the brakes of other cars. If it's smooth power you seek, ride behind the sweet-running engine of a Hudson-built car. Then see how others compare. What about ruggedness, low upkeep cost, ability to keep on "taking it"? Hudson and Terraplane dealers can show you sworn affidavits of owners. Ask other dealers for evidence like this!

Compare—Then You Be the Judge

That's why we say: "Don't buy any car too hurriedly." Not even a Hudson or a Terraplane. Look at the others, too. Decide by what you see and feel, rather than what you hear. Then buy where you get the most for your money. We'll be glad to help you. Come in, examine, drive—then compare.

Giants Defeat Pirates, 3 To 1

Giants Gain In Flag Race As Cardinals Split With Phillies

TIGERS LOSE, YANKEES GAIN

By GENE LAWRENCE
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Fully recovered from their bad attack of fumbilitis that proved so costly two days back and having regained some batting power the New York Giants were breathing easier today since they had snapped their three-game losing streak.

Fears that the champions were beginning to crack under the strain of trying to win their second consecutive National league pennant had Giants' fans in its grip until Roy "Tarzan" Parmelee turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday, 3 to 1.

It was a clever performance, that of shackling the Pirate batters and allowing only six hits and typical of Parmelee's work this season. It marked the fourth time this year he came through with a victory when the Giants needed one badly.

Parmelee put the Giants four and one-half games ahead of the second place St. Louis Cardinals, who split a double-header with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Cardinals Divide.

The Phillies gave the Cardinals a scare, winning the first game 5 to 0 on homers by Allen, Camilli and John Moore while Sylvester Johnson allowed only five hits. However, the St. Louis batters got down to serious business in the nightcap, winning 6 to 4, despite being outhit 11 to 9 by the Phillies.

The third place Chicago Cubs held their ground seven games back of the Giants when Bill Lee pitched them to a 2-0 shutout triumph over the Boston Braves. Lee won a close duel from the veteran Ed Brandt, each pitcher allowing but six hits.

Yankees Split.

A four-run attack in the opening inning paved the way for the Brooklyn Dodgers to hang up a 5-2 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

The New York Yankees, not yet convinced that the pennant race is over in the American league, gained a half game on the pace-making Detroit Tigers by dividing a double-header with the St. Louis Browns. The Yankees won the first game behind Johnny Broaca 7-4, but dropped the nightcap 7-3.

Tigers Defeated.

The Tigers dropped a decision to Bob Grove and the Boston Red Sox 4-3, in an 11-inning contest. Grove outpitched the Tigers' sensational youngster, Schoolboy Rowe, who was seeking his 23rd victory of the season.

The defeat cut the Tigers' lead over the Yankees to four games.

The Chicago White Sox pulled out a 3-2 victory over the Washington senators in the 11th inning.

The Philadelphia Athletics beat the Cleveland Indians 6-4. A homer by Roger Cramer in the seventh broke a 4-4 tie and the Athletics clinched the game with another tally in the eighth.

* * * * * * * *

By JOHN J. MAHER, JR.

DETROIT TIGERS— INEXPERIENCED ROOKIES.

Last spring the Detroit Tigers were given an outside chance of landing in the first division. Too much uncertainty at every position except second base and catch was given as the reason for the fourth or fifth place selection.

But the same club with the same inexperienced ball players is well on its ways to the American league pennant. Even now the critics say the club, lacking balance and experience, should really be topped by New York, Boston and Cleveland.

The Tigers, nevertheless, continue to win enough ball games to maintain the league lead while their more experienced rivals have fallen by the wayside. Batting power and pitching has made their inexperience of little account.

Last Monday Hank Greenberg made two home runs to give the Bengals a 2-1 victory over Boston. Hank also prolonged Rowe's 16 game winning streak when it was endangered in Washington a few weeks ago. That's the way the Jewish lad bats, if two homers are needed to win a game he gets them.

Marvin Owen has been fielding and hitting so well that it is difficult to say which improvement in his work has astonished the most. He has a .334 batting average and does everything in the field from making outfield catches to starting triple plays.

Goose Goslin, everyone thought, was slowing up. Yet on June 6, he stole second and scored on Gehringer's single. That hit by Charley was the only one the Tigers made but they defeated Cleveland 2-1. The inexperienced Bengals demonstrated that they could win even though their powerful bats had been silenced.

Jo Jo White is the peppiest centerfielder Detroit has had since Ty Cobb. In the recent series at Boston, White stole second. Gehringer then got on base and the two of them were successful in a double steal. When third baseman Bill Werber dropped the ball White dashed home. Jo Jo has a .325 batting mark which enables him to make use of his speed on the bases quite often.

Knickerbocker and Cronin are considered the best shortstops in the American league. However, Detroit is satisfied with Billy Rogell whose .315 batting mark has been very valuable.

Walker in right field is another speedster who also possesses a lusty batting mark. He is dangerous on the bases and when in the field makes the opposing batters hustle to reach first on right field Texas leaguers.

The pitching staff was supposed to be composed of in and outers—"in"the first few innings and "out" about the fifth. Nevertheless, Rowe ran up a long winning streak, Bridges is one of the best strike-out pitchers. Auker has become a shut-out expert, and Marberry has been invincible in relief.

So if the critics want the scientific veteran clubs they can have them. Perhaps Washington or Pittsburgh would be suitable.

The Pirates, with a team of veterans, were supposed to furnish the Giants some stiff opposition this year. Well, they still have Red Lucas who was expected to be the making of a great hurling staff. Larry French hasn't come very close to those 20 games expected of him. Arky Vaughan and Paul Waner, both great players, are on the team. So is Lindstrom and Lloyd Waner, good outfielders, and Pie Traynor, for years a hero of Pittsburgh fans.

While the Pirates are out of the pennant fight the inexperienced Detroit youngsters are walloping the ball all over the lot, the pitchers are pushing strikes past the batters, and the base-runners get to the bags ahead of the ball. Maybe this is done without the finesse of a polished team of veterans but the results show more victories than the older teams have been able to collect.

THEY SAY IN SPORTS

Jimmy Dykes—Put seven .300 hitters in a line-up and the other two "bums" will hit to keep them company. Cochrane's success with the Tigers is the story of the 1929 Athletics all over again.

Gene Sarazen—The saddest thing in golf is those zealous, jealous, gossiping wives of professional players who haunt their husbands and watch them fire every shot in a money tournament.

Bucky Harris—The Tigers have had great luck with Rowe, besides the help of Bridges and Marberry, but Mickey Cochrane has had to do a lot of shuffling with his staff.

YOUR GRANDAD LOOKED BEFORE HE BOUGHT . . .

You can bet he made sure a horse was "sound in wind and limb." He knew it paid to look them all over before he bought.

Don't buy ANY car too hurriedly

At that, it's a lot easier for you to get the real facts about an automobile than it was for grandfather to size up a horse. And if you're as tired as we are of being told that every automobile is the "best in the world," you'll do your own looking, your own comparing, your own deciding.

If you're interested in safety, step on the great equal-action brakes in a Hudson or Terraplane. Then try the brakes of other cars. If it's smooth power you seek, ride behind the sweet-running engine of a Hudson-built car. Then see how others compare. What about ruggedness, low upkeep cost, ability to keep on "taking it"? Hudson and Terraplane dealers can show you sworn affidavits of owners. Ask other dealers for evidence like this!

WE LOOKED AT THE OTHERS BEFORE WE BOUGHT

In 6 months I have traveled 12,705 miles, and my Terraplane has given me perfect performance. My total repair account has been $1.50. I investigated four other cars before buying.—THE VEN. CHARLES KNIGHT WELLER, Memphis, Tenn.

I traded a new car of another make, after driving it only 700 miles, for a Terraplane, and I am delighted with it. In fact, I think the Terraplane is superior in every way to any of its competitors.—WM. A. SHAW, Montclair, New Jersey.

My engine is the smoothest piece of machinery I have ever driven or ridden behind. I get excellent gas mileage and can safely say that I am more thoroughly satisfied with this Hudson than any car I have ever driven.—A. C. STREET, Oakland, Calif.

Compare — Then You Be the Judge

That's why we say: "Don't buy any car too hurriedly." Not even a Hudson or a Terraplane. Look at the others, too. Decide by what you see and feel, rather than what you hear. Then buy where you get the most for your money. We'll be glad to help you. Come in, examine, drive — then compare.

Stock Market Firmer Today

Market Makes Renewed Effort To Carry Through With Tuesday's Recovery

RAIL SHARES ARE STRONGER

[illegible] News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The stock market developed a firmer tone today as traders made a renewed effort to carry through with yesterday's late recovery.

Trading, however, continued at a slow pace.

United States Smelting resumed its recovery, opening about a point higher and then extending this gain fractionally. Other mining shares were steadier in sympathy.

In the rails, the tone also was stronger with Atchison fractionally higher.

There was little to feature the industrial shares where United States Steel, Bethlehem and others held opening fractional gains.

In the commodity markets wheat advanced fractionally but cotton dipped about 25 cents a bale.

Utilities were quiet although Consolidated Gas duplicated its record low at 25 5-8.

Oils were sluggish with Continental Oil a firm spot in the declaration of another 25 cent dividend and the redemption of the company's outstanding bonds.

Stock Market Firmer Today

RAIL SHARES ARE STRONGER

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The stock market developed a firmer tone today as traders made a renewed effort to carry through with yesterday's late recovery.

Trading, however, continued at a slow pace.

United States Smelting resumed its recovery opening about a point higher and then extending this gain fractionally. Other mining shares were steadier in sympathy.

In the rails, the tone also was stronger with Atchison fractionally higher.

There was little to feature the industrial shares where United States Steel, Bethlehem and others held opening fractional gains.

In the commodity markets wheat advanced fractionally but cotton dipped about 25 cents a bale.

Utilities were quiet although Consolidated Gas duplicated its record low at 25 5-8.

Oils were sluggish with Continental Oil a firm spot in the declaration of another 25 cent dividend and the redemption of the company's outstanding bonds.

Cattle-Rustlers Used Auto In Roundup

(International News Service)

LAS ANIMAS, Colo.—Combining the most approved methods of the old-time cattle rustlers with modern improvements, three men recently attempted to drive several hundred head of cattle from the rangelands in the vicinity of Blue Lakes, 18 miles north of here. Sheriff Casto Dunavin, aided by deputies and a posse of ranchers, trailed the animals for several miles and overtook them.

The thieves abandoned their horses and fled in an automobile.

"Oh, I don't mind, it daddy," his daughter told him. "It will probably liven up a bit before the end.

LIBRARY BOARD HAS MEETING LAST NIGHT

The board of library trustees met Tuesday evening in the New Castle free public library building. Miss Sterling also mentioned the growing interest in the "poetry group" which has had three meetings.

Why not educate youngsters to get themselves liked by the right people? That's the qualification for a government job.

BEING CAREFUL NOW?

She: Come on, give me a kiss.

He: No, the last time I kissed a girl I ended up in a hospital.

She: Didn't she like it?

He: Yes, but her husband didn't.

Stock Market Firmer Today

RAIL SHARES ARE STRONGER

[illegible] News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The stock market developed a firmer tone today as traders made a renewed effort to carry through with yesterday's late recovery.

Trading, however, continued at a slow pace.

United States Smelting resumed its recovery opening about a point higher and then extending this gain fractionally. Other mining shares were steadier in sympathy.

In the rails the tone also was stronger with Atchison fractionally higher.

There was little to feature the industrial shares where United States Steel, Bethlehem and others held opening fractional gains.

In the commodity markets wheat advanced fractionally but cotton dipped about 25 cents a bale.

Utilities were quiet although Consolidated Gas duplicated its record low at 25 5-8.

Oils were sluggish with Continental Oil a firm spot in the declaration of another 25 cent dividend and the redemption of the company's outstanding bonds.
